

Chapter 218 A Painful Nigh

"Since you know about Ryan, you should know how rich he is. You can give him a call. No matter how much you ask him, Ryan will definitely satisfy you. I only hope that you don't hurt my child and me."

She was right. These people were obviously here for Ryan. If these people could achieve their goal, then she would have a chance to save her and her babies' lives.

"You are quite smart, woman. My goal is indeed Ryan. As for you, as long as you are obedient, I won't hurt you. After all, the child is innocent."

The man squatted down and put a fine blade on Elena's neck as he spoke.

Elena could feel the cold blade rubbing against her face. Although she was afraid, she did not dare to open her eyes.

"I will be obedient. I only beg you not to hurt my child."

Elena could not help but cry as she begged pitifully. If it was other times, then she might have the strength to fight but now she definitely didn't want put her children on risk.

She could endure as much pain as they wanted. Only the child was her weakness.

Because she was frightened and stayed in this wet place for so long, Elena's abdomen suddenly ached.

"Hahaha, I didn't expect Ryan to be so lucky. Since you are pregnant, I will let you go today."

The man put away his knife. He had already achieved his purpose of threatening this woman. But if he really hurt someone. . . That would be bad.

The few men glanced at each other and then turned around and left the way they came earlier.

The footsteps of those people were getting further and further away until they disappeared only then did she open her eyes.

Elena looked at the empty surroundings and let out a sigh of relief. Her hands and legs both were tied up and it was really uncomfortable. So she found a place to lie down. She knew that under such circumstances, the more she resisted, the more her life would be in danger.

Elena planned to have a good rest in this dark and damp warehouse. She was really tired and couldn't take it anymore. However, when she closed her eyes, there was the sound of dripping water by her ears and she did not feel sleepy at all.

After an unknown period of time, just as she was about to fall asleep, there was suddenly lightning and thunder outside. The fierce wind blew loudly and made a whooshing sound.

Elena was always afraid of thunder and storm. She did not know what to do and her hands and feet were cold. It was really uncomfortable and painful. She could only shout for help again

But no matter how pitifully she called out, no one responded to her.

The sound of thunder kept ringing in her ears. Elena's hands were still tightly tied. It was pitch black around her and it was even hard to see her own five fingers when she stretched out her hands.

Suddenly, a bolt of lightning streaked across the inky black sky. In the moment of the flash of light, she saw an abandoned metal sheet in the gap between the rocks in front of her.

Elena crawled forward and grabbed the metal piece in her hand. She gritted her teeth and used great effort to cut the rope that bound her hands.

After cutting the ropes of her hands and feet, Elena scanned the surroundings carefully. But no matter how hard she tried to see, everything was only pitch black. Occasionally if there was a lighting in the sky, then she could see that she was in a abounded warehouse.

Knowing that she could not escape, Elena gave up on the idea of escaping.

But there was nothing here. Right now, she was pressed by hunger and cold and was tightly surrounded by fear. She was attacked and her head was dizzy. She hoped that Ryan would come soon and save her and their babies from here.

In the end, her body took defeat. Unable to hold on, Elena leaned against the wooden board behind her and fell into a deep sleep.

When she opened her eyes again, the darkness had dispersed and the morning light came in.

The terrifying and unbearable night had finally passed.

At this time, the door was suddenly kicked open by someone. The person who came strode in front of Elena with a smile on his unfamiliar face.

"So you are Elena, Ryan Monor's wife. You are quite beautiful. No wonder Ryan would marry you. "

The man spoke in a vulgar tone as he moved his fingers across Elena's face.

"What do you want to do?"

Elena's face was pale, and her body was tired and uncomfortable. Her stomach was slowly falling. The twins in her stomach were only seven months old and were not ready to born.

When the man saw the pale and ugly face of the woman in front of him, he could not help but ask, "Look at how pale her face is. She only stayed for one night and she can't take it anymore? Her body is so weak. I'm really afraid that if you suddenly die, we won't even be able to get a share of the money."
