

Chapter 132 Having An Affair

That was how people were on the Internet. They tended to follow the prevailing trends.

While claiming to be against cyber violence, some individuals would immediately proceed to mock Galilea in the comments under her posts.

Had the controversy merely been media-induced, Galilea's followers could have claimed innocence. But then someone posted an inquiry under Galilea's team's official page, questioning the validity of the rumors linking her and Tyrone.

The team's vague emoji response, void of denial, was interpreted as affirmation by eager gossip-mongers.

Suddenly, Galilea was branded as a home-wrecker.

No matter how vehemently her fans denied the allegations, detractors twisted the narrative to implicate Galilea.

If she wasn't guilty of an affair, then she was complicit in a cyber-attack on Sabrina.

Critics were relentless, constantly finding novel ways to malign Galilea.

Supporters of Darlene and Bradley, both of whom had previous disputes with Galilea, piled on.

Galilea's name was soon a trending topic.

In response, her team released a statement clarifying Tyrone's role as merely a friend and warned the public against perpetuating false narratives.

Loyal fans backed her.

However, someone commented, "When there were rumors about you and Tyrone, and Sabrina faced curses and abuse from everyone, I didn't see you stepping forward to clarify. But now that Tyrone has spoken up, your response came quite swiftly."

Galilea's fans had unwavering faith in her. Some even held the account operator responsible for misleading the fans.

Eventually, the studio had to release another statement, announcing the operator's termination due to the error.

People reacted in different ways to the unfolding drama.

Upon witnessing Tyrone's decision to accept the interview, Bradley surmised that he intended to clarify matters for Sabrina, indicating a glimmer of remorse.

However, his perception shifted when he heard Tyrone say, "But someone crossed the line, divulging my wife's personal information, causing her distress." At that moment, he was shocked.

His wife?

Who was he referring to?

Then, the interviewer posed the question. "You're suggesting Ms. Chavez is your wife?"

Bradley's breath hitched, and he fixed his gaze on Tyrone.

On hearing Tyrone confirm that Sabrina was his spouse and they were celebrating their third anniversary, Bradley was emotionally shattered.

Sabrina had been a married woman when they first crossed paths. Ⓜ

After the interview, Bradley's perspective of Tyrone changed drastically. He was a complete jerk!

The public might have swallowed Tyrone's narrative, but Bradley, privy to inside information, wasn't fooled. He had personally witnessed the chemistry between Tyrone and Galilea. Most colleagues in the industry assumed they were dating, which meant he cheated on Sabrina for sure.

Yet now, he was hypocritically professing his love for Sabrina in the interview. It was truly disgusting.

How could someone like him be worthy of Sabrina?

Meanwhile, before the video even concluded, Galilea clenched her teeth and forcefully hurled the cup she held to the floor, her eyes filled with gloom.

She still couldn't find an outlet for her rage. In her frustration, she pushed the cosmetics and bedside lamp within reach, causing a cluttered mess on the floor.

"Sabrina! Go to hell!"

Both Galilea and Julia recognized that it would be challenging for Galilea to remain by Tyrone's side after his clarification.

A few days ago, following Tyrone's departure from her ward with Sabrina, four bodyguards arrived the next day, stating that they were dispatched by Tyrone.

One of the bodyguards explained, "Mr. Blakely mentioned that if Ms. Clifford has a relapse and the doctor can't manage the situation, we will step in to help her until she calms down. Our priority is to ensure her safety and prevent any harm."

Therefore, attempting to gain Tyrone's attention and concern by feigning self-harm wouldn't succeed.

With Tyrone out of her sight completely, Galilea contemplated making another plan, but then she stumbled upon the video.

As she noticed an increasing number of sarcastic remarks in the comments, Julia felt compelled to request the studio to issue a statement promptly.

Looking at Galilea, she sighed and inquired, "What's your next move? If you let this slide and endure, there's still a chance of regaining your popularity once the show airs..."

Just as her sentence hung in the air, Galilea bore down, her words forceful and precise. "This is not something I will forget!"

For years, she had suffered. Could she relinquish her hopes now?

She was destined to become Mrs. Tyrone! ☹️

Sporting a smile, Julia responded, "That's the Galilea Clifford spirit I admire!"

Glancing in her direction, Galilea inquired, "Have you come up with a plan?"

"I do have a plan, but its success rests on whether you can be ruthless enough."

Meanwhile, after watching the interview, Elton dialed Osiris' number immediately.

"Osiris, did you watch Tyrone's interview? Remember, I alerted you previously that there was more to Tyrone and Sabrina's relationship than sibling love, but you brushed me off. Tyrone has always avoided the press. This sudden openness, combined with the revelations he made, suggests a divorce from Sabrina is imminent. I suspect Galilea won't become his wife."

His words echoed concern for Galilea, but hidden beneath was a sense of satisfaction.

Osiris' recent insistence on shares and interference in company matters had worn him down.

Additionally, the thought of Galilea becoming Tyrone's wife unnerved him. Although he couldn't risk a falling-out with Osiris, he felt reassured now. In future confrontations over shares, he could simply reject Osiris who now stood empty-handed.

Osiris, in his mistress's apartment, watched the video, his complexion paling.

Galilea, viewed by his peers as the future Mrs. Blakely, placed him in the enviable position of being Tyrone's prospective father-in-law, a title he wore with immense pride.

However, Tyrone's public assertion that he and Sabrina were married for the past three years embarrassed him. What would others think of him now? He turned into a laughingstock!

His mistress, caught off guard, questioned, "Osiris, didn't you declare that your daughter was Tyrone's girlfriend? Why...?"

Osiris' face grew stern under her gaze.

He was at a loss for words!

His mistress hastily corrected, "Osiris, don't be upset. It's surely Sabrina who seduced Tyrone."

They were married for three years!

Osiris grunted, pulling his trousers up and heading out.

Hearing Elton's words now stirred up a mix of anger and humiliation. "Enough, Elton. I sometimes wish I was childless! What's the use of having a daughter who can't even hold on to a man? I'm now a figure of ridicule."

Soon, several calls came in from people hoping to win his favor.

The calls only intensified Osiris' fury and shame, and he couldn't bring himself to answer.

His dreams were shattered.

The realization that Sabrina was indeed Tyrone's wife hit him.

She was the daughter of Rita and another man.

If only Sabrina was his daughter!

"Wait."

An idea sparked in Osiris' mind. He summoned his secretary and whispered something into his ear.

Faced with his secretary's shocked expression, Osiris stated, "This is just a hunch. Proceed with caution, and ensure no one finds out, particularly my wife and daughter. Do you understand? This must remain confidential."

His secretary responded, "Yes, sir!"

He wondered if Osiris was out of his mind to think Sabrina was his daughter.

Exclusive Offer For You

GO NOW