Chapter 431 Matthew's Schemes

The conversation fell into silence until Hendrey asked in 'surprise', "What... Did you say? Tiffany, she's... she's gone?"

Although Veronica could not see his expression right now, she could already feel the sadness in him. It was not an agonizing feeling, but he could not pretend that nothing had happened before, considering the fact that he had shared a past with Tiffany.

"Her funeral is over, though." In other words, Veronica was wondering if he was still going to return. Yet, the man merely sighed and did not reply.

However... She had no idea Matthew would admit it himself! It turned out that the last time Monica's son was injured and hospitalized, she contacted Skyler to make arrangements for his care.

At that time, Monica happened to see a video of Sasha hugging Matthew's neck on Skyler's phone. The reason why Matthew did not decline Sasha's hug at that time was not because they were childhood friends. It was because...

He had been in love with Sasha since the beginning! As Matthew stated, he desired to marry Veronica solely to enrage Sasha and exact revenge! "Do you still have no idea why I abandoned you back then, Matt?"

"Because... Because you and I were both men and the world would never have accepted us back then. I don't want you, the outstanding heir of the Kings Family, to suffer with me. People chastised me, so I left Bloomstead and traveled abroad for my SRS to transition to a woman. I even changed my name and last name just to be with you," Sasha said, her voice choking.

Chapter 433 Yvonne's Child Is Born

Veronica sat alone outside for a long time until she shivered in the cool night breeze. At last, she rose to her feet and left. As she walked, she realized that she was back at Twilight Condominium.

While standing beneath the towering structure, she raised her eyes to look at it and a sneer appeared on the corner of her lips. Is this my subconscious trying to lead me home?

She turned around, flagged down a cab on the side of the road and returned to her own apartment. At the apartment door, she flipped the carpet to retrieve a spare key hidden beneath it. She then entered after opening the door.

Familiar, but it does not feel the same anymore. Veronica lay on the bed after taking a shower. Still, she was not feeling sleepy at all as her mind was a jumble, causing her brain to become fuzzy.

Her thoughts would involuntarily lead her to Matthew and all she could hear was Skyler and Sasha's conversations at the Twilight Condominium earlier.

When the truth was revealed, those words circled in her head like a sharp dagger. Veronica's heart was pierced every time she thought about it. It was filled with pain and anguish...

Dawn arrived and the sky brightened; she eventually dozed off. Not long after, she awoke from her sleep.

Picking up her phone to check the time, she was disappointed to see no unread text messages when she unlocked her phone; disappointment and loneliness flooded her face.

As if Veronica's argument with her parents and Master Crayson about her marriage the other day was a joke.

The agony she was experiencing right now was a tragic consequence of her obsession with Matthew. What a lesson.

Three months and nine days. Over the past month, Veronica had been acting like a wounded deer, hiding in a corner and licking its wounds when she was sad.

Time was the best healer for her broken heart, so she assumed she had already moved on. However, she could not help but feel heartbroken when she saw Matthew standing in front of her. But... Who knew that he was also in the same excruciating pain?

However, he refused to show it to the woman he loved. "Oh, it's Young Master Matthew. I'm sorry for bumping into you." Veronica took a step back and a polite small smile was plastered on her cheeks.

Matthew's heart tightened as he detected the hint of alienation in her tone. Even though she had not seen him since the breakup, in this day and age, it was impossible not to hear about him.

Veronica knew from the Internet and her acquaintances that Matthew had been working feverishly these days, preparing to launch a market in Castron by investing heavily and acquiring companies; he was very preoccupied.

The man maintained his gaze on her as if he wanted to read her emotions from her expression, but he could not figure out what she was thinking.

Veronica's unwavering eyes and indifferent expression blinded him to anything unusual. "You..." Matthew was surprised to find himself speechless after blurting out one word.

"I'll be heading off first." She smiled brightly while brushing past him and gracefully walked away. However, the smile on her cheeks vanished the

As such, this was the chance of giving the other party a hit that they did not expect when Roni was in trouble. The man, who was driving the car, snorted in laughter, "Matthew. Oh, Matthew. Since when would you agree to such a bad deal?"

He shook his head and felt that such a silent way of sacrificing was a form of happiness, but he found it silly. Unfortunately, Veronica was clueless about everything that he did.

Meanwhile, Veronica prepared a maternity bag and some necessities for a hospital stay before she headed back to the hospital. She entered the ward and saw Ivana and Yvonne, who were still unconscious.

That night, the two of them kept Yvonne company in the hospital. Both of them were inexperienced, so they were troubled the entire night by the baby that had just been delivered.

Resigned, Veronica ended up contacting the nanny that they had pre-arranged late at night to get her to come over and take care of the baby.

The next day, Yvonne finally regained consciousness and she lay in bed weakly while glancing at her baby sound asleep next to her. There was a smile on her frail face. "This little one here gave me such a hard time."

"That's true. I wouldn't dare to give birth after seeing the ordeal you went through." Veronica chuckled and asked, "You came up with several names earlier on. Have you decided which one to use?"

Veronica could not contain her laughter and she replied in fluent French, “Enchanté, je suis Veronica Murphy.” She made a friendly gesture to shake his hand and added, “I’ve seen your movies and you’re a great actor. You’re quite agile and I enjoy your action scenes.”

“Wow, you speak great French!” Stephen shrugged in surprise and grabbed her hand before lowering his head to kiss the back of her hand. However, Veronica was not quite used to such enthusiastic customs.

Larry smacked Stephen on the shoulders and formed a fist with his right hand as he pointed with his thumb at Veronica. “I need to inform you of this. She’s good at fighting and she’s comparable to you, so why don’t the two of you go for a friendly match?” he spoke gloatingly as if he was the one good at fighting and he appeared to be quite smug.

“Why did you bring this up?” She rolled her eyes at him. “Stephen is a huge fan of martial arts and he’s always keen to find a sparring partner. I’m just fulfilling his wish,” Larry spoke to Veronica in their Collins dialect. “Are you an idiot? He’s so well-built and more than six-foot tall. Look at his muscles. You must be trying to get me killed, huh?”

“What? Are you kidding me? Even if there were two of him in front of you, you would be fine.” They bantered back and forth while Stephen watched their interaction with a dumbfounded expression. Finally, he lifted his hand. “I’m sorry to interrupt, but could you guys speak in French? I can’t catch your conversation.”

Larry smiled cheekily and lifted his brows at Stephen while fueling the flames. “Veronica mentioned that your fight moves in the movies appear to be scripted... Ouch!!!”

Before he could finish his sentence, Veronica had directed a kick in his direction and she quickly explained in French to Stephen, “Don’t listen to his nonsense. I mentioned that you are tall and well-built with well-defined muscles and I would be knocked down in one single blow.”

"My pupil?" Veronica was dumbfounded. "Yeah, that's right. Do you reckon I'm good enough to learn from you?" Stephen pointed at his nose and looked at her expectantly.

"Uhh... Well... Hahaha..." She revealed an awkward smile. She did not expect Stephen to be so obsessed with martial arts to this extent.

During the first half of last year, she had not been practicing martial arts properly; instead, for the later half of the year, Crayson had implemented a rigorous training regimen for her. Earlier this year, he had even come up with different ways to train her despite her injuries.

When she had injured her left hand, he made her train to fight by just using one hand. For the entire time, she had been forced to wake to train at about 4.00AM and she was not given a break either after she arrived home from work at night after dinner. She was thoroughly exhausted from all that training.

Thanks to her dayjob and business with Vincere Games, Veronica was able to improve leaps under the immense pressure and discipline. The extent of her improvement was impressive to the point where she was astonished too.

It was merely a year and even if she tried hard, she knew that there would be a limit to her advancing. However, she seemed to have a nagging sense that there was still limitless potential within her to be discovered.

She had once asked Crayson about her condition, but he had merely brushed her off by saying, "Perhaps you're now blessed with some talent because of your idiocy."

His words sounded too perfunctory, so naturally Veronica did not trust a word of that. However, she did not pursue it any further.

"Wow! That was an awesome performance there, you fierce one! I can't believe that you've gained a pupil just like that from visiting me at work! You're one of a kind!"

“What’s the matter?” Larry saw Veronica’s serious expression. “What happened?”

“Oh, God! Do you want us to accompany you to find her?” Stephen spread his hands. “Many hands make light work.”

“It’s okay. You should continue filming. I have a friend over there to look for her. Let’s get in touch later.” After Veronica said that, she stated to Larry, “I’ll have my leave. I can’t delay this matter any further.”

“Okay. Stay safe on your way. Let me know when you find her.” “Alright.” Veronica jogged away from the crew and drove back to the city center.

"Well..." Veronica touched her head and thought hard before explaining, "You can't blame Matthew."

"Who should I blame, then?"

"You should blame m-me." So, Veronica took all the responsibility on herself and said embarrassingly, "He didn't think we did not get along. However, when we were dating, I felt a gap between us and our values did not overlap. Moreover, our hobbies are different, and we have no common topic, so we are out of sync."

Although the affair between Matthew and Sasha made Veronica sick, Matthew had saved Veronica numerous times. Although Veronica still couldn't understand why Matthew saved her, she was grateful.

"Besides, I don't want to get into a relationship now. I am doing good in the company and working hard to further my career. My career is getting better." Veronica gave an excuse that even she herself thought was flimsy.

"You—" Elizabeth frowned and looked at Veronica with doubt as she didn't believe it. "What is this? Are you trying to use a flimsy reason to shut me up?"

Elizabeth was furious, so she gave Veronica another slap on her head. "Both of you are liars!"

"Ouch!" After receiving a slap, Veronica shrank back and chuckled guiltily. "Please don't be angry, Grandma. You can't force a relationship. Besides, although I am not with Matthew, I still love you. Could it be that you don't love me anymore because of this?"

"Yvie gave birth at Westcross Children Hospital. The child is about six pounds. It's a boy." Conrad accurately told Elizabeth about the child.

It was evident that everything was under Conrad's control. Veronica suddenly felt that Yvonne could not easily leave Bloomstead now. After Conrad said that, he turned to look at Veronica. "Roni, you're the one who sent Yvie to that hospital, right?"

Veronica said Yvonne had gone abroad a moment ago, but Conrad exposed her lies. Veronica held the fork and scooped some salad to her mouth, pretending to be calm. She wanted to avoid the subject.

However, Elizabeth looked at Veronica with a meaningful gaze. There was a rare seriousness that appeared on her wrinkled face. "Is that so?"

She did not address Veronica affectionately. Instead, Elizabeth asked this bluntly. Hearing the stately tone of Elizabeth, Veronica did not dare to hide it, so she nodded and admitted, "Yes."
