

Chapter 384 In The Royal Palace

After leaving Adams's place, Ryan stopped at a fork in the road and came to Marcus's car. "Master Foster, thank you very much for today's matter. If you need my help in the future, I will do my best to repay you."

Ryan was not stupid. Marcus worked for the royal family. Since he already knew that Adams was a member of the royal family, he was risking offending the royal family to help them.

Marcus scoffed. "There's no need for you to repay me. I just hope that you won't bring Spencer along to do these dangerous things again. Go and find your wife yourself. Don't let our Foster family get involved in this mess with you anymore."

After Marcus finished speaking, he brought his two sons back with him.

Ryan stood at the side and watched Marcus go away. He did not say anything.

Michelle, on the other hand, was a little puzzled. "Mr. Monor, why don't we go to the Foster family to thank them?"

In the past, Ryan would definitely care about these etiquette.

"Marcus doesn't want the Foster family to get involved with us." Marcus had made it clear from the very beginning.

Michelle asked, "Then where do you think Madam and the child is at this moment?"

They were currently standing at the foot of the mountain. There was thick forest beside them and the silence was deafening.

Ryan glanced at the city lights that were coming from afar.

From the moment Elena disappeared from the KING headquarters to this second, he had been in a rush.

He was so anxious and distressed that he missed the main point.

He had originally thought that Adams was the main predator. However, it turned out that Adams was just a chess piece.

The mastermind was someone else.

The Foster family.

Marcus slapped Spencer's face the moment they got home. "You unfilial thing. What did I tell you? I told you not to go out, but you refused to listen. If you die there today, all my years of hard work will be in vain."

"Heh, that's right. Even if I die outside, what you care about is the benefits of Foster family. Not your own son. Marcus Foster, you are still as cold-blooded as ever."

Spencer's eyes were full of untold emotions. He did not want to recall those things when he was young, because he had never felt any warmth from Marcus.

"If I really care about the benefits of Foster family, I can nurture James again. All these years, I have put all my energy on you, but you insisted on being stubborn. You have wasted my time. "

Marcus was so angry that he could barely breathe. Why did he have such a son?

Marcus knew that the two brothers had a good relationship. Therefore, since Spencer wanted to bear all of this, he put all of his energy on Spencer. He did not care much about James.

James stood at the side. When he saw his big brother being scolded, he couldn't help but try to persuade Marcus. "Dad, Elena and her children were brought here by big brother. He can't just watch them get into trouble, right? You both are people with feelings and loyalty, why do you have to go against each other?"

"Hmph, he is asking for trouble. He caused such a huge trouble for himself for no reason." Marcus said with a dark face. "Do you know who Adams is? If you offend him. . . We, the Foster family, will be finished in the future. "

They could offend everyone in Western Europe, but not the people of the royal family. If they provoked the people of the royal family, they would definitely suffer.

Thinking about it, Marcus again got angry. "Do you think Adams is an idiot? He had already sent Elena and the child away, otherwise, would he call you there and waited for you guys to save them?"

Marcus didn't think Spencer would be such a fool. Even Ryan was fooled by Adams.

James got the subtle meaning behind Marcus's words. He came forward and asked tentatively. "Dad, by chance do you know where Elena and her child are now?"

Marcus wouldn't do or say anything for no reason. Even without being present there, Marcus could know that Elena wasn't at Adams's place, so it meant he knew something that others did not know.

Marcus sat down on the sofa. Looking at his two sons, he said with a dark face. "In the royal palace."

Marcus worked for the royal family. Today he suddenly got the news that the lost child of the royal family was found. When he went to the royal family to check the situation, he heard from an insider that a woman and a small child was brought to the palace overnight.

Marcus had already had some doubts at that time. After he returned, he used his people that working in the royal palace to find out about the situation.

And to his surprise, the woman that was brought over was said to be Leonardo Reynolds's wife.

It was at that time James told him that Spencer had gone to find Adams with Ryan.

He had warned Spencer again and gain not to cause any trouble, but he didn't expect that this ungrateful person would actually go to Adams's place.

If he hadn't rushed over today, the four of them wouldn't have returned back alive.
