

Chapter 121-2

She nods and quickly exits the room. “Seth, take a deep breath,” I say and he looks up at me.

“What?” he asks, reaching for the hem of my sweatshirt and begins to help me out of it as carefully as he can.

“You were a bit short with her. She’s just doing her job,” I tell him, hoping he’ll relax just a bit.

He shakes his head. “No one, not anyone, is going to help my mate remove her clothes. That’s my job, and only mine.”

“Fine,” I say with a small giggle, but the giggle leaves almost immediately as I have to lift my arm to remove the shirts. Thank goodness I didn’t even try to put a bra on because I don’t think I’d be able to get it off of me now.

I stand and Seth helps me pull my pants off and then he gently helps me into the gown, being ever so careful not to touch the injury. I don’t look at the mark because the look on his face when he saw it was enough for me to know that I didn’t want to see it.

There’s a knock at the door and the doctor enters. “Prince Seth. Princess,” He says as he walks in. “You were bit?”

“Yes, sir,” I say with a small smile. “My wolf still hasn’t recovered from my first shift and I had to shift today. She’s just not strong enough to heal me right now.”

“And she’s pregnant,” Seth adds and the doctor nods.

“Do we know how far along?” he asks.

I shake my head and Seth speaks up. “I smelled it yesterday. My family and her dad’s were able to smell it, but that’s it. It’s likely still very early.”

“Anything else that I should know?” he asks, walking up to me. I lift my hand and begin to pull the gown down for him to be able to see.

“Her father cleaned it as soon as he could get her to somewhere safe, but he only had soap and water. I cleaned it well before we left, and the medic there had some peroxide that we put on it,” he tells him, hovering behind the poor man.

“Dr. Sofia called me. She said that you had taken human antibiotics previously when sick,” he says and looks at me. I nod to confirm. I’d taken them a few times. “I’d like to give you some. You’ve had it before and we know it’s safe for you. We know it’s safe for humans who are pregnant. Unfortunately, we don’t know if it’s safe for your pups.”

Seth’s eyes nearly bulge out of his head at this news. “Absolutely not. There has to be something safer.”

“Prince Seth, it’s already becoming infected,” he says, turning to him. “Unfortunately, the Princess is just in a bit of a predicament with her wolf. This is the safest option available.”

Seth rakes his hands through his hair and turns around, starting to pace. “What would you do if it were your mate?” I ask him and he turns to look at me.

“Princess, if my mate were in the situation you are in,” he starts to say to me, his voice very serious, “I’d give her the antibiotics and hope. We were able to get them in IV form so they will work more quickly, and I’ll keep you here while we administer them.”

I nod to him and look up at Seth, who is still pacing the room, no doubt trying to think of any other option. “Would it be possible to get an ultrasound before? Just... just in case? I’d like to see the babies.”

“Babies?” Seth says, catching my misspeak.

I look up at him and nod slowly. The doctor looks at me and nods. “I’ll send a nurse in with that in just a moment and I’ll make sure the room is ready for you.”

“Thank you,” I say to him. He gives me a sad smile as he turns and leaves the room.

“There’s more than one?” Seth asks me, walking over and taking my hand.

I nod to him and smile. “Benjamin smelled it. He said most wouldn’t recognize the scent, because it’s not common, but it’s a girl... and she has the magic.”

Seth leans down and kisses me on the head, holding me tightly against his chest.

“He didn’t want to tell you. He wanted you to figure it out. But given the situation...” I say, letting the end of my sentence fall as my voice breaks. “I’m sorry. I just want to see them... just in case.”

“Oh, Love,” he says and I can feel a few tears escaping his eyes. “It’s going to be just fine. You’re so strong.”

Seth sighs next to me, looking at me with sympathy. “I’m going to step out for just a moment and let your parents know what’s going on. I’ll be right back, Love.”

I nod and he exits the room, leaving me alone.
