participate in it?" the Second Elder asked Jiang Chen when he saw him coming. He didn't mean to offend him, but he just had to clarify. There was no expression on his face when he was speaking.

But the question made many people laugh quietly. They were curious to hear Jiang Chen's answer.

"Young Master Chen, the Wind Move Guard won't be at your side to protect you during the hunt. Are you sure you'll "Sure," Jiang Chen said.

The Second Elder nodded. "Ok. Then join the team please."

Jiang Chen went towards the disciples. It was interesting that those standing closest to him couldn't help stepping back.

"How tough Young Master Jiang is! Almost a dead duck, but still comes to hunt. Hopefully he wouldn't be lifted out of the mountain in the end," a very harsh voice was heard from the disciples.

Most people were only gossiping in a low voice, but this man scorned Jiang Chen to his face, which was quite surprising.

"That's Jiang Jun, from the west courtyard."

Someone recognized him. He was from the west courtyard. That explained everything.

Jiang Jun was the same age as Jiang Chen, but one head taller than him. He was just skin and bones. His eyes were as small as those of a mouse.

He quite enjoyed being the center of attention and was wreaking havoc upon Jiang Chen for the overwhelming grievance resulting from Jiang Chen's previous incomparable excellence.

Jiang Chen didn't bother to quarrel with him, but went on walking.

Jiang Jun felt even more cocky when he saw Jiang Chen's silence. He asked, "What's up? Young Master Jiang doesn't even know how to talk anymore?"

Jiang Jun was startled by his reaction. His face turned completely red. When he came to his senses, he said, "Pah, you think you are still who you were? Why don't I dare talk to you like that? Beat me if you are capable."

Jiang Chen shrugged his shoulders. Hardly had Jiang Jun's voice faded away, when he punched him.

Jiang Chen looked up at him and asked, "Who do you think you are? How dare you talk to me like that?"

Jiang Jian, who was standing in the crowd, laughed silently and looked on with both arms folded across his chest.

Obviously, he had plotted the whole thing. This was only the beginning.

Jiang Jun, who was following Jiang Jian's orders, had a level no higher than Cloud Seven. He was in Cloud Six as well. His nose started to bleed from this unexpected punch.

The moment Jiang Chen's st hit his face, the whole world grew quiet.

Jiang Jun stepped back with a shrill cry. Crimson blood dripped onto the lawn.

"You are dead meat!" Jiang Jun was severely offended. He threw himself at Jiang Chen, covering his nose with his hands.

"Enough!"

"It doesn't matter to me. No one has ever called me a genius. Anyway, my current state is higher than you. I am ahead of you."

Jiang Jian sneered in contempt. He suddenly looked to other disciples and announced in a high voice, "Anyone in the same team with Jiang Chen is against me."

However, he could only rely on himself to hunt the beasts.

"Yes, you are right. The Jiang Mansion has high prestige in the Hundred Thousand Mountains and has no rivals in the Southwind Ridge. But it's really trivial in the whole Fire Field."

"After all, that's the Black Dragon City. By comparison, we are only peasants from the Hundred Thousand Mountains."

"It should be ne. It's only a soldier level," the other one said.

He was holding a scimitar in his hand, which was specially prepared for the hunting disciples. He could have chosen a bow and arrow as a second weapon, but he thought it was too much.

He had a subtle feeling that everything had started over again.

He thought of the advice of his father of his previous life.

"Calm down. Nothing can beat you if you focus."

He could smell the stench in the wolf's mouth and was sure that this beast wouldn't mind his identity or be afraid of the Jiang Mansion. It would bite his throat once it got the chance.

This idea gave him a cold chill.

"It's his rst time after all."
