

Chapter 381 It Was All A Facade

“Is that so?” Ryan replied softly.

Before Adams could turn around to see his expression, he felt a sharp pain in his shoulder.

He then heard the man’s low and cold voice, “But you need to stay alive to do that first.”

Adams felt his blood rushing down from his arm. Ryan had cut his shoulder.

“Leonardo Reynolds!” The pain made him unable to say anything. Adams glared at Ryan.

Ryan ignored him. He immediately brought Adams to continue searching rooms one by one.

However, no matter how much he searched, he didn’t see the faces he wanted to see.

Until he pushed open the door of a room at the corner.

The room was covered in darkness and there was a strong foul smell coming from it.

Ryan took an overall glance at the surroundings. Other than some abandoned furniture, there was nothing here.

He turned around to leave when a small sound attracted his attention.

Ryan stopped abruptly. Turning around, he saw a woman sitting on the floor.

When he saw her face, he was stunned on the spot. This woman was no other than Skylar who he had sent to spy on Adams.

Skylar was sitting on the ground with a haggard face. Her stomach was bulging. She was really pregnant.

Skylar heard the sound and instantly cried out as if she had received a huge shock.

"It's me!" Seeing her like this, Ryan felt very regretful. He was also responsible for Skylar.

If he hadn't sent her to Adams, such a thing wouldn't have happened.

However, Skylar acted as if she didn't know Ryan. She continued to hide in the corner, shivering like a frightened little dog.

Ryan’s eyes darkened. He tightened his grip on Adams and asked with a face full of ruthlessness. "Adams, what did you do to Skylar?"

"Heh, you clearly saw it already. Why do you need to ask me again?" Despite the pain, Adams answered with full of arrogance.

He already knew something was wrong when a woman appeared out of nowhere. Therefore, when Skylar appeared beside him, he was prepared beforehand.

When Ryan heard these words, he couldn't help but kick Adams.

Adams was kicked to the ground and rolled a few times before stopping.

Adams sat on the ground and rubbed his aching shoulder. He laughed. “Hahaha, Ryan, if you waste any more time here, your life and child might really lose their life.”

He paused for a bit and then scoffed, “Do you really think I will leave them here for you to save them?"

After saying that, he took out a mobile phone and threw it in front of Ryan.

Ryan frowned and picked up the phone. There was a video of Elena and his son being sent to the plane.

So it meant. . . His eyes violently contracted.

Adams saw Ryan’s expression changing and his face revealed satisfaction. “Leonardo Reynolds, I used to think very highly of you but it turned out you are such an idiot. I set a trap and you stepped in it so easily.”

Ryan’s hand around the phone tightened. It turned out that it was all a facade.

A facade to lure him over to execute the real plan behind his back.

Adams was still laughing while sitting on the ground. “Love truly makes people blind. I just took your wife’s name and you came here running without thinking anything. Do you really believe I will end this game this easily?"

Ryan didn’t think Adams would play such a dirty game. It was too late for him to chase after those people now.

No wonder he kept feeling that something was wrong. It was just that he was too eager to find Elena that he missed to understand Adams’s intention.

A shadow crossed Ryan’s face. He turned around and approached Adams step by step. His face was unreadable and his body emitted a cold aura.

Adams felt a little frightened when he saw Ryan like this. It was mainly because he couldn’t understand what the man wanted to do.

A silent man is often more dangerous than an angry man. Even after knowing his original plan, Ryan didn’t lose his cool. It made Adams uncomfortable.

"What are you doing? Don’t forget your family is still in my hands. If you kill me, you won’t be able to collect their corpses in this life time!" There was fear in Adams's eyes. His words somewhat shuttered. He looked completely different person from his previous mad look.

Ryan didn't waste any more time talking nonsense. He picked Adams up from the ground and pinned him against the wall. Clutching Adams’s throat, the man said in a cold voice. “Adams Redmond, if my wife loses a single hair, that will be the last day of you in this world.”

Elena had detested him because of some misunderstandings. But that did not mean Ryan had stopped loving her.

He loved her so much that he could die for her and cause others to die as well. He would not have fallen into Amber and Adams’s traps, otherwise.

Adams’s was right about one thing. His love had indeed made him blind. At least it was strong enough to influence his judgment regarding Elena’s matters.

Therefore, he couldn’t let Elena suffer in Adams’s hands.

As Ryan thought of this, he didn’t forget to press Adams’s wound on the shoulder.

Blood gushed out of the wound, making Adams cry out in pain. He glared at Ryan. “You have to know what the consequences of touching me are."

With that said, Adams gritted his teeth and pushed Ryan away in an instant, as if he was going to fight.
