

Chaos Devourer System

#Chapter 261: Channeling The Anger Into Brutality 1 - Read Chaos Devourer System Chapter 261: Channeling The Anger Into Brutality 1

Chapter 261: Channeling The Anger Into Brutality 1

Zeras looked blankly at the pair of shoes in his hands as they soon disappeared back into the spatial ring before he brought out the Astral Robe.

[Object Found]

[Scanning Object...]

[Name: Astral Robe]

[Grade: Mythic Tier]

[Function: Mainly a defense artifact. It grants protection against any type of difference, mainly elemental, and sucks it away into the surrounding space]

[Explanation: User of this artifact would be able to defend against any and almost all attacks.]

[Disadvantages: Every defended attack sucks away a large amount of Mana from the User.]

[Important Note: According to the

System's prediction. Once all the ruins are activated. The Host will be invisible below the Galaxy Rank stage!]

Looking at the panel, the Astral robe disappeared from Zera's hands, entering back into his spatial ring.

Once it disappeared, another object appeared in Zera's hands. A small black earring with different crimson-colored runes around it.

[Object Found]

[Scanning Object...]

[Name: Chaos Earring]

[Grade: Legendary Tier]

[Function: Hard to gauge! The Chaos Earring is a minor part of a larger Divine grade artifacts. It should enable the User to better gain control of his Chaos Mana and sense the chaotic elements in the environment!]

And immediately, Zeras wore the earrings on his right ear, blood dripping down due to the sudden forced open hole, but he ignored it as he packed all the objects in his spatial ring before opening his door room and exiting.

— — —

The EIA training room was just like any other structure in the EIA: Abysmally large and also requiring a different level of authority to activate.

It was rapidly closing in on sunset when a young man with snow-white hair and wearing a dark-colored earring appeared before its large doors.

Zeras opened the door to the place before entering into it.

The first floor was where Gaia trained and belongs to those with only level one authority, and Zeras didn't bat an eyelid as he moved towards the elevator at the side.

Entering into it, the doors zipped to a close as Zeras clicked the number 4 button.

Immediately, a red screen of light filled the entire elevator, concentrating mostly on the watch Zeras wore before quieting down as the AI voice rang out:

"Request to visit Level 4 authority training room approved..."

"And immediately the elevator moved, shuffling Zeras to the fourth floor of the structure..."

IIIIING

Opening up, Zeras was placed in a completely unfamiliar environment, with different training objects and rooms around the place.

Gravity Training room, Intense Radiation Halls, Strength Measuring Machine, Mach speed measuring equipments, Robotic Cultivation Fighting. The amount of training halls in the place was almost limitless, and what Khan loved the most was there were hundreds of the same room around, which meant he could choose his pick.

There was absolutely no need to stay in the same room with another, giving the user much needed privacy and also avoiding disturbance from others.

And immediately, he moved to the closest room beside him, the Mach Speed Measuring equipment room.

There were hundreds of equipment in the room all targeted towards measuring speed and Zeras headed to the one placed in the last place.

A circular revolving ball of about five meters hanging midair with the aid of invisible electromagnetic waves.

And immediately he made his way to the equipment, appearing before it.

A green beam of energy appeared from it, shining in his body as it made a beep sound before a 2-meter tall door opened up.

“An holographic appeared, revealing a list:

Δ Mach 1: The speed of sound

Δ Mach 2: Twice the speed of sound

Δ Mach 3: Thrice the speed of sound

— — —Δ Mach 12: Twelfth times the speed of sound.

And immediately Zera’s hands moved to the first button, clicking on it.

Immediately, the ground beneath his feet began slowly revolving.

Δ Simply touch the ball or say “stop” once you reach your limit

WHIRL

WHIRL

WHIRL

The machine began revolving around with a speed that matched that of sound, yet Zeras had no change in expression as even though the machine ball was revolving fast, his legs were moving even twice faster!

Immediately, his hands moved as he clicked on Mach 2.

WHIIIRL

WHIIIRL

Mach 3.

The ball swirled with horrifying speed sending sharp whistling air around the entire place that should have caused deafening noise, but there was nothing like that as the electromagnetic waves were strangely able to negate the results of such speed.

Zeras moved with horrific speed, his legs becoming a blur of how fast he was moving. Yet, it still wasn't enough, his heart was still beating so slow.

"Activate Mach 4..."

And immediately the ball began revolving with horrifying speed as blood began sipping out of Zera's lips and his stomach area.

His body made crackling sounds, his muscles which were slowly repairing themselves and his wounds that were slowly closing up began re-opening.

"Activate Mach 5..."

Minutes passed as the ball kept revolving with horrific already creating an illusion of it standing still due to its speed.

If someone were to look through the ball, they would see a crimsoned liquid reaching about a quarter of the ball.

NNNNNGGGGGGGHHHH

A groan of pain escaped his lips as blood began dripping out of his wounds and tears appearing on his skins.

RIIIIIIP

The sound of cuts appearing on the skin resounded through the confines of the object as Zeras kept moving at Mach 5 for a good five minutes before slamming his hand on the ball that immediately paused in space.

Now he had realized his limit, he could move up to a speed of Mach 5! Anymore and his body would break down!

Blood dripped down from every part of his body, but his eyes remained emotionless as a pair of shoes appeared in his palms.

Gently, Zeras put the Void Walker on, as its form shifted and directly adjusted to his leg size.

Standing up from the small pool of blood, he looked at the holographic as his hands moved towards the button.

“Activate Mach 6!”

WHIIIRL

BOOOOM

The Temple!

A large structure which could rival that of a three-story building on Earth. It was white and radiated an ancient aura, as if having been present since the dawn of time.

Strangely, unlike the other buildings around the place, it wasn't splattered with blood at all, and its white painting was still incredibly neat as if it just got painted today.

"Finally," Liam mused, turning his head behind him where the sun could be seen slowly setting, and the snow was beginning to become scanty.

It was a sign of the arrival of the Undead and in such a new environment, they definitely don't want to be out, as the concentration of the undead in this place was unknown.

BOOOOOOOOOOOOOM

Suddenly, a loud explosion rippled out to them from afar as the group rapidly turned to the side.

Far away around 100 Kilometers, a green pillar of energy could be seen tearing through the sky, a ripping open a hole in the sky.

The strange phenomenon of the pillar of energy soon disappeared just as it came, as the pillar faded away, the only sign of its former existence being the circular hole ripped open among the clouds.

"What...what is that?" Theodore's shocked voice echoed out to the group as the group involuntarily turned to Liam, who had his eyes narrowed.

'That Aura...' It was strange and completely out of this world. Yet it carried a hint of familiarity, just like the Mana present within him but also different.

One thing was sure, that energy wasn't from a human. He would have been inclined to say perhaps an undead but even the beast they fought with right now didn't have such an aura.

"It must be other adventures that came in with us. Once we garner everything we need here, we'll be checking it out next, together." Liam as he took the first step among the rows of steps going up to the temple, the group quickly following behind him.

DRUUUUUUUMMMM

The sound of the gigantic five meters door opening resounded through the hall as the group immediately stepped in.

"Khan." Liam called out as Khan ordered in his minds.

'Activate Nanorunic Eyes...' Immediately, the entire world changed becoming a long darkness where four red lights could be seen which were from the four others and as his gaze pierced forward reaching even the end of the hall, there was no other energy apart from their own.

"There's nothing..." And immediately, Liam and Sharon closed the door shut. It speaks of the weight of two awakeners one at the Meteor rank stage both has to work together to push open the door. It was no wonder they were no signs of undead within.

"No Undead will be able to push open this door. And since there's no other creature but us, then we're pretty safe. We will stay here for the night, and browse through this temple in the morning..." Liam offered, to which the group agreed too.

Even though Mitsuri managed to heal them back up with her ability. The exhaustion on the mind was present and the need for rest was intense. Asking them to start checking for treasures and analyzing the temple might lead to them missing some pretty important clues. So it was better to rest for the night before continuing what they came here to do.

In the long hall, they were three large doors, and Zeras pointed to one at the side as the group immediately moved. Therein were mats and bunker beds spread across the medium-sized room.

It seems this was the place used for rest in the temple. And immediately each of them moved towards the bunker beds, as Sharon jumped to the bed above while Theodore slept in the one below.

The two strangely didn't argue for them and less than 10 minutes later, the sound of gentle breathing and soft snore echoed through the room.

Unlike the men, Mitsuri preferred to sleep on the mat instead, and strangely they were greatly softer than anything she had ever felt which was actually intriguing and made her raise an eyebrow, but she too soon fell asleep less than five minutes later.

Remaining were now, Khan and Liam, with Khan boringly reclining on the large door and Liam looking at the group sound asleep.

"Tomorrow morning, and we'll have survived in this place for four days. That with not many casualties, too. It's really commendable." Liam began in the silence of the night, to which Khan gave a nod too.

"I know that defeating that beast must have taken quite the trouble. Thank you, Khan, for preventing us from becoming beast food..." Liam suddenly said as he stood upright and bow his head.

"It's nothing..." Khan said pushing it off. He wasn't trying to protect them or anything. It was simply because of the quest mission. Even if the group had decided to run, he would have stayed back to fight it, as the rewards were just too tempting. Liam got it all wrong.

"Actually It's something. It is everything..." Liam said, sitting down on one of the mats.

"Really?"

"Yes. You know, when I was resisting that ice ball from the beast, and it ended up defeating my fire art. I felt like the entire world was crashing down on my chest as I found myself going unconscious beyond my ability. None of you could match that creature and I know you will all end up dying to it, I'm the only one with the least chance, yet I was knocked out so quickly.

I fell into despair at that moment, as I know I've failed my duty!"

"Your duty? Was that?" Khan asked with a raised eyebrow. To him, Liam was just another adventurer on this mission but the strongest and therefore the group is more inclined to listen to his opinion. There isn't any duty except for completing the mission given.

So what was the duty Liam was mentioning?

Chapter 263: Channeling Anger Into Brutality 2

"Activate Mach 6,"

Immediately, the ball started revolving at a speed six times that of sound. Such a speed should have caused his veins to beginning rupturing within him, yet Zeras kept moving his legs with speed, managing to avoid getting blown off.

His eyes narrowed in slight surprise as he watched the shoe suddenly draining his Mana and in return, a white aura infused with slight blue covered his legs making him gain absolute control of it.

Moving his legs felt like simply thinking, and the strange white aura also made him forget his legs even had any weight at all. It was like his lower body was nothing, both air and Zeras faced not a single resistance.

Like that, he continued on for the next five minutes, before making his next decision.

“Activate Mach 7...”

VROOOOOOM

The revolving ball immediately started spinning around twice faster than normal, as Zeras felt his body straining hard to keep up. The Void Walker immediately brightened up even more as Zeras felt his Mana being drained at a horrific speed.

[Warning: Host's Mana is being drained rapidly! It is advised Host stops!]

The system notification panel appeared, but Zeras paid it no attention, instead staring intently at his Mana points decreasing.

After 30 seconds...

“Stop...” Zeras shouted out as the revolving speed immediately slowed down before standing still.

The door to the place opened up as he exited the machine. Walking towards the bench at the side, he sat down on it, as puffs of white hair exited his nose and mouth.

Regaining half his strength, Zeras took off the boots before storing it in his spatial ring.

Now he had an approximate of how fast he truly was.

Using his normal bodily strength, the peak speed was Mach 5, and he could keep it up for five minutes. Anymore, and his body will reach its limits and crumble due to the pressure and also horrifying friction.

If he transformed to his Astral Titan form, then his bodily durability will increase to twice as normal, and he might last for double the ordinary time, which was ten minutes before he once again crumbled.

It was safe to say his peak speed was simply Mach 5 for 5 minutes.

But as he puts the Void Walker on, then he would be able to easily run at Mach 6, even reaching up to Mach 7, but it came with an exchange of his Mana.

The more Mana he has, the more he could use the shoes. And Zeras had checked out how the Mana consumption worked.

Being at the Middle Meteor Rank Stage, Zeras had a total of 300 points in his Mana Core energy, and his Mana was at the peak when he put on the shoes.

Moving at a speed of Mach 6, Zeras noticed he was exhausting 0.6 Mana points for every one second! And he ran at Mach 6 for Five minutes, meant he used a total of 180 Mana points.

When he activated Mach 7, his Mana exhaustion rose to a frightening 4 Mana points in one second, and he lasted for 30 seconds, which meant he exhausted a total of 120 Mana Points!

Therefore, if he were to run at his peak speed with the Void Walker on which was Mach 7 and with his Mana at the very peak. He would be able to keep that up for a minute and a quarter of a minute more before he ran out of Mana completely.

It was safe to say his Maximum speed with the Void Walker on was Mach 7 for a minute. And also, Zeras noticed the Void Walker uses Mana only. Even though he had a large amount of energy, a result of his ability to absorb life essence, he couldn't use it to activate the Void Walker, since that only uses Mana.

With good knowledge of his speed, Zeras finally placed the Void Walker back into his spatial ring.

And the next thing he wanted to test was his strength and combat ability.

Immediately, he moved out of the training room and headed towards the Robotic Cultivation Fighting Room.

It was a large space around the size of 100 meters in length and width, making it expansive.

Once he stepped into the room, a small holographic appeared in front of him as Zeras stretched out his palms and placed it on the screen, a beep sound ringing out in the next second.

"The User's Cultivation has been scanned. Middle Meteor Rank Stage identified. You are only permitted to challenge an Early Meteor rank stage at the least and Early Cosmic rank stage at the best..." The AI voice rang out as the holographic in front of Zeras changed, turning into a long list.

△ Choose The Cultivation Stage Of Your Robotic Opponent△

△ Early Meteor Rank Stage△

△ Middle Meteor Rank Stage△

△ Late Meteor Rank Stage △

△ Early Cosmic Rank Stage△

IMPORTANT NOTE: Unlike Regular Awakeners, the Robots cannot be infused with genetic abilities. Therefore, they were complemented with physical strength instead. That means every one of their attack is the ultimatum of any attack from an awakened at the same stage. Therefore, they are slightly stronger than normal awakeners at the same level.

Zeras read the important note, given a nod and immediately made his choice.

“The User has chosen to challenge an Early Meteor Rank Stage...” The AI voice rang out, followed by the space in the ground ten meters away from Zeras opening up and a 1.8 meters tall humanoid robot exited.

It was coated up to toe with dark-red metal plating and stood at the same height as him.

“Fight begins in 3...2..1.”

Immediately, a red dot appeared in the robot's eyes, concentrating on Zeras as it immediately moved towards him faster than what an ordinary Early Meteor Rank Stage would!

‘Let me see how long it will take to destroy an Early Meteor Rank expert...’ Zeras muttered, watching the robot appear in front of him, a punch slamming towards his face.

BOOOOOOM

Chapter 264: Channeling The Anger Into Brutality 3

Channeling The Anger Into Brutality 3

“Activate The Eyes Of Chaos...” Zeras whispered before getting into a stance as both fists were raised up to his face, and he lowered his waist, rooting both his legs on the ground!

The robot closed in on him, crossing the ten meters in three seconds, but to Zeras using the Eyes of Chaos. It was... slow!

BOOOOOOM

A punch slammed on his face tearing through it completely, but it was only a mirage as Zeras already shifted his head to the side, dodging the punch at the last second, before throwing out a full powered punch with his right fist slamming on the robot's jaw.

It was A Smooth Uppercut!

A figure was raised for a meter into the air before getting dragged down by gravity, but before its feet could touch the ground, Zeras took a step forward, arriving at the robot's side before.

BOOOOOM

A circular shockwave rippled through the place as his punch made contact with the robot's stomach area, and it was sent smashing with horrifying speed into the wall!

BANNNNG

A figure was lodged into the wall amidst the sound of metals falling to the ground and small sparks of lightning and flames appearing on its body.

"Congratulations. You have won and in five seconds too..." The AI voice rang out as Zeras heaved a sigh of relief.

'On a one-on-one, I can kill an Early Meteor Rank Stage Expert in five seconds while going all out. But unlike this robot, an awakener would possess abilities and the fight might grow tough considering the ability possessed. Still, it should at most take ten seconds!' Zeras analyzed as the robot was sucked into the wall, and the blue holographic panel appeared in front of his face once again as he quickly made his choice.

"You have chosen to challenge a Middle Meteor Rank stage robot..." The AI voice declared as Zeras watched another robot exit the ground ten meters away from him.

"Fight begins in 3...2..1. Go."

Immediately, two red beams of light flashed out from the base designed to be the robot's eyes.

Furthermore, there was a core at the center of its chest undulating with a powerful red energy and red lines emanated from the core, spreading through its entire metallic body, greatly resembling veins attached to the heart.

'It's at least twice stronger than the first...'

BAANNNG

Immediately, the robot moved, a pothole appearing underneath its feet.

BOOOOOM

The air was immediately torn apart as the Robot covered the entire ten meters in a single second, a punch rapidly tearing at Zera's face.

BAAANG

The air was violently blown apart as Zeras also punched forward, colliding head on with each other as space quivered for the few seconds, their hands were held together before...

BOO OOM

Both figures were immediately sent backwards, as Zeras took three steps backwards and the robot took five steps backwards.

BAANNNG

And immediately Zeras moved, appearing instantly in front of the robot as he threw out a punch slamming head-on towards the robot, but his fist hit nothing as the robot managed to shift to the side at the last second.

Shifting a single step back backwards, Zeras immediately bent as he tore out a second punch instantly, slamming on the robot's defenceless stomach area as it was immediately raised its feet and sent flying into the distance, but it quickly landed back on the ground, its legs skidding backwards.

BAANNNG

A kick magnified in front of its face, to which the robot raised both hands upwards at the last second.

BOOOOOM

And immediately, it was sent even crashing backwards with twice its former speed, landing on the wall.

BOOOOM

Cracks spread around the place as Zeras appeared instantly in front of the robot while kicking forward.

HYAAHHHH

BAAAANNNG

A leg rapidly extended forward, smashing against the robot's chest as its chest immediately caved in and then!

BOOOOOM

The energy core within it was forcefully smashed to pieces, generating a mini explosion that pushed Zeras away as he gently landed on his feet, ten meters away in his fighting stance.

“Congratulations, you have successfully defeated the robot. Total time taken was 80 seconds!” The AI announced as Zeras stood upright from his standing position.

‘I went all out, and it took a total of 80 seconds. If it were a true awakener, it would have taken more, but I should still be able to decimate them in two minutes maximum...’
Zeras analyzed the robots disappearing into the wall with the holographic panel appearing once again, and he made his choice.

“You have chosen to challenge the Middle Meteor Rank Stage robot again. Are you sure you want a rematch?” The AI voice rang out, to which Zeras clicked the “yes” button.

Immediately another robot appeared in front of him in every way like the last one and also standing ten meters away.

“Fights begin in 3...2..1. Go.”

And immediately the robot moved, appearing in front of Zeras who stood there as if numbed before raising his right hand forward and interlocking his fingers together.

“Chaotic Existence Skills: Hollow Domain!”

He wanted to know just how long he could defeat a Middle Meteor Rank Stage, but this time while using his skills.

BOOOOOM

The robot appeared punching at kicking at Zera’s head but the figure in front of it immediately dispersed into smoke.

Immediately beneath his feet, shadows appeared instantly covering all the places and soon a large ball made of thick abyssal shadows appeared in the centre of the hall.

Zeras sat down on the throne as he slowly stretched his hands towards the robot while imagining.

And just as he imagined, a gigantic hand made of abyssal shadows appeared around the robot.

Clenching his hands together, the gigantic shadow hand also closed tightly as it began squizzing in the robot who resisted with all its strength as its core in its chest brightened up powerfully and immediately Zeras was unable to completely close his hands!

"I understand, I finally understand!" Zeras mused like a madman as he suddenly tightened his fingers at once.

BOOOOOOOOOOM

Chapter 265: Channeling The Anger Into Brutality 4

Channeling The Anger Into Brutality 4

BOOOOOOM

The robot immediately exploded into showers of metallic objects that rained on the ground, the shadow ball disappearing as Zeras looked at the crushed metal that slowly sank into the ground in front of him.

"Congratulations, You have defeated the robot. The total time taken was 20seconds..."

Zera's furrowed eyebrows finally relaxed. He was starting to gain an understanding of his Hollow Domain skill.

It mainly worked on the principle of imagination, just like his absolute morph skill but at an even higher level!

Within his domain, Zeras could form anything he could imagine in his head. His most loved way of using the domain was to form those gigantic hands from the abyssal shadows present on his domain.

Actually, the hands were made of shadows and therefore gas-like, but Zeras could decide to strengthen it up to unbelievable levels. Yet, it came at an important price. His energy!

During his fight with the robot, he noticed the robot was able to resist his death claws, but Zeras was able to immediately crush it in the next second by simply increasing the hardness and strength behind the palm, which in turn sucked away his energy from a 780 to 500!

Even though the energy intake was very high, perhaps a little too high, it still benefitted him because, with enough energy, then he would basically become a god! The Hollow Domain comes with the ability of imagination. With a will, he could form a death hands and with another will, he could make them become a hundred, although it would also take a large amount of energy.

Then that means with enough energy then he could potentially do anything. With enough energy, he could create a million death hands with enough energy, perhaps he could even stop time or reverse it within his Hollow Domain.

He could kill his opponent with a thought and destroy millions by simply saying the word die. It all boiled down to one thing, and that was energy, and Zeras had a way to increase his energy massively.

And that was simply visiting a graveyard and absorbing the life essence of people therein or simply going on a killing spree, and he just knew of a simple way to do all that.

His Next Mission!

With his Hollow Domain out of it, his next skill was his absolute morph gene, but his Mana has been currently completely drained.

The last thing of skill would be his Astral Titan Gene. But there was no need! He already understood how long it would take for him to defeat the robot with his Astral Titan Morph, and it was 40 seconds.

His Astral Titan morph increases the durability of his body while also increasing his strength. If his strength was improved to twice what it was, then it would mean he would potentially take twice less the time for him to defeat the robot.

Immediately he clicked on the holographic, making his next choice,

"You have chosen to fight a Peak Meteor Rank stage robot." The AI voice announced as the robot appeared from beneath the ground.

"3...2..1. Go." The AI announced as the robot disappeared and they both exchanged hundreds of moves...

— — —

50 minutes later...

A figure could be seen kneeling on the ground motionless with a pool of blood beneath his feet.

"Congratulations, You have defeated the robot. Total Time Taken 20 minutes!"

Zeras kneeled on the ground motionless as he slowly stood upright from the ground, finally raising his head.

Across the side of his head, a rough-cut line of about five centimeters could be seen blood dripping out continuously, blood dripped down the corner of his mouth and his right eye has been completely smashed in!

SPLAT

SPLAT

Blood dripped down his clenched fist, landing on the ground as Zeras turned his head to the side.

TUUUHH

He spat out blood from his mouth, a bloody tooth rolling down as his feet shook in exhaustion, barely able to keep his standing.

“Activate Regeneration!”

Immediately, his facial wounds closed up and even his broken off tooth grew back. Zeras looked at the wall in front of him where the robot’s body laid crumbled, or to better put it, a large pile of machinery that laid crumbled on in the wall having been decimated through and through...

‘It took fifty minutes to take it out while going all out without using my skills...’ Zeras analyzed as the notification panel appeared in front of him, and he clicked on it.

“You have chosen to fight a robot at the peak Meteor Rank Stage. Are you sure you want a rematch.”

“Yes.”

“Fight begins in 3...2..1. Go.”

Immediately, the robot appeared instantly in front of Zeras, kicking forward.

It was horrifyingly fast!

BOOOOM

The place where Zeras head was shock chaotically as Zeras managed to avoid the kick and quickly locked his two fingers.

“Chaotic Existence Skill: Hollow Domain!”

Immediately a shadow spread throughout the entire place covering both figures.

Zeras watched the robot which was down on the steps of his domain and immediately cracks spread where it stood as a fist blasted on Zera's head with speed, but he remained seated without moving a single muscle.

And suddenly the robot was sent smashing to the side.

BOOOOOM

Its body bounced off the ground repeatedly as it skillfully turned, landing on its two feet.

It immediately turned towards Zeras once again as it began running towards him with speed.

And slowly Zeras stood up from his feet, slight sweat droplets dropping his face as he closed his eyes in concentration and slowly placed both hands above each other before suddenly pressing down.

KABOOOOOOOOOOOOM

A devastating explosion of metallic objects that flew around the entire place was the robot was instantly reduced to nothing!

"Congratulations, You have defeated the robot. Total time taken: 1 minute."

And immediately Zeras undo his ability, the system notification panel appeared.

[Energy: -400]

"I truly I'm a fool!"

Chapter 266: Channeling The Anger To Brutality 5

Channeling The Anger Into Brutality...

"I truly am a fool..." Zeras laughed mockingly. Had been given such a basically supreme ability and with such an easily by passable condition, and even given the solution.

And what had he been doing?

Simply running around like a fool. He had truly grown arrogant and in turn stupid!

The devilish being was able to destroy me and suck all my energy dry before I could even begin using my abilities. Perhaps, If I had immediately used my Hollow Domain to try to injure him even at the cost of my last energy and then use the ancient god finger of my Slumbering Titan gene instead of Morphing into my Astral Titan form, then I wouldn't have been defeated so pathetically.

But seeing him, even though I knew he was truly stronger than I am, I still didn't go all out at the first second, I wanted to compete with him in brute strength. How foolish!" Zeras muttered with a mocking smile.

He still had an ability he hadn't even tested since all this while, and that was the Ancient God Finger skill. The third skill he obtained from his Slumbering Titan gene. The devilish being was the perfect test subject against the ability, yet Zeras didn't use it, instead shifting to his Astral Titan form.

By the time he could even consider using it, he has been drained completely of energy!

There was no doubt his defeat was also partly due to him.

But the devilish being was truly strong, at least stronger than his current level. With the system scan, Zeras was able to pick up on his cultivation, and it said it was the Late Cosmic rank stage. It was a level of power he couldn't dream of matching while only being at the Middle Meteor Rank Stage.

But the real shocking thing was Instructor Moneca who severed the devil in two halves and almost killed him with a single slash.

Of course, he knew all the EIA instructors were supposed to be strong, but never would he have thought Instructor Moneca was so strong.

He had once seen her sever a Middle Meteor Rank beast into two and thought her limit shouldn't be too far from that. But he truly was stupid!

A vein popped on his head as he smashed his hand on the holographic panel.

"You have chosen to fight an Early Cosmic rank stage robot." The AI voice rang out as the ground ten meters before him slowly opened up and from within a robot emerged, entirely different from the first.

For one, its entire body was a strange, completely dark metal that naturally radiated a dark light. Instead of only its chest brightening up, there was also an energy core on its forehead and another one in the place just below its navel area.

It has a total of three energy cores, and its mere presence made Zera's hair stood on end...

"So this is what a true Cosmic Rank Stage looks like..." Zeras mused, his heart unable to stop quaking within him.

— — —

“So weak hearted!”

— — —

The whisper of the devilish being echoed into his ears as Zeras clenched his teeth tightly.

Immediately, his muscles wriggled around his body like snakes as Zeras got into an airtight stance, red veins appearing in his right eyes and a black dot appearing in his left eye.

“Fight begins in 3...2..1. GO!”

“Bring It on...”

KABOOOOOOOOOOOOM

The ground beneath the robot sank in for a meter as Zeras watched it moved towards him with horrifying speed even though his Eyes of Chaos.

BOOOOOOM

The leg smashed forward with a beastly aura, and he immediately jumped upwards trying to dodge when...

BAAAAAAAAM

A figure blasted through the air with speed, smashing a one-meter dent into the wall.

BLEEEERGCGH

Blood splashed out of Zera's mouth as his eyes widened to saucers.

‘It's too fast... So fast, even though I sensed its attack, I'm still too slow to react.’

“Activate Dash!”

BLIIIIITZ

BAAAAAAAANG

A punch slammed on the place where Zera's head was, but it suddenly disappeared into particles as the robot turned its head to the side, where a crouched figure could be seen.

Air puffed out of his nose and mouth as Zeras rested his hands on his laps.

He was already exhausted! The previous injuries were not completely healed yet, and he had been fighting for hours now without resting.

He felt like dropping on the ground and taken a nap. Even if had to pay 100 years of life in exchange for that. That was just how exhausted he was.

But the same couldn't be said for the robot, who left a gigantic hole where it formerly was and appeared instantly in front of Zeras.

BOOOOOM

A hand slashed down diagonally over Zera's head, whose eyes widened as he suddenly jerked his head back at the last second.

BOOOOOM

A straight line appeared on the wall behind him as Zera's eyes widened in shock.

"I...I dodged it?"

BOOOOOM

Another punch slammed towards his head as he took a small step backwards, and managed to dodge it again by an inch.

Yet, blood drained down his eyebrow, a result of the sharp wind that comes with every of the attack.

BANNNG

The robot suddenly revolved with speed and kicked at Zeras chest.

CLAAAANNG

It was the sound of metal clashing against metal.

And immediately Zeras was sent skidding backward for twenty meters...

Digging his leg hard into the ground, he finally stopped himself as the Astral Sword shone with a cold light as smoke puffed out of his mouth.

"I'll defeat you...Even If I have to die, I'll defeat you!" Zeras said and he faded away from the place where he stood.

BAAAAAAAANG

BAAAAAAAANG

BAAAAAAAANG

BAAAAAAAANG

Hundreds of moves were exchanged as Zeras went all out his hand becoming a blur due to the speed at which he was moving.

He had been drained completely of energy, his body was screaming out to him in pain as his wounds tore open once again, but everything had changed to Zeras.

He was no longer fighting a robot, he was fighting with the devil that stepped on his head a day ago.

And he will either kill it or die trying!

Chapter 267: First Time Earning The Respect Of The System

A Heart Demon!

SHRIIIIIING

A sword slashed down vertically as the air was sliced into two.

CLAAAANNG

A fist stopped it dead in its track as Zeras hung in the air, with his astral sword that refused to budge!

KKKKKK

His teeth girded tightly against each other as he pressed his sword unto the fist, cutting the robotic hand to its wrist when suddenly a punch blasted towards his left eye as Zeras raised his head at the last second, using his chin to take the blow instead.

BOOOOOM

And immediately, he was lifted higher into the air as he was sent skidding backward.

Instantly the robot appeared in front of him, another punch already blasting toward his face and he moved his head in the last second.

SLASH

Another sharp cut decorated his face, and immediately he bent his waist slashing with speed towards the Robot's neck who raised both hands upward blocking the attack.

BOOOOOM

Immediately, it stepped forward, smashing another fist toward his face as Zeras raised his sword to his face.

CLAAAANNG

The punch slammed on the blade side as he grinded his teeth together, struggling to stop the punch from inching closer, but it still was a lost cause as the punch slipped past his sword and landed squarely on his face.

BOOOOM

Immediately, he was sent smashing into the wall, blasting a human shaped hole through it.

BLEEEERGGGH

Blood and bits of his intestine poured out of his mouth as a force slammed head-on into his stomach.

BAAAAAAAANG

His head that jerked forward was smashed onto the wall once more as his brain shook within his skull and the world flashed a white and black color.

BAANNNG

BAANNNG

BAANNNG

BAANNNG

The robot had no idea what it means to stop and just kept punching. It was how it was programmed. Zeras only needed to say stop and the robot would immediately go into offline mode, but a word never exited out his mouth.

"I'll kill you! Even if it's the last thing I do..." The roar of rage boomed out of his mouth as he raised his head and smashed it on the robot's head.

BAAAAAAAANG

A circular shockwave appeared at the point of collision as the robot was shifted back three steps by the sudden attack.

Clenching his sword tightly, Zeras ripped himself off the hole as he rapidly closed in on the robot, immediately diving his sword into his navel area as the core beneath the place ruptured and exploded.

Yet another punch slammed on his face once more as he rolled on the ground and slammed his back against the wall.

BOOOOOOM

A footprint appeared on the wall beside his head as Zeras shifted at the last second, preventing his head from being flattened, and immediately he kicked his right leg at the robot's remaining leg, causing it to stumble and fall on him.

Zeras raised his sword with both hands as he dug it into the robot's heart, its second core also rupturing to pieces and exploding.

But his chest also caved in from the explosion as the robot was laying on him, and he took the brunt of the attack.

Holding Zeras down to the ground with its body. It rose as Zeras swerved the blade towards his head, but a horrifying force slammed on his wrist, blowing the sword off his hands.

Following that was another flurry of punches from the robot as Zeras put both hands in front of his face blocking the flurry of punches.

Immediately the robot saw its move on his face not working, it paused momentarily turning to Khan's open stomach instead and that was the exact moment when a hand suddenly dragged its head upward and

BAAAAAAM

It was a smooth headbutt that disoriented it a lot, as its last core was present just at the middle of his head.

And Zeras wasn't going to let that chance go to waste as he hugged the robot tightly before rolling on the floor, turning to sit down on it.

His two hands were already useless from all the attacks, leaving only one thing that could be used.

BAANNNG

BANNNNG

BANNNNG

The sound reverberated through the hall as Khan repeatedly slammed his head in the robot's forehead.

Even as the robot punched his side, and blood poured out of his mouth, Zeras was unflinching as he kept pounding away at the last core and soon...

BAAAAAAAANG

It exploded, sending Zeras flying into the distance.

"Congratulations You have successfully defeated the robot! Total time taken: three hours..."

The AI voice announced, but Zeras remained motionless on the ground, blood pouring out of his head and all his senses as he slept down in his pool of blood. But his eyes widened in shock as a notification panel appeared in front of him.

[Congratulations, the Host has won a fight that the system tagged impossible!]

[Host has for the first time earned the respect of the Chaos Devourer System.]

[Host will be blessed with a Rejuvenating Card as a reward.]

And immediately, an otherworldly coldness slammed on Zera's head as a dark crystal suddenly appeared on his forehead and dark demonic looking lines appeared on his face, spreading all over his entire body.

Then the uncontrollable spasming began!

It was an extremely cold sensation as if an iceblock at a -1000°C was placed on his brain.

Yet that wasn't the only problem as he felt a hot flame billowing through his entire body.

The sensation of Extreme Cold and Hot was felt by Zeras who laid paralyzed on the ground.

Following the pain was an intense itching in his bones and all over his skin that made horrific looking crimson veins appeared in his eyes.

To Zeras this was the second most painful sensation he had ever gone through in his entire life, managing to rank second only to the pain he went through when he was turned to a lab rat.

But after intense suffering comes liberation and as the pain slowly faded away, the control of his own body returned, except this time it was on an unbelievable level.

Chaos Devourer System #Chapter 268: Heading To The Mission Hall - Read Chaos Devourer System Chapter 268: Heading To The Mission Hall

Chapter 268: Heading To The Mission Hall

Heading To Mission Hall

It was almost unbelievable as Zeras felt all the pain and cuts in his body immediately disappeared.

His broken right eye, his broken ribs, his torn muscles. Everything has been repaired fully, and he gained an understanding of his body more than he ever did.

Every small changes in his body, the way his blood was revolving within him, the rhythm at which his heart undulated. The way his white hair blew chaotically around his head, the way the surrounding air gently caressed his skin.

Everything related to his body was unprecedentedly clear.

And it was right then that a notification panel appeared in front of him:

[HP: 250/250]

[Energy Core: 800/800]

The bar had been filled completely to the brim.

“Thank you...” Zeras said with a smile on his face before directing his attention to the crumbled robot pieces.

‘I’m still a little short of the power of the Cosmic rank stage. Right now I can be said to be at the Pseudo-Cosmic Rank at best...’ Zeras analyzed carefully as he gathered his thoughts together.

Now he knew his limit, understood his weaknesses and also the capability of his abilities.

Looking at his watch, the time was currently 10:30 PM, and Zeras immediately moved towards the training hall exit.

He had a mission at 7:00 AM, so he needed all the rest he could get.

— — —

Next morning...

The sound of the alarm rang out within the medium-sized bedroom as Zeras opened his eyes, sitting up on the bed before switching off the alarm.

It was currently 5:00 in the morning, and he stood up from the comfort of the bed and headed towards the bathroom.

30 minutes later...

A handsome young man with snow-white covering the upper part of his face could be seen in the mirror.

White-skinned, oval-shaped face and a slightly elongated chin, an aura of the extraordinary and handsomeness radiated off his body as he stood at a height of 1.8 meters tall.

Clad in a well-fitted EIA uniform with a golden emblem at the side pocket, and a dark earring on his left ear. One look into his eyes and one would sense the otherworldly determination present in those eyes which stared at a person like an eagle's gaze, most importantly his left eye which seemed to want to see through a person's soul.

Zeras looked into the mirror, concentrating more on his left eye as he noticed, although by little, it was starting to get darker than usual. But why was he directed towards this phenomenon because Zeras noticed his gaze was now getting even clearer than usual, finding it able to even look more father.

"Activate The Eyes Of Chaos..." He whispered as the darkness in his eyes swirled and a circular point appeared within, so abysmally dark it stood out within the darkness.

But he deactivated the technique as he moved onto the door's exit while diving his consciousness into his spatial ring to check if he missed anything.

He wasn't much worried about the strangeness in his eyes, so far, it benefitted him.

CLINK!

The door made a satisfying opening sound as Zeras exited the dorm room, giving one last look at the place.

The mere thought of this place being overrun with cameras once he arrived back infuriated him, but he knew well that couldn't be helped, for now.

The door was shut closed, and he immediately turned, heading towards where the direction indicated on his watch.

— — —

The EIA mission hall was undoubtedly the largest structure in the EIA, containing a total of 24 floors.

Zeras arrived before this large structure, heaving a little to reign down his chaotic thoughts before entering to the place.

"Yes. And what can I do for you, Sir..." The receptionist asked respectfully as Zeras clicked rapidly on his watch, transferring some files to her.

The receptionist took it from her wristwatch, jotted some things down before passing him a card. The 16th floor, she said with a smile, to which he returned to a nod before heading towards the elevator.

DIIING

And immediately it shut closed as Zeras inputted the code "16" within.

— — —

DIIING

The sound of an elevator opening resounded and Zeras found himself standing in a large white hall, completely featureless except for the white tile that covered its entirety.

Small crystal-shaped objects were embedded onto the ceiling wall, the cause of the white light that illuminated the surrounding.

At the center of the hall, stood a single revolving chair and immediately Khan moved towards it before taking his seat.

— — —

20 minutes later...

Three flashes of blue light appeared in the sky in front of him before congregating together and forming a solid screen.

Immediately, three images appeared in front of it. Two of them belonging to people Zeras was familiar with, Commander Leviron and the burly commander who knew well how to annoy him.

The last person was a lady dressed in an official business suit with a spectacle in her eyes, which failed to conceal the pride oozing out from her pupils and immediately Khan got down from his chair getting to a knee before bowing his head.

“This Young One has Seen The higher-ups...”

“Rise...”

The voice of Commander Leviron echoed in his ears as he rose up on his feet and stared straight at the commanders.

“You arrived 30 minutes before the scheduled time. Commendable...” The voice rang out from the female Commander as she looked at him in a new light.

“Let’s get right into the mission...” The burly commander said.

“We have a few questions for you, Rising Star Zeras. Some questions about how you ended up in the EIA. From the information obtained from Commander Shiron. It was stated that you were a victim of extreme child abuse and illegal human experimentation...” The Female Commander asked with a scrutinizing gaze.

“Yes Commander”

“If that is true, can you please tell us the name of this organisation...”

“The name of the organisation is Mutant Organisation, as Informed by Commander Shiron.”

“Good. Your current mission is closely related to this organisation!”

Chaos Devourer System #Chapter 269: A Mission Where His Death is Insignificant - Read Chaos Devourer System Chapter 269: A Mission Where His Death is Insignificant

Chapter 269: A Mission Where His Death is Insignificant

Mission Issuance...

The Mutant Organization.

An organization that Zeras would never forget. They hold the record of his most painful pain he had ever experienced.

Chaining him onto an experimentation bed while also injecting a serum in him that broke apart every inch of his cells, slowly destroying it until his entire genome almost collapsed. It was an experience he would never forget.

“Rising Star Zeras, what can you say about The Mutant Organization. What is your experience on them...” She interrogated as Zeras replied without wasting an extra second.

“They’re goal achievers, just like any other organization in the world...”

“Hmmm, so you’re saying there are the same to the organizations, the EIA too?” She asked with a raised eyebrow.

“Yes ma’am. But they are also different from it in one thing.”

“And what is that?”

“Their ways of reaching their goals. They’re unlike any organization willing to do anything to achieve their goals. ANYTHING. Trickery, pain, betrayal, promise. They’re willing to do anything for the purpose of achieving their goals. Unlike the EIA that places the safety of the citizens first, the Mutant Organization places the goal first.” Zeras explained lengthily, drawing a satisfied smile on Commander Leviron’s face as she gave the woman a glance of ‘I told you...’.

“So they should be taken down, right?” She asked.

“Yes Commander. Against an organization that cares of nothing but its goals. There’s absolutely no need to hold back at all...”

“Good. Your replies are satisfying, and I have agreed for you to be joining this elite mission.” The woman said as she declined back on her seat, Commander Leviron seating up after that.

“There’s currently an ongoing experimentation that the Mutant Organization are performing.

The EIA has gained knowledge of such an experimentation, and it has been decided if it were to be successful, then not just earth, but the entire world might fall into an apocalyptical crisis. Therefore, we have decided that we couldn’t make since the beginning of this organization.

We have decided to wipe out their main headquarters and you, Rising Star Zeras, are one of the people to embark on this elite grade mission.

'What! They want to wipe out The Mutant Organization?' The bell rang wildly in Zera's head, yet his outer personage was completely emotionless.

"It is my pleasure to be able to join on a mission that would save the entire world, Commanders..."

"Good. The Mutant Organization can be said to be the number darkest force. Just like the EIA is to earth, The Mutant Organization is the number one on the leaderboard."

'Would be disappointing if they weren't'

"Therefore, it has caused the EIA a total of 15 years trying to track down its main headquarters, but it was all in failure. But if there's one thing, every organization, powerful or not, require people who will be nurtured to grow the organization.

The Mutant Organization has its school, just like the EIA training base. Though we have not been able to track down the location of the headquarters, we have picked up on two important information."

"The first is that the Mutant Organization headquarters is directly placed beside the Mutant Organization Training base for its future successors! And also we have gained access to the area where the next entrance test, similar to the one you did in the EIA, will take place..."

'Hmmm,' From what the lady said, Zeras could already begin picking up on the hints and clues of what this mission entailed.

"Therefore, here's your mission. You will partake in the competition just like one signing up to join in the Mutant Organization. Then you'll pass the test and then be transported to the headquarters.

Your EIA watch is a natural tracker, using your watch we would be able to learn of the Mutant Organization headquarters location! Do you understand now!

"Yes Commander. In short, I'm to act like a spy while disguising as a person signing up for the Mutant Organization..."

"Yes. I hope you're well aware of the risks that come with this mission. A single misstep and not only will you be made an example of and killed in the most ruthless way you can ever imagine, the EIA might just forever lose its chance to find the Mutant Organization base, as they'll definitely grow cautious or simply shut themselves away from the entire world before coming back with a loud Bang, that would lead to a very apocalyptic destruction on the entire galaxy.

Zeras expression of seriousness and focus had since changed as it became narrowed. With his increased intelligence, his brain was further more able to process the Information and just like the woman said. There was no way he would be escaping that scenario alive. Actually, his death would be the most insignificant thing that would happen in the grand scheme of the event. The mission was just too risky!

“So make your choice, Rising Star Zeras. We have asked a total of 17 Rising Star Rank experts just like you, and all of them refused. So rest assured, this decision will not affect your position in the EIA at all. The choice is up to you...”

The silence in the hall was deafening as Zera’s brain walked at full speed.

Risky!

The Mission was just too risky. It was like asking for him to infiltrate the EIA, it was almost an impossible endeavour due to the horrifying power the EIA possesses.

And he was sure the Mutant Organisation was almost comparable to the EIA except even more darker and more cruel than they are. One mistake and he wouldn’t even understand how he died.

But not only that, his good name will be forever soiled after failing the mission. He would be the one that caused the destruction of the galaxy due to his incompetence.

It was a name just too big to take on his head.

“HUUUUUU...” Zeras breathed out loudly as he steeled his heart and made his decision.

“It is my pleasure to be able to join on a mission that would save the entire world, Commanders!”

Chapter 270: Heading For The Death Island

“It’s my pleasure to work on a mission that would save the entire world, commanders...” Zeras said giving a bow to the commanders who have their eyes flashed in shock.

‘He agreed to go!’ The female Commander thought to herself as the pride oozing out from her eyes and blinding her from getting a clear look at the young man disappeared as she stared at Zeras in a new light.

“You have made your decision, Rising Star Zeras. You can rest assured this wouldn’t be the greatest mistake you have ever made. That said, let us get into the plan...” The lady said as the burly instructor finally leaned forward from his seat.

“The test will be taking place on a desolate planet called Lillithia or, as we love to call it on Earth, The Death Island.

It is a baren and broken planet which was hypothesized to have been the battleground of an ancient war between two ancient races, but it has been deserted, simply because not a single creature lies in this planet. It has been completely abandoned and also far away from Earth.

Fortunately, we have been able to open up a secret portal directly to the planet itself, and it will immediately self-destruct once it has done its job.

As for what the test entails, it is completely unknown, and you would have to figure that out yourself, although we hypothesized it will no doubt be incredibly brutal. We believe you should be able to survive.” The burly Commander said.

“You don’t have to worry about how the EIA will go on to destroy the headquarters. Your only mission is to simply pass the test and get drafted into the Mutant Organization as a new Cadet. Do you understand?” The Burly instructions said.

“Yes Sir...”

“We would be given you no help whatsoever during this mission, as might just end up being the one that blows up this mission. The Mutant Organization is capable of identifying all things that had even a speck of the EIA’s touch, so you definitely have to leave your uniforms behind.

Also, your EIA watch is a main identification for those belonging to the EIA and easily distinguishable because it cannot be taken off. Therefore, we will be temporarily suspending that function, and you’ll be capable of taking off your EIA watch.” The man said as Zeras gave a nod. He didn’t understand why the EIA would create watchers that can’t be taken off in the first place, but he also didn’t care much about it.

“That said, you must ensure the watch is on your hand at all times as it is the place where the tracker are kept. Don’t place it in your spatial ring, as that might cause lose of signal.” The commander warned.

“Yes Commander...”

“Once you get into the organization. You don’t have to do anything. Simply flow in and leave the rest to the EIA. But that doesn’t mean mission complete, there might be unknowns, and you might be given new orders at any time.” The female Commander said as Zeras gave a nod.

According to the source, the test has been ongoing for almost a day now, and you might have been on the last leg. You will be led to the changing room to properly dress up for the mission before you’re sent to Planet Lillithia. Good luck in your mission, Rising Star Zeras...” The voice rang in his ears as Zeras got into a bow, the holographic in front of him glitching repeatedly before disappearing...”

“HUUUUUU” He exhaled loudly as the sound of an elevator opening echoed out to him and an EIA official could be seen standing there as he nudged Zeras.

“Over here, Sir...” And he immediately stood up, quickly following behind the man.

— — —

10 minutes later...

A young man clothed in an unofficially dress consisting of a round neck shirt, short-sleeved that revealed his well-cut physique and an expandable dark pant could be seen standing before a gigantic teleporter that covered the entirety of the room.

Even Zeras was surprised seeing the mere size of the teleporter.

“You will now be transported to planet Lillithia, please step onto the portal...” The AI voice rang out as Zeras climbed up the teleporter, coming to stand at the central point.

“Activating Portal.”

” Location detected.”

“Wormhole created.”

“State: Stable.”

“Transportation would now commence,”

Immediately, the runes around the teleporter began brightening up powerfully before a dome of green energy covered Zeras figure before a bright blue light blindingly erupted within the dome, slowly quieting down before once again the robot teleporter was revealed except this time with no figure on it.

— — —

What would happen if a human being is blasted onto space with a cannon. The velocity even required for that as the resulting friction would no doubt already reduce the man to ashes and even if he, against all odds, managed to avoid such a scenario, he would still be crushed to pieces by the surrounding pressure.

This was the various blockades that stopped the advancement of spatial teleportation, even after the space ability became a reality. But eventually, they solved the problem by creating a wormhole that links the two distances together while also protecting the user from getting crushed by the pressure and friction.

— — —

10 minutes later...

An intense green light flashed through the deadly calm forest as it soon disappeared, as Zeras immediately fell on his knees.

BLEEEERG GGH

The sound of Intense vomiting rang out through the place, and after about 5 minutes, he finally got a hold of himself.

"Tch, damn..." Zeras muttered dissatisfactorily when suddenly the voice rang behind his ears.

"Raise your hands up where I can see them..."

"Huh?"

Immediately the sound of gun cocking reverberated as Khan immediately raise up both hands.

"Good. Now pass me all of your Golden Tickets including the one you just obtained and I might just let you live!" The voice rang out.

"What's a Golden Ticket?"

"Wrong Choice!"

BAAAANNNG