

Chapter 455 Terminate The Contract

Noticing Tyrone's silence, Keilani lifted her head and caught Tyrone looking elsewhere. She followed his gaze and noticed a young woman walking away.

When Tyrone turned back to Keilani, his words were sharp. "Jennie doesn't need your gift. Stay away from us!"

This rejection left Keilani's face ghostly white. She had never been turned down like this. Frustrated, she retorted, "You think I wanted to be here? I'm only here because Kira asked me to see Mrs. Blakely and Jennie. And you? You insult my good intentions!"

"Why don't you just go, then?" Tyrone retorted.

Keilani was speechless, her gaze full of hurt as she turned and stormed away.

Keilani could tell Tyrone had wanted her to accompany Jennie into the bathroom. But then, that woman walked by, and Tyrone's demeanor changed completely, sending her away without a second thought. Who was that woman? Tyrone seemed to recognize the woman, yet they didn't even exchange greetings.

On Wednesday, a sense of unease washed over Sabrina. From the previous Tuesday to Thursday, she had been busy shooting ads. The schedule said they'd wrap up by Saturday, but delays from the models pushed everything back.

Sabrina's next task was to modify the map. As a former clothing brand manager, she knew well that the clothes' ad photos didn't require extensive editing. They were just for giving shoppers a sense of how the outfits looked.

Since the models had great figures and looked good in anything, over-editing could create unrealistic expectations. So, Sabrina made some simple adjustments to the photos and sent them off to the director.

However, the director asserted the photos needed adjustments and urged Sabrina to make thoughtful modifications. Although the director couldn't pinpoint what was off, he just wasn't satisfied with Sabrina's work.

At first, Sabrina didn't think much of it. Some clients just didn't know what they wanted. She then went through the brand's photo archive, adjusting each photo to match the established style.

Still, the director wasn't pleased and demanded that she do it again. That was when Sabrina sensed something was amiss. After digging a bit deeper, she discovered that the fashion brand was part of the Wilson family's portfolio.

Instantly, Sabrina connected the dots to Keilani.

Sabrina realized she couldn't keep wasting time on them. But quitting at this time meant paying a hefty penalty. How could she allow herself to be played tricks like this?

The autumn season was approaching, and instead of preparing for the launch of their new clothing line, they were wasting her time here. Concerned, Sabrina asked Bella's help to look into the issue.

After the investigation, it became clear to Sabrina that the original photographer, chosen by the brand, hadn't ended the contract yet and was continuing to capture photos according to the original scheme. Now, the project was on the verge of completion and about to be launched.

It hit Sabrina suddenly. The brand had always intended to use the other photographer's work. The contract with her was just a cruel joke. This was Keilani's way of getting back at her.

Without a second thought, Sabrina took legal action, suing to end her contract with the brand and seeking damages. She handed the case over to her lawyer.

Sabrina cursed. This was a frustrating delay. She quickly checked the flight ticket.

Right then, a message from Bettie popped up. "Sabrina! Are you still involved with Tyrone?"

Sabrina felt puzzled. Not only had she been involved with Tyrone, but they had also reconciled. She was planning to return home soon.

Sabrina had planned to tell Bettie about her incoming return after buying the air ticket, but Bettie texted her unexpectedly.

"What's wrong?" Sabrina asked.

"I saw him at the mall. He was with another woman today," Bettie revealed.

This made Sabrina wonder if Bettie was mistaken. She voiced her doubts.

Annoyed, Bettie responded, "Damn it! You're too naive when it comes to love. Do you think I would've told you if I wasn't sure?"

With that, Bettie sent a photo. It showed Tyrone standing close to a woman, and they seemed perfectly suited for each other.

Sabrina was stunned. Could that woman in the photo be just a friend of Tyrone's?

Sabrina zoomed in on the photo, a sense of familiarity washing over her. A sudden realization struck her. Was that Keilani in the photo? When had she gone there? And why was she with Tyrone?

In a flash of insight, Sabrina understood. Keilani's trap wasn't about getting compensation from her. It was a ploy to stalk her return and take advantage of the situation to get close to Tyrone.

Sabrina knew Tyrone attracted women.

Bettie, looking at the photo, asked, "Look! Did I misjudge him, Sabrina?"

Sabrina quickly replied, "No, you're always right. I'll confront him. If he can't give me a straight answer, I'll set him free to leave."

"Wait!"

"What's the matter?"

"He has seen me. If you confront him, he'll figure out that I'm the one who informed you. What if he comes after me?" Bettie was filled with anxiety.

"He won't have the guts to do it. If he even considers taking revenge against you, I'll confront him directly!" Sabrina declared.

Sabrina understood Tyrone's nature. He wasn't the type to seek revenge against Bettie on a thing like this. However, Sabrina hadn't anticipated Tyrone's extreme reaction, not after what had transpired with Trevor.

With a playful emoji, Sabrina forwarded the photo to Tyrone.

After a prolonged silence from Tyrone, Sabrina decided not to purchase the ticket. If his response didn't satisfy her, there was no need for the ticket. In the worst-case scenario, she could just bring Jennie here to stay for a few days.

Thirty minutes later, Tyrone finally responded. His reply was simply a lengthy surveillance video, no accompanying text.

The video captured everything, from Tyrone and Jennie entering the mall to their departure. Keilani had only been at the bathroom door for a brief minute. It was during that minute Bettie bumped into Keilani standing beside Tyrone.

The moment Tyrone laid eyes on Bettie, he was certain she'd inform Sabrina. So he had already arranged for someone to secure the video footage. The person who got the video even pinpointed when Keilani showed up.

Sabrina, after quickly viewing the clip, questioned, "Who's that woman?"

Without hesitation, Tyrone dialed her number.

The moment the call connected, Tyrone explained, "She's Royce Nelson's niece, Keilani Wilson. Just a few days back, she flew here, claiming Kira had sent her to check on Wanda and Jennie. She visited Wanda's house today at noon, and Wanda invited her for lunch..."

Tyrone went on, giving Sabrina every little detail, and ended with, "I've told her not to show up in front of me again."

After Tyrone finished, silence fell.

"Did she really go to see Wanda and Jennie? Why do I get the feeling she came for you?" Sabrina couldn't help but laugh a little.
