Chapter 393 New Play

"Bruce!" Nellie called out.

Jeffrey came to his senses. He scratched the back of his head, contemplating for a moment before talking again. "Wendy is a nice person. For real! In fact, I already knew her when we were in the US."

Upon hearing this, Josie was in high spirits. "Then, you should already know her better. Tell me more about her now."

"She's actually a nice woman. When I met her in the US, I realized how hardworking she was! She took care of Ray while working in the film crew every day. I think you're not that clear about Ray's situation. Ray and Precious are twins. When he was born, his condition was similar to that of Precious. Just thinking of how pitiful she was at the time, you can imagine how horrible Ray's condition was."

It reminded Josie of the first time she met Precious. Her body was bruised and battered, and her ribs were broken. Josie's heart ached.

"Ray was a premature birth, and he has always been in poor health. Even though Wendy takes good care of him all the time, his health is never as good as his peers. In order to nurse him back to health, she has to work really hard. As long as she has the opportunity to make money, she is willing to take any kind of work no matter how hard. She really is a great mother."

Josie frowned. That wasn't something she wanted to hear.

"Bruce, the US is a country where people are open to having relationships. Did she not have any boyfriends out there?"

'I'm Wendy's ex...' But Jeffrey didn't dare to say that. He touched his nose, clearing his throat in embarrassment. "I never heard anything about that."

Disappointment was written on Josie's face at this point.

"Grandma, you don't have to worry about her moral standing. As far as I know, when she was in the US, there was a handsome, rich man courting her, and that man was willing to take care of her son. If she wasn't a good person, she would've accepted him because of his money, but she didn't."

Naturally, this rich, handsome man was actually Jeffrey, himself.

"After returning from abroad, I met her in the crew. Although there were rumors about her, they were all made up by her half-sister. Wendy is actually magnanimous and forthright, and she treats her work very seriously. To be honest, with how beautiful Wendy is, she doesn't have to work so hard, but she never thought of taking a shortcut. She works step by step, and that is a rare and commendable quality."

Josie was getting annoyed of how many praises Wendy was getting. But she still stifled her anger and asked, "Bruce, what about you? What do you think of Wendy?"

"Oh, she's great!" Jeffrey nodded. "Our entire crew have a good impression of her."

At this point, Josie was too angry to utter another word. 'Why are they all so captivated by Wendy? This woman really isn't easy to do away with! She hasn't even married into our family yet, and everyone in the family has already been captivated by her. If she ends up marrying Ryan... No!

I can't let that happen. I will never let her marry him!

Wendy had a nice holiday. The holiday came to an end on the fifth day of the New Year. She received a call from Roger, asking her to drop by at the company.

Early in the morning, Ryan drove her to the company. As soon as she got out of the car, she saw Roger waving at her.

"Wendy!" he called out.

Wendy wrapped her scarf tightly around her neck, bid Ryan goodbye, and ran towards Roger.

"Roger!"

"Happy New Year," he greeted.

Wendy smiled. "Happy New Year to you, too."

"Let's go inside, shall we?"

She followed him into the company. Fortunately, there was heating in the company, and it was a completely different atmosphere from the outside world. As soon as she got in, she took off her white down jacket.

"Roger, are there any projects lined up for me lately?"

"Well, do you want to work now?" he asked.

Wendy nodded eagerly. "I've been staying at home these days; it's so boring! I really want to get back to work. Are there any available projects for me?"

"Of course." As they walked through the hall, they entered the elevator and rode it upstairs. Roger smiled and said, "Because of how popular the Story of Concubine Ivanka is, you've become quite famous these days. There are so many scripts sent to us."

Wendy's eyes lit up.

"Wait a second. All of these roles are villains!"

Upon seeing the offered scripts, she was stunned.

The elevator doors opened. Roger took her to the corridor and explained, "It was great that you got the part as Lady Faye. But it was also a bad thing. The good thing about it is that you gained a high starting point, and you quickly became famous. The bad thing is that this play has become an instant classic, and the role of Lady Faye was a marvel to watch. If you don't perform well in other kinds of roles in the future, I'm afraid it could strain your acting career badly."

Wendy contemplated before responding, "That's also why those people have been asking me to act as villains, huh?"

"Indeed," he replied.

She now understood what he meant. It wasn't easy to work in the entertainment circle. It was great that she could shoot a masterpiece at the start of her career, but it would also impact how the audience viewed her.

Faye was a villainous role. Most of the roles that were left for her were villains.

"I refused all those roles?" Roger said.

Upon hearing that, Wendy looked relieved.

Roger chuckled. "I knew you'd understand me!"

"Of course!"

Lady Faye was a villain. If Wendy were to take another villainous role again, it could affect her reputation. She had to contemplate this properly despite how much money it could make.

If this had happened in the past, she would've already accepted the role for the sake of the payment. But now, her situation was much different. Since Raymond had now recovered, she not only had to consider the payment, but she also had to devote herself to the acting career that she loved.

"There are still some scripts left. I've read them and picked out some of them. I'll give them to you later. You can take whichever you like!"

"Okay!"

"And besides, Carter called me. He told me that he wanted you to play a part in his new play!" said Roger.

Wendy's eyes lit up.

Roger chuckled. "Actually, when the Story of Concubine Ivanka began broadcasting, Carter already contacted me. But at the time, you were taking care of Ray, and you said you wouldn't take part in any new projects for the time being, so I refused his invitation. I never thought he'd be so persistent. He contacted me again right after he heard that Ray had been discharged from the hospital."

Wendy's heart began to race.

Carter was a serious man, and he was strict with his work etiquette. But in private, he was actually more laidback. Moreover, he was a well-known director, and he had filmed several classic TV series. In other words, anything he produced would definitely be topnotch. But he had his own principles and rules. He didn't like working with an actor twice, and he preferred to choose new actors all the time.

The investor of the Story of Concubine Ivanka was Glory Media, so Carter had little right to decide. That was the reason why the leading man and leading lady of the movie were A-list stars. However, he insisted on choosing the actress for the role of Lady Faye himself. That was why Wendy got the role.

Carter had invited her to play a role in this new play when they were attending the promotional activities for the Story of Concubine Ivanka. However, Raymond was still in danger back then, so she had to refuse his invitation.

She thought that it was over. But Carter had been waiting for her. Wendy was overjoyed.

"Roger? Did you agree?"

"I told him that I'd ask for your opinion first."

Wendy blurted out, "I agree!"
