

Chapter 264 No Matter How Close The Friends Are, They Will Still Have Secrets

Ryan came out of the hospital and originally planned to go home. But Xavier called over and said that there was something going on in the company, so Ryan could only rush back to the company to deal with business.

After all the matters were settled, it was already dark outside.

Ryan put down the work in his hands and rushed back home.

In the villa, Elena was blankly sitting on the sofa. The child in her arms had already fallen asleep.

"Madam, you have been sitting for so long. You should go back to your room to rest." When the maid saw that Elena was sitting on the sofa absent mindedly, she quietly reminded.

They already knew what happened during the day. During the time when they had worked here, they somehow understood Elena's character.

Elena was a soft and kind hearted woman. She was even respectful to all the maids and servants working here. So they believed that Elena would definitely not do anything such as to hurt children.

Hearing the maid's voice, Elena looked up at the window. It was already dark.

Elena put the sleeping child in the arms of the maid and asked, "Is Ryan not back yet?"

"Mr. Monor should be working at the company, so he may come back late. You should go and rest first." The maid was worried that Elena would take today's matter to heart and it would affect her health. So she tried to comfort her.

Elena was silent. Would Ryan also think that she pushed Sam?

"Take the child to rest first. I will wait for Ryan to come back."

There were some things that had to be said in person, or else the misunderstanding would get bigger and bigger.

Although her and Ryan's relationship was very strong, Amber and Ryan's relation was not weak either. Amber had been with Ryan all these years and helping him from behind. So it would not be strange for Ryan to believe Amber's words.

Ryan went home in a hurry. The living room was dark without a shed of light.

Ryan turned on the light in the living room and found Elena sitting on the sofa with a blank expression. When she saw him, she just stared at him without saying anything.

Ryan took off his coat and put it on the rack.

"Why didn't you go up to rest?" Ryan frowned and asked.

"How is Amber's son?" Elena quickly asked. Although she did not like Amber, the child was innocent.

Ryan came up and sat next to Elena on the sofa. He held Elena's hand. "It is a slight concussion. He will be fine after resting for a few days. You must be scared."

Elena's eyes reddened when she heard Ryan's concerned tone. "Don't you blame me?"

Elena never thought that not only did Ryan not blame her, he was even worried that if she was scared.

Ryan smiled and pulled her into his arms. He stroked her long hair and said gently, "Why should I blame you? If it was our child who fell down, we will also be worried. But that doesn't mean that we can blame anyone we want."

Ryan kissed her forehead and said softly, "You are my wife. I know better than anyone what kind of person you are. How can I believe another person's words and blame my own wife."

When he came back in the afternoon, Ryan knew that it was Sam who pushed the two children to the staircase first. And Elena ran over to save their children when they were about to fall down.

Elena nodded in Ryan's arms. She then looked at Ryan and said seriously, "Amber came to our house today to ask me about your company overseas. She said Roman had created another company and he had a strong backer. And you bought the whole Monor Group overnight. So she suspected that you have some other business overseas."

Elena paused and asked with a puzzled expression, "You two have known each other for many years and are still very good friends. Why didn't you let her know?"

Elena could not understand. Clearly, many important matters of the Monor Group could be handed over to Amber, but why did this matter could not be let her know?

"No matter how close the friends are, they will still have secrets." Ryan's expression was cold when he said that. There was a faint layer of obscurity in his dark eyes.

Just like what Amber said in the hospital today, people's hearts were separated from their stomachs.

No matter how close two persons were, there must be some things that could not be shared with each other.

It was true that Amber had helped him during these years, but that did not mean that she had the position and power to know everything about him. Ryan would never allow her to interfere his personal space.

Elena nodded, "I know you have your reasons, so I did not tell her. I just never thought that her son would have an accident in our house."

Every child was the heart of their parents. Elena also didn't want such an accident to happen.

"In the future, when she comes back to the house, you don't have to care."

Ryan knew Amber's character was paranoid. Once she suspected something, she must investigate clearly.

That was why she took advantage of the time when he was not at home to come and ask Elena.

She must have thought that it would be easy to fool Elena and dig out truth from Elena's mouth.

"I believe that from now on, Amber will not take half a step into our house." Elena said faintly.

Although Elena and Amber did not have a good relationship in the past, it was not that bad. Now that such a thing had happened, perhaps Amber would not be willing to even see her again.

"Whether she comes or not is her matter. I don't care. But why aren't you going to rest at this late hour?" Elena had not recovered for a long time and needed to rest well. It must have been a big blow to her today.

"I have been waiting for your news. I was afraid that something will happen to Sam. And I was afraid that you will ignore me because of this matter."

When Amber and Ryan left with Sam, Elena felt that she had been abandoned.

She exactly felt in the same way when she was slandered by the Lewis Family and chased out of the house after her parents' accident.

No one could understand that helpless and lonely feeling.
