

Chaos Devourer System

#Chapter 391 Retrieving The Footage - Read Chaos Devourer System Chapter 391 Retrieving The Footage

391 Retrieving The Footage

The elevator wheezed Zeras up with speed as his chest began pounding loudly, his distraction worked on the lower floors but he wasn't sure they also worked for those on the higher floors. Zeras had used the elevator malfunctioning in order to distract the guards.

Elevators going out of control wasn't such a big suspicious anomaly, it happens occasionally in every big organization, and he also knew well, that the guards would no doubt go to take a quick break in between that interface.

And that was the time Zeras had palmed to immediately climb up the elevator. But it was only a hypothesis, he wasn't sure they would all fall for it, and that was his hands laid on both pockets as the elevator wheezed him up.

DIING

The sound of the elevator once again opening rang out as the higher floor was revealed to Zeras who noticed the absolute harrowing silence and he stuck his head out a little to see what was going on...

"Clear..." Zeras mused to himself and instantly he shifted into his shadow form and quickly slipped into a dark cover.

"You've arrived at the fourth floor boss. You've done it..." Olyn's gleeful voice rang out as Zeras rolled his eyes.

"Yes, I have. So, the footage room is four doors to my right fourth floor mused as he looked at the dark unceremonious door in the distance.

"For a place containing the footage of a Universal-grade crime. Isn't it a little too lax?" Zeras thought to himself as he looked at the others. Only now did he discover there were strangely no guards at all through the long corridors. There were no guards at each of the doors at all.

"This is strange. This is very strange..." Zeras mused as his heart began rising once more. Even his body was telling him, there was something strange going on, but he was so darn close to his goal, it was just a door away and so Zeras advanced.

Moving like a snail, the dark shadows slowly inched closer towards the door. Arriving before the aforementioned, Zeras waited for a full minute to see if anything was going to wrong but nothing happened. The entire place was grave silent so he entered the door and arrived in the room where were there those uncontrollable numbers of shelves.

"Perfect boss, perfect. This is the room. At the third shelve to the right. I can pick up the fluctuation of the footage. It should be in a memory card...." Olyn said as Zeras moved to the third shelf and opened it up and just as Olyn said they were truly memory cards but they weren't one.

"Hey Olyn, there are five, which is which..." Zeras asked as he felt the silence from the other side and the crazy typing on the keyboard.

"No need to stress yourself out, I'll just pack everything," Zeras said to him as Olyn gave a sign of relief.

"And immediately, Zeras grabbed the memory card and began inputting it into his Watch."

"Boss, why don't you try to quickly exit..." The words rang out from Olyn after he noticed Zeras standing still.

"I want to upload everything to you right now, copy them on your system..." Zeras ordered as he began inputting the memory cards on his watch and sending all the footage to Olyn.

10 minutes later...

"I've received everything, boss..."

"All five?" Zeras asked to be sure...

"Yes, boss. All five..."

"Good..." Zeras heaved a sigh of relief as a grin appeared on his face.

"This went easier than I thought..." Zeras said out loud but his face changed when Olyn's voice which seemed to be on the verge of breakdown rang out...

"Hey, boss..."

"What's wrong Olyn..."

"I...I..." Olyn stumbled as Zera's face changed.

"Hey, hey, calm down. Talk to me Olyn, have I been discovered...." Zeras asked the most likely scenario.

"Yes, boss."

"OK, that's completely fine. So can you now calm down and tell me when and where..." Zeras asked. Even though the normal reaction would be to quickly run away from the room. Zeras didn't move a single inch nor did he show the nervousness of moving at all...

"I never tracked it down earlier. But the Museum Hall has the rare tracking brokerage implemented in its protocol. You have been discovered the second you came out of the sewage..."

"Wow. That's alarming. But how come the guards were all at their normal position? If they've tracked me down how come I can't hear the sound of footsteps rapidly approaching me..." Zeras said with furrowed eyebrows.

And immediately, his eyes widened to saucers, and instantly, Zeras burst out of the room as he ran down the corridor with his fastest speed. And that was when he felt something soaring forward from his right with speed and then...

KABBOOOOOOOM

A devastating explosion rippled outwards as the entire wall of a part of the museum was smashed into pieces and two figures burst out of the devastation.

A robbed figure and a middle-aged man dressed in a normal white T-shirt and pants...

It was like a humongous bull running onto someone head-on...

That was what Zeras felt when the shoulder slammed on his body he immediately smashed completely through the wall and appeared mid-air, but without even turning back, the gun slipped down from his pockets due to gravity and Zeras grabbed them, the bullet already soaring forward towards the direction he came from before he even grabbed them in his hands properly.

BAAANG

BAAANG

BAAAANG

Through the nerve-wracking silence, the gunshot was like the cigar that lit the atomic bomb as all attention was immediately directed towards the direction where the gunshot came from and all the security began speeding up to where he was...

But he didn't even have time to worry about down as he stood upside down in the air soaring backward with speed and kept shooting at the man who was also soaring forwards towards him with speed one of his hands in his pockets while the other continuously slapped every bullet away from him with a deadly precision.

BAAAANG

A ripple emanated forth as Zeras suddenly twisted mid-air and slammed his legs on the fence of the Museum Hall stopping his backward motion.

Gravity immediately did its work on him as he was pulled downwards and landed on both feet, crouched onto the ground...

BAAAAAANG

The explosion came from the ground twenty meters away from him as the man landed on the round upright, a gigantic pothole beneath his feet...

392 20 Seconds To Death!

A facedown occurred between the thief and the owner as the Zeras looked at the middle-aged man scrutinizingly and the other was also doing the same.

From looking, Zeras could already analyze some things about the man. Firstly, was his ability, and Zeras could tell it had to do with physical strength. The man was able to sap his bullets away and judging from the sound of the collision, it was like his hands were metal and repeatedly slapped away the bullets. So, his true ability was most likely skin hardening.

Secondly, he could smell Roma A5 on the man. A popular alcoholic drink In Celestria Valley, which indicated the man had probably just finished drinking the alcohol which Zeras had learned from Mi Hung to be very intoxicating. But the man was a Peak Metero rank so he definitely could override that effect. As to what degree, he didn't really know well.

"To think there will be someone who would dare to infiltrate the Celestria Museum Hall, pretty bold or stupid isn't it..." The man asked with a malevolent smirk as Zera's eyebrows furrowed and ignoring the man he looked at the side and he could already see the flashing lights from his left- and right-hand side which was the sign of approaching guards.

'20 Seconds, and they'll completely corner me...' Zeras thought to himself.

"You have already been cornered. The question is how you will like to die?" The man said as Zetas stood upright and pocketed his hands to his coats before flinging the five memory cards to the man's feet.

"That's what I took and now I've returned it...." Zeras said out loud as a smirk widened on Connel's lips.

"You want to play the classic style right? Simply giving back what you stole, after realizing that you have been cornered, and then you waltzed away scot-free? Is that your plan?" Connel said with a grin. The thief had no idea what shit he just got himself into.

"I'll forgive you, but only if you leave one thing behind..." Connel said with a grin.

"And what is that..."

"Your life..." Connel said and instantly, Zeras slammed his boots on the ground twice, and instantly, thrusters were placed under his boots as he soared forward towards Connel with horrifying speed. The cold blade gleamed dangerously in the moonlight as Khan slashed at his neck, but the man didn't even turn to look as his hands slammed downwards with horrifying speed toward Zeras's shoulder.

'I'll lose my entire left arm before I reach his neck...' Zeras analyzed instantly and immediately he stopped the blade heading for the man's neck, hurriedly throwing it up, as he turned to the side instead, the hands passing by his shoulders and immediately Zeras kicked at the floor as he jumped upward lying horizontally on the ground before slamming the back of his leg on the knife's head that was feeling downwards causing it to dig into the man's cheek and come out at the other side.

"Tch, you're courting death..." Connel said with a smirk as he folded his hand into a fist before slamming towards Zeras's head which was on the air, but Zeras reactivated his thrusters as he rotated with speed, moving his head away from the direction of the punch even though the residual air still caused cuts to badly mangle his face.

Zeras didn't pay that much heed as the blade immediately poured out from his pocket and he kicked all of them forward towards Connel's face.

The man at first didn't care about them, after all, it'd cause some artificial damage but his face changed in the next second as he hurriedly raced both hands to his face.

Immediately the fling blades slammed on the man's hands.

BOOOOM

BOOOOM

BOOOOM

BOOOOM

BOOOOOM

Explosions went off like a firecracker as Connel was hurled up from his feet from the explosions and slammed on the wall, cracking a hole within.

Before the flying blades even exploded, Zeras immediately took to his left as the thrusters beneath his feet blazed furiously and he shut to the side of the fence.

The scene was like that of Zeras running towards the guards, but halfway he turned and suddenly ran for 20 more meters before bending to the ground and flinging away the metallic plate from the ground, revealing the sewer below.

KABOOM

The wall where Connel crashed into was blown apart as the man rose angrily from where he crashed into but the last thing, he saw was Zeras opening the metallic plate on the ground and immediately jumping down the hole.

5 seconds later, the guards arrived before the hole as they looked at the hole where Zeras jumped into, immediately one of them tried jumping into it but he was grabbed by a large pair of hands before he could do so.

"There's no need. He's already gone..." Connel said as he looked at the hole. He knew well that was how Zeras came in and he would no doubt be very familiar with the canal. The canal led to thousands of other canals. Trying to search for a person within was a fruitless waste of time.

"But you all don't have to worry. He never went out with the goods..." Connel said as he opened his palms where the five memory cards were present and smiles appeared on the faces of the other guards.

"And he also let us know of this secret passageway that we don't know about; His atrocity would be forgiven and I'm sure he won't dare set foot within this place again. A win to us isn't it..."

"He sure is one lucky bastard..." One of the guards said as Connel grinned evilly.

"Hopefully he learns his lesson. Hey, you. Find the place where this belongs too and return it..." Connel said as he gave the memory cards to one of the guards.

"You all return back to your position..."

"Yes sir..."

And immediately they all left leaving Connel alone in the place.

"His skills..." Connel mused out loudly as he looked at the hole where Zera escaped into.

"That is no ordinary thief..." He mused out loud as he zipped the metallic covering back to its place.

The exchange wasn't even up to 7 seconds, yet it was one of the most intense that Connel had ever fought. Every of the thief's moves looked easy, but only he knew well how long it would take to develop such godly evading and attacking skills. It wasn't a skill developed in the quiet dojos in Celestria Valleys...

"Could it be that group?" Connel mused but soon brushed it away.

"If he dares come back. I'll kill him in the cruelest way possible. But that would be impossible as I'll be closing off this canal immediately." Connel said and he also moved away from the scene.

Chapter 393: Zera's Understanding Of Revenge

Chapter 393: Zera's Understanding Of Revenge

"Hello, please can you give me twenty pieces of your most delicious lollipops..." The young man with white hair standing in front of the average-looking store filled with dozens of sweets said to the middle-aged man sitting at the front.

"20 pieces of the sweets lollipop, your kid must have been a handful..." The woman joked as Zeras chuckled to himself.

"Yeah, she really is one of a kind..." Zeras replied with a smile.

"Then, I'll get you the sweetest lollipop she had ever tasted..." The middle-aged woman said as she quickly went into the shop and disappeared within.

Now remaining was the white-haired young man who looked around the streets where other people could be seen, going on their daily business...

"Here you go, sir..." The woman said as she arrived back to Zeras and placed the twenty sweets on the table

It was a pretty gigantic lollipop with rainbow colors and formed in the shape of a heart.

"This is one of the coolest that I have actually ever seen. And how much are they?" Zeras asked as the woman looked at the sweets and scrutinized Zeras well before giving her reply.

“The price of one is 50-star coins. So, twenty together is a thousand-star coin. But since you’re such a loving father, I’ll agree to set the price at 800-star coins.” She explained as Zeras gave a nod and dipped his hands to his pockets bringing out some bundles and drew out two pieces before placing them on the table.

“Here you go. Thank you, Ma’am...” Zeras said as the sweets were packed onto the nylon and passed to him, done with that, the young man’s back disappeared into the distance.

“Two...Two-thousand-star coins!?” The woman quivered as she looked at the two notes before. They were more than she had ever made of the entire week.

“No, no, no...” Olyn’s voice filled with fear and regret echoed throughout the room as he looked dazedly at the comms in his hands which had already gone out of power.

“What went wrong?” Syndril words rang beside his ears as Olyn finally regained himself a little, although the tears in his left eye couldn’t help becoming a massive waterfall.

“We’ve lost connection to the boss, Syndril. He’s been discovered...” Olyn said as a vein popped on her forehead,

“You all worry too much; the boss will be back soon...” The muscular man leaning on the wall finally said for the first time.

“And how sure are you of that?” Olyn asked as he collapsed on his seat. Only he knew how long Zeras had been discovered and knew well the situation was very bad.

“Then we wait for thirty minutes. If he’s not back within thirty minutes. Then he must have been captured. The entire group would go all out and strike at once...” Syndril said as she picked up her phone and began rapidly pressing.

“All spy units are to now go around the vicinity of the Museum Hall and record any strange abnormality occurring within...” Syndril ordered into the phone before continuing to type quickly on her phone.

“Hey, Olyn...” She asked as she looked at the boy drowning in tears,

“Drink up your tears and hack the surveillance camera closer to the Museum Hall. I’m sure Iruma can find a way to not get killed instantly and he might have been more likely to be sent away and jailed instead. Once he exits, then we begin the retrieve operation...” Syndril said as Olyn’s hands immediately got to work.

20 minutes later...

The pressure in the room had reached a thick level as Olyn's wet eyes glued to the camera dazedly.

"Strange. There is no difference at all. The guards are all working back as if nothing happened at all. This is not how they would behave if they caught a thief..." Olyn said as Syndril's eyebrows furrowed.

"The spies have also said there are no unnatural movements, except they were now a mechanical sewage team that is inside the Museum Hall for unknown reasons..."

"Hmm, perhaps, he..."

"DING

The sound of the elevator rang out through the place and from within the room, Zeras stepped into the room.

"Boss?"

"Daddy..." The former voice rang out even louder than the former as Zeras felt the tight hug around his waist...

"Aria, I have a present for you..." Zeras said with a smile as the white-haired girl released him from her grasp and looked at him with puppy eyes.

And from his coat, Zeras brought out the package before revealing the head of one of the rainbow sweets.

"It's all yours..." He said with a smile as Arai grabbed the sweet nylon and gave him another big hug.

"Thank you, daddy." And with a hop in her steps, she disappeared out of the room with her pack of lollipops to only the devils know where...

"Hey, guys..." Zeras greeted with a wild grin on his face as he hopped over to Olyn's side.

"But I thought, I thought..." Olyn said about to burst out another waterfall but got wiped off when the hard knock drilled into his ears.

"Stop acting like a kid, Olyn," Zeras said with a playful smirk on his face as he brought out a handkerchief and cleaned the young boy's tears.

"I'm sorry boss..."

“Dummy. What crime did you commit? Just make sure you consider all options well before you choose to embark on a mission. You know well what could happen if you don’t.” Zeras advised as Olyn nodded repeatedly.

“Send them back...” He suddenly said as he turned to look at Syndril. And just as he guessed, the red-haired lady brought out her phone as she rapidly typed and her words rang out.

“All the spies and operation team should retreat, now...”

“That was too dangerous. You could have gotten yourself killed!” Syndril chastised.

Zeras gave a serious nod.

“It was no doubt dangerous, but well worth it. We obtained the footage and I also got Achai her lollipops. Right, Olyn.”

“Yes, boss. With this footage and the hundreds of crimes that we have gathered over the last two years, it would be clearer than day how the Celestria family broke a universal rule. Then, I’ll the only thing that would be even more shocking would be if the Celestria family got out of this without losing their heads...” Olyn said with a grin, and behind it one could see the murderous intent in his eyes.

“Clear that away, Olyn. Don’t be overtaken by the thought of revenge.” The words rang beside Olyn’s ears as he turned to look at Zeras.

“If you think like that. You will miss some important details or overadd the necessary information. Just enter that state of blankness and throw out the thought of revenge...” Zeras said as he held him tight on the shoulder.

“But why boss? Why do you always say that when you have the greatest will for revenge among all of us...”

“It is because of a lesson, I learned just a few years ago. Once the thought of revenge clouds all of your thinking and action, then you become a slave to your opponent...”

Chapter 394: A Man Ready To Die.

“So, properly focus on the work and eliminate all distractions. Just as you have always done. I’m counting everything on you Olyn.” Zeras said as he watched with satisfaction in his eyes how Olyn exhaled loudly and immediately his eyes regained that confidence once again.

“That’s good. Syndril...” Zeras suddenly called out as he turned his attention to the red-haired lady.

"I want to have a word with you..." Zeras said and immediately he moved out of the room and headed towards the other room in the place.

"The room was just like any other, except this one was more of a discussion room due to its sofa which was arranged around the glass table.

And Zeras sat down on the sofa while Syndril took the other seat opposite him.

"How has the organization been going for the past week..." Zeras suddenly asked as Syndril's eyebrows furrowed before relaxing.

"It has been growing even more. There has been an upward trend in its growth map and from the last week, even higher than the growth trend than every other week..."

"And with the high rate of growth strength, comes more missions, more mission complete, more exposure, more loose holes, more suspicions, more status, and more dangers..." Zeras completed as Syndril gave a nod.

It was something that was impossible to avoid. They could only try to make sure it reach the barest minimum.

"This Organization has been built by me, and I had nothing but a single purpose in mind when I built it. To reveal the evil that the Celestria family is to the entire world. That is the singular purpose. And for that purpose, I have found you, Syndril. One whose life was ruined by the treachery of the Celestrias. From it, I have found many of you, Olyn, Aria, Albagards, the children who are currently undergoing training, and hundreds of officials.

No matter how big the organization gets, Syndril. Never forget the reason for implementation. We don't reveal ourselves to the world. We are the good that lurks in the shadow. Do you understand?" Zeras asked as Syndril gave a nod.

"Yes, boss..."

"How is the spaceship project that you have been working on for the last two years..." Zeras suddenly asked.

"It has been procured for the last six months. And it has been ready for take-off. It is hidden within the airports of one of our affiliates, The Royer Aircraft Group of Companies..." Syndril said as Zeras gave a satisfied nod.

"You can tell them that, the spaceship would be leaving their airport soon..." Zeras said as Syndril raised an eyebrow.

"Are you going somewhere, boss?"

"I might not be around for a while. For now, reduce the exposure of the base and keep your moves as small and with fewer ripples as possible. What you should focus on for now, are the other businesses which are being run by us and make sure they keep running smoothly. After all, they are the one that fuels this organization and makes it function at its maximum capability..." Zeras said as Syndril gave a nod.

To run this type of organization requires a massive amount of resources and the only way they get those is through the other organization that has been created.

"I trusted you with the entirety of the organization a week after I met you and not once have you disappointed me. Keep that up, Syndril. And you can also use this law low period to also take some time off too..."

"I don't need time off..." Syndril replied.

"Take it anyway..." Zeras replied as he stood up from his seat and walked out of the room.

"Hey Syndril."

"Yes boss, this organization cannot die. No matter even if the person who created it dies. The will. You must pass on the will..." Zeras said and slowly his back faded away from Syndril's eyes, which had a tear slip down her left eye as she looked dazedly at the back that was slowly fading away.

The tone of his words. She had heard that before. It was the tone of the last words of her father. The tone of a person who is ready to die...

—

The teleporter flared brightly as Zeras arrived back in his house. Exiting the room, he arrived before the other room he removed his clothes and placed them in the appropriate space.

Slapping the auto-clean button on the side of the glass, immediately white gas-like objects covered the entirety of the glass and forcefully wiped off the various dirt present and germs on them.

Leaving it alone Khan worked out of the wardrobe as the wall returned to its initial position. And headed towards the bathroom and to the sink...

BLEERRGH

Pitch-dark blood escaped out of his mouth and splashed around the entire sink and on Zera's face. Cuts started appearing all over his face, dark blood oozing out from it and around his entire body were covered in bizarre-looking burnt marks while every inch of his back was littered with hundreds and hundreds of slash marks that would make anyone feel intense horror on sighting just grievous wounds...

Thick dark veins appeared all over Zera's face as he forcefully withstood the conscious effort of his body breaking down cell by cell...

"How much do I have left?" Zeras suddenly asked to himself and immediately the strange countdown appeared on his face.

[2 Days: 1 hr: 50 Seconds.]

"Very small amount..." Zeras mused as he opened his tab and watched his blood-ridden face. He had spent the last three years., knowing well with every day, he was a step closer to death. It had at first caused him sleepless nights, but as time passed by, Zeras got over it. Not by ignoring it, but by facing it.

He would die in three years, so he might as well fulfill his last purpose in life. He had visited every last of wonder, Earth has to offer. Made new friends, and felt the feeling of a brother, a father, a boss, and an employee.

Yet one thing still devours his entire existence. The thought of his origin and the Celestria Family. He knew well, he might not survive long enough to wipe out the Celestrai family. And that was why he created the organization. To reveal the veils of the celestria family and let the world get rid of it..."

Chaos Devourer System #Chapter 395: Finally Completing The Three Years Quest - Read Chaos Devourer System Chapter 395: Finally Completing The Three Years Quest

Chapter 395: Finally Completing The Three Years Quest

The thought of being able to finish the quest was something Zeras had threw to the back of his mind. Although he had truly went through hell to try and complete as many missions as possible in order to finish the quest.

But as time goes farther and farther, he slowly lost hope, even though that didn't stop him from working twice as hard as possible to complete the quest.

And now, it looks like all his hard work for three years is now being repayed.

"Activate System Interface"

And immediately the panel appeared in front of his eyes.

[Congratulations, The Quest: Retrieve The Footage has been completed.]

[You have received, 1500 EXP]

[Total EXP:]

[Congratulations, Time Based Quest Completed: Fill Up The Bar and reach Level 20]

[You have been given the following rewards:

1. Evolution Into A True Chaos Devourer
2. Shop Has been finally unlocked (though only available after evolution.)

“Three years, it’s been three years...” Zeras mused out loud as he looked at his face. Only now could he see that it had changed.

It was now sharper, more calmer, more hairy and more handsome.

“I have gotten away from the cultivation path from three years. But of I have to choose between the me of three years ago with his full cultivation after three years and the me right now. I know who I will choose...” Zeras mused with a smile as he rose up from the sink, grabbed a towel in the side and cleaned away the water on his face.

Arriving back in the room, he grabbed his phone off the table as he dialled the number.

“Hello Mr. Jim...”

“Hello Zeras. How have you been doing...”

“I would love to say great, but I’ve not been doing well Mr. Jim. I don’t know of you’ve picked on it but my health has been rapidly deteriorating since the last few weeks.

I’m thinking of going out for a check-up and would have to be absent from work for a week. I don’t know how you can help me with that without affecting the work in the library...”

“You have absolutely nothing to worry about Zeras. Even though there’s an obligatory leave of rest for every librarian every week in three months.

Never for once have you used your leaves at all. And that is more than enough to show your enthusiasm about your work. Hearing you need a leave is a blessing to me. Don’t worry Zeras, you can take a month off and resume whenever you like. Don’t worry about the library,. I’ll take care of it...”

“Thanks a lot Mr. Jim. I’ll be bringing back the key and opening the library before leaving for the check-up. See you soon and have a good day...” Zeras said before cutting of the call.

“That’s been secured. All I need now is to get going...” Zeras mused, but looking at the time, it was around 12:59 PM in the middle of the night.

“I’ll rest for now and get going in the morning...” He decided as he headed to his bedroom and and less than 3 minutes later, the gentle snores peirced through the silence as Zeras drifted off to sleep.

Immediately the golden sun appeared over the horizon, the white SUV rumbled to life as it drove out of the big gate of the bungalow and quickly disappeared among the hundreds of cars in the highway.

Even though it was very early in the morning. The Celestia Valley never goes quiet at all and one might even expect traffic as early as 5:00 in the morning.

Arriving before the library, it had as still tightly shut and Immediately Zeras exited his car as he brought out the key from the pockets and Unlocked the door.

Opening up.tje revolving glasses, he entered as a wave of green emanated from the entrance walls and scanning him in their lights.

Finally he was permitted with entry and once again faced with the rows and rows of books...

For the past three years, he had been working an ordinary librarian in the library. And he really took the word seriously which earned him the great reputation that he had in the nerd area of the neighborhood.

The EIA for the past three years had never for once spoken to him nor called at all. It was as if they just no longer available exit. He had not even sighted an EIA official in a uniform for countless months now.

The Celestria Family has its own executives which cover and protect its ground. The Lightning guard.

Zeras moved towards his desk as he unlocked it and brought out the various small pictures present in his desk.

Pictures of him and the rest of his colleagues, he remembered them well because they were the ones who had celebrated his birthday with him for the last three years.

‘My days in the EIA, when I look back at it now, was a sad and empty life. But the small three years that I live here are the only one who can put a smile on my face. And now I’m also saying bye to that too, soon, I’ll miss you guys...’

Zeras mused as he turked the small pictures into his pockets...

“DIIIIING”

The sound echoed out to Zeras as he turned to look at the direction and it was none other than Miara who hurriedly walked towards him, a worried expression on her face and he could strangely sense her breath a little out of control...

“Are you okay, Miara?” Zeras asked a bit surprised. This was the first time he had seen Miara looking flustered before.

She came to stand Just a few inches before him S she scrutinized him up and down a few times before heaving out a silent sigh of relief.

“I heard that you would be taking some days offm I thought something was wrong. You never go in a break so why will you go on one now...” Miara asked as Zeras simply starred dazedly at her face before a smile appeared on his face.

“Thank you, Miara...”

“For what?”

“For Caring about me. Thank you....”

Chapter 396: Leaving For Planet Humban

“And also, I just want to go fix some minor health problems that I have. I don’t look sick, do I?” Zeras said with a playful smirk as he stood up from his seat and slowly moved towards the exit but stopped when he felt two hands wrapped around his waist from behind while strands of purple hair blew across his face.”Promise Zeras, that you’ll be back soon...” Miara whispered as Zera’s eyes looked blankly into the distance.

The variables were too much. The chance of his survival even after he completes the mission, is still close to nil. How could he promise such a thing that was absolutely out of his control? How can he make a fake promise to such a person?

“I promise, Miara. I’ll be back, soon...” Zeras said as he felt the hold loosened and he completely exited the revolving door, the SUV driving off into the distance a moment later.

“You love him?” The voice suddenly rang out from beside her eyes as Miara jerked out of her dazedness and looked at Mr. Jim, the boss of the library, in chock.

“What do you mean?” Miara asked with a plain expression.

“You have been looking in his position for 3 minutes straight and weren’t even aware when I arrived before you. Such eyes can only be that of love. Unfortunately,” Mr. Jim said as he looked in the direction where Zeras headed in.

Being the boss of the library, he of course had to do well in his research about all of his employees and was able to discover that Zeras was from the EIA, and also his reasons for his exclusion from it.

It had been three years now and he was sure Zeras asking him for a leave was probably because the young man’s death was really close by.

“Why do you say it’s unfortunate if you don’t mind me asking...” Miara asked. She could tell there was something her boss knew that she didn’t and she was dying to what that is.

Mr. Jim said as she looked at the pretty Miara young lady before him and couldn’t help but sigh.

“Zeras is dead...dead at heart.”

“Um, excuse me...” Miara asked with a raised eyebrow.

“You’ll understand soon...” Jim replied cryptic and he headed back into the library, and Miara followed after him, a confused expression on her face.

—

The Royal Aircraft Airport was a gigantic organization with many branches across the earth, known for its expertise in travel using aircraft. But it wasn’t only Earth that they were based on and also engaged in interplanetary levels across the infinite galaxy.

One of Zera’s side organizations had a business partnership with the organization and that was why he possessed some airships among their flights which are under their business. That was the only way he could hide the spaceship from the eyes of the people.

Zeras had planned everything for his ultimate mission of going to the Humbar planet. The Humbar planet according to what he heard was an off-limits area that all transporters were forbidden to go.

So, flying there is out of the question. The only way to go was to procure his own personal spaceship and since he was no longer part of the EIA. He didn’t ask them for a spaceship, even though they probably could rent him one.

He didn't want the EIA, to know about his comeback, if there will ever be one. It was better for his plans if they all thought he was dead. And that was why he had built his own organization to procure all the necessary tools, for completing all the missions.

Arriving at the gigantic gate of the organization, he was immediately given permission to enter once he handed them his ID Card and immediately Zeras zoomed inside the place going for another 25 kilometers before finally arriving at his location.

A place where rows and rows of spaceships were packed, each containing around two spaceships in a single block. There were close to fifty of such blocks but Zeras didn't have to look around too much before he found a spaceship with one of the smaller organizations, he had...

Parking his car in the automobile area, he walked towards the spaceship he immediately entered into it and started the engine.

Looking at the rows of different controls and buttons, Zeras couldn't help but smile brightly as he remembered the days of flying around with the spaceships.

"The Interdimensional-combat department really was worth all the trouble..." Zeras said to himself as his eyes immediately gleamed in focus and he began pressing some of the buttons, the engine rumbling to life and slowly it moved away from the block where it was kept, going higher and higher in the air before immediately it exploded forth with speed, leaving remnants of red and purple in the air and soon, it broke out of Earth's gravitational field and disappeared into the dark expanse of space.

"Activate Bio-Planetary scanner..." Zeras voiced out as he moved through the vast emptiness...

"Bio-planetary scanner has been activated, where would you like to get a map for..."

"The Humban Planet..." Zeras uttered.

"Are you sure you want to go to the Humban planet? The Humban planet has been universally declared as a no-go area. And anyone or organization flying to the place would be severely dealt with ranging from complete organization shut down to 10 years imprisonment..."

"Yes, I'm sure..." Zeras replied and instantly, the screen in front of the controller immediately brightened up as two dots appeared on the planetary map consisting of hundreds and hundreds of planetary bodies.

A green one which depicted where he was and another one of a red colour which depicted the Humban planet.

“Huuuuu, Time to regain back all my lost strength,” Zeras said out in conviction and instantly the spaceship was pushed to a speed of Mach 7 and instantly exploded forward with an inconceivable speed that immediately blew the surrounded space into shards of glasses.

Chapter 397: Chaos Begins...

Chapter 397: Chaos Begins...

In the Vast expanse of space.

A gigantic planetary blue body stood in the empty void of space, completely motionless, and gave off the feeling of death as if it were a dead star.

Suddenly a flaming meteor shut forward from the distance with unbelievable speed arriving before the planet before it slowed down its advance and gently hovered above the planet's gravitational forcefield.

“So, there it is...” Zeras mused to himself as he looked at the gigantic planet that stood listless in the void of space.

Unlike when he had first laid eyes on the planet, now it was like a shell of its former self, and Zeras could feel an intense dead feeling on the planet.

“Hey system, so we are here now. What's the plan...” Khan asked as he looked away from the planet.

[Host has arrived before the Humban planet. The host's main focus of the Humban planet is the Malevolent Sea. With that, the Host will be able to proceed with his evolution and with the chaotic mana present in the sea and would reach a new level of cultivation.

All the Host has to find the source of the Chaotic mana present in the sea and with your hands on it, activate the command for evolution. Instantly, I will lock on the object as an energy source and the evolution will fully begin...]

“Hmmm”

[The Only thing that the system didn't understand is how the host will pass through all the abyssal creatures and arrive at the bottom without getting devoured....]

The system replied as a listless look appeared on Zera's face.

“Leave that to me...” He replied and instantly, the spaceship soared downwards with speed as Zera's eyes locked down on the distance malevolent sea and he zoomed the spaceship directly to its highest speed, Mach 12.

The entire world instantly became a blur as Zeras immediately controlled the spaceship to dive down headfirst into the sea with horrifying speed.

[According to the system's calculation. The Host will be reduced to a pancake by the backward momentum of hitting the sea.]

The system notification appeared all over Zera's gaze but he paid no mind to it as hundreds of emotions flashed in his eyes and his heartrate reached an unbelievable level.

"Huuuu," Zeras exhaled and slowly, his expression turned from listless to madness. Slowly his lips parted and a malevolent grin that widened to his ears appeared as Khan opened his eyes, a dark point appearing in his left eye.

"I'll let out all out now. All of it..." Zeras mused and immediately he pressed a button on his sleeves as the shadow coat rapidly covered his body, but this time it was a different piece and the fabric was even more dark while the metallic scales covered its entire body, unlike the normal shadow robe which looked like any other fabric.

"Bastards..." Zeras said with a grin as he looked at the hundreds of abyssal creatures who already gathered at the sea and instantly the ginormous spaceship moving forth with a Mach 12 speed from space, crashed into them head-on.

KAAABOOOOOOOOOOOOM

A devastating ripple blew forth when the spaceship crashed into the sea of water as the hundreds of ginormous abyssal creatures were instantly reduced to blood and gore...

BOOOOOOOOOOOOOM

Like a cyclone, the dark sea parted in a circular format creating an open space wide in place, and instantly behind the spaceship, a figure soared downwards through the hole that has been created, eyes flashing a malevolent dark and white air blowing around kike a wave.

It was Zera's plan all along. To crash the spaceship into the malevolent sea and opened a path where he could travel and go down the sea as far as possible before the spaceship completely broke down.

Zeras kept diving head-on behind the spaceship from behind for the next 3 minutes straight, but immediately his face changed when he caught sight of a humongous shadow in the direction where the spaceship was crashing on too.

His brows furrowed wondering what it was but instantly Zeras smashed a button on his chest as thrusters blazed in both his gloves that he wore and he immediately faced them, to the left causing him to smash sideways into the malevolent sea, quickly slamming on another button before he could sink completely into the water.

A split second later

ROOOOOOOOOOOOAR....

An abyssal roar blasted out from within the sea and instantly, a gigantic mouth burst out from beneath the sea and instantly the spaceship smashed into the jaws of the gigantic creature whose entire body was that of a fish, and immediately the mouth closed up...

"Huuuuuu..." His eyes widened in horrifying shock as he looked at the spaceship being devoured in a single gulp by the ginormous fish.

If he had been just a split second late, he would have been devoured and his fate completely sealed!

"Hehe..." Zeras suddenly flashed a grin and he smashed a button on his worst as he looked at the fish which descended back into the gigantic hole in the ground where the other abyssal creatures were into.

"That hole that they are all gathered should be where the chaotic mana source should be..." Zeras mused and instantly he smashed the button on his left worst.

The gigantic abyssal creatures immediately devoured the anomaly present in the sea before returning back to its position among the other abyssal creatures when suddenly, its stomach area began widening and widening and widening.

And then...

BAAAAAAAAAAAAANG

The spaceship within it exploded and instantly the destructive energy rippled outwards toward their ginormous creatures like an unending chain of destruction.

BOOOOOOOOOOOM

BOOOOOOOOOOOM

BOOOOOOOOOOOOOM

Immediately, they all exploded with a bang and a strange gas radiated forth as the remaining abyssal creatures fled out of the space.

"Now..." Zeras screamed in his mind and instantly his boots opened up and two gigantic thrusters appeared beneath each shoe instantly, flames burst out of it as Zeras immediately flashed forward towards the pit where the abyssal creatures were running out from...

Chapter 398: Drowning

HYROCHAOTIC MOLYN II

It was a chemical that Zeras had experimented on for a total of 6 months. Knowing well the challenges that would occur with entering the abyssal sea, he knew well he needed to find something that could fight against the corrosive property of the malevolent sea.

And after 5 months of intense research, he finally found the chemical. The chemicals kill off the corrosive properties of the sea and purify it. Knowing that, Zeras had made the entire spaceship have that chemical added to every of its structure.

But not only that, he added another chemical to it which usually explodes when it comes in contact with corrosive energy. Even the entire spaceship engines and remaining seats all carried bags of the explosives and Zeras purposefully dived the spaceship down into the malevolent sea.

Once he activated the destruct button, the spaceship exploded within the stomach of the fish and the chemical coming in contact with corrosive energy immediately resulted in explosions while the second chemical purified the corrosive energy which is not in line with the properties of the abyssal creatures and therefore made them quickly exit the area.

[Hmmm, that's not bad actually...]

The system notification panel appeared in front of Zera's face but he didn't have time to even process what the system meant as the thrusters beneath his feet blazed furiously and a blue dome of energy covered his entire body, protecting him from being torn apart by the turbulent waves caused by the chaotic movements of the abyssal creatures.

Closing in towards the pit, Zeras grabbed a bottle out from his suit and immediately crushed it making the liquid splash on his entire body, and instantly, he faded away into nothing.

All the abyssal creatures walked inches past him, yet they couldn't see him at all, and a smile couldn't help but appear on his face.

"It was one of the gifts that were bestowed upon him by one of Instructor Moneca's friends, Aurelia when he wanted to leave for the Celestial Titans ruins.

The Invisible potion that could make him go invisible. He had three and had used one in the Celestial Titans' ground to run away from the bees that wanted to sting him to death, while another had been used during one of his missions. The last one, Zeras had kept for this particular moment.

Knowing well that he could be seen, he slowly swam down the pit as the ginormous creatures hurriedly tried exiting. There were times when they almost knocked him even though they couldn't see him but with his Nano thrusters, he was able to easily avoid collision and the blue barrier that encased him was a protection artifact given to him by the EIA during the mission, and was said to be able to block an attack from a peak metro rank stage.

Right now, he was using all the treasures he had gathered, and that enabled him to keep traveling down the pit for the next 3 hours non-stop.

The invisibility potion had already worn off after some time, but there strangely weren't any abyssal creatures deep within the pit greatly surprising him.

The place was entirely pitch black and he couldn't even see his own body, yet he flashed forward with his thrusters nonetheless and simply extended downwards as far as he could.

2 more hours later...

And slowly Zera's face began changing as the revolution of blood within his body began slowing down. And his hands slowly stiffened. His body was rapidly becoming cold and his head was beginning to feel fuzzy.

Even though his Nano suit enabled him to survive in the Cold corrosive sea, Zeras in absolute horror could begin feeling his Nano suit was starting to get corroded!

3 more hours...

The darkness was entirely pitch black at more than a thousand meters beneath the malevolent sea, but a red flame could still be seen burning brightly, and zooming onto it one could see it belonged to that of a thruster that pushed a body downwards.

A body that appears to be in deep slumber.

Have you ever drowned before?

An unending descent into the cold water, back facing the ground and hands flying behind, slowly one loses control of everything, and slowly, they go away, their thoughts closing, their eyes snapping to a close of absolute darkness and slowly everything grows quiet, never again to be found and the existence slowly disperses.

A death by drowning is a calm death, once a person gives up all the struggles. Then is a bliss that would last for a long while and in which most never wake up.

That was the state Zeras was in. A state of bliss as his thrusters kept pushing him downwards. His Nano suits have been reduced to a shell of their past, barely standing on their edge and protecting his tissues from also getting corroded away

The spine-biting coldness had disappeared, and it had become the most beautiful experience to him as he lay floating in the darkness.

“Come...come to me...Sink in deeper...” The voice echoed out to Zeras, like the words of a soothing mother to her dear infants and he also sank in into it.

Peaceful. Absolute peace was the words that could describe what he was feeling right now...

But it was just like the word. It was a natural law of the universe that he had slowly begun comprehending after all the struggles.

And that is that nothing ever lasts long. One can only embrace the flame for as long as it burns because it won't always burn forever...

“He is the most handsome of all men in Takamahagara...” The gentle feminine voice echoed out to his ears from within the pitch-black darkness. It was a voice, incredibly far away and more of a whisper.

“Hahaha, You're right my love. He is the son of I, Raymond, the Guardian of Takamahagara, and you, Miara, the truest descendant of the everchanging. Truly, he is the most talented of all men in Takamahagara...” The masculine voice echoed out, its boisterous voice stirring him away from the slumber.

“Father, mother...” The words echoed out from the young man's lips as he descended into the abyss.

Chapter 399: The Chaotic Monument Of Will

“Take him, take him, and go...” The masculine voice boomed out to him from the darkness as his heart began racing in his chest

“May I be cursed for eternity if I did not fight beside you, my lord...”

“No, Yamara. Take him away, away to a faraway place. That will be more blessed to me than if you fight a thousand battles by my side...” The Masculine voice boomed out once again, and Zeras could hear it, the sound of muffled subs and nails digging into flesh.

“How many times have fought on battles together, how many drinks have we had, how many stabs have we gotten...”

“There is no number that can count them all, My lord...”

“And we had no weakness at all. But now I have a weakness and that is him. With him here, I won’t be able to go all out. You have to bring him to safety...” The masculine voice said out loud.

“Then, I promise this with my life, not a single hair, not even a single hair on his head will be harmed...”

“Good, Yamara. Now go...” The voice said in haste and Zeras could faintly hear the sound of footsteps retreating faraway before they completely disappeared.

And then everything went silent, all gone, and then...

CRACK

CRACK

It was the sound of bones being cranked together...

“I am Raymond, The Unchanging one. The closest of all to Takamahagara. In my bloodline, there lives the very definition of pride, and in my name, there lives the very definition of an undying flame. Let these words be hedged in your ears, my warriors. Even if our enemies are the most powerful of all gods or the most mighty of all demons. Our blade shall cleave all of existence with a single slash...”

BAAAAANG

BAAAAANG

BAAAAANG

The sounds of the butts of spears smashing against the ground echoed out through the darkness with so much power, Zera’s heart began thrumming uncontrollably within his chest...

“Fight. We shall fight until our last drop...”

And that was what lit the flame as a pair of abyssal dark eyes flashed open through the cold void of space...

ROOOOOOOOOOOOAR

It was like a dragon had been forcefully awakened as the powerful roar surged throughout the dark pi, blowing apart the water at its very deep, and immediately the voice telling him to sink deeper was blasted away from his head.

“I will fight. Till my last drop, I will fight

...” Zeras roared out like a mad beast and instantly he smashed another button at his waist and immediately. The dying flames in his thruster immediately relit.

BOOOOOM

Shockwaves undulated forth as his body rapidly soared downwards with speed.

The rapid friction between the corrosive waters and the suit caused to sizzling sound to echo in his ears as the robes began giving in and the corrosive water splashed onto Zera’s skin, burning through it, but he only clenched his teeth even harder as he kept slamming all the buttons around his body, causing the thruster to ooze out with so much energy, and he became a flaming meteor through the sea.

SIIIIZLE

SIIIIZLE

The smell of roasted meat filled the air and his face had been reduced to a mismatch of bones and flesh. But his teeth tightly clenched together and the red veins squirming in his eyes were as clear as day.

It was as painful as being dropped in hell. The greatest pain Zeras had was getting his body experimented on and his entire DNA fracturing to pieces.

Yet it was nothing. Absolutely nothing compared to the pain of the horrifying pressure that was threatening to reduce him to a pancake. It was nothing compared to the corrosive water that was burning away at his skull and dripping on his brain.

It was nothing compared to the conscious effort of having watched his entire body melting down and getting flayed alive by chaotic energy.

“They are all waiting. They are all waiting for me...” That was the only thing he could grab on.

His new life was waiting for him. Zeras wasn’t stupid nor was he unfeeling.

He had undergone betrayal, and how quickly life can cause the entire world to go against you. But that only made him even more receptive to true love. And he could sense true love now in his new life more than ever. His organization was waiting for him. The Celestria Family still did not deserve to be forgiven and hundreds of people were only falling prey to his situation too with every passing day. Miara was still waiting for him.

He had run away from everything. He had lied to himself he was unfeeling and cold. He had been too afraid to return the love that was being given to him.

But now, he would face it head-on. Till the last drop of blood on his body, he would face it head-on.

And he truly didn't have to wait too much when his eyes opened up and the gigantic stone monument appeared just a centime from his face.

The stone monument was so huge that Zeras was like an ant before it.

Looking at its surface there were thousands of runic lines, brimming with chaotic aura that was inscribed on it. Every rune pulsed like a heartbeat and slowly they began synchronizing with something deep within him.

Unknown to Zeras, the same black stone that had been responsible for his chaos devourer gene had naturally manifested on his head and was also pulsing with the same rhythm as the dark monument.

"Wha...what is this?"

[Congratulations Host has found the object responsible for the chaotic energy present in the ocean. The host has found an ancient Chaotic Monument.]

[Chaotic monument type is being analyzed...]

[Congratulations, Host has found the Chaotic Monument of Will]

[Host should place his hands on the monument to begin his evolution...]

And just as the system commanded Zeras stretched his hands forward and pressed it on the stony surface...

And what happened next was the flame that would burn throughout all realms...

Chapter 400: The Chaotic Monument of Will 2

Placing his hands on its surface, Zeras could feel the coldness of it. Its physicality was like jagged rock but he could feel now see, it was as smooth as a glass surface.

Immediately, he laid palms on it, the dark runes edged on its surface flared brightly to life making it appear as if cracks were spreading throughout the glass and Zeras swam backward a little trying to get a full picture of the stone monuments and the runes, and only now did he even see it more clearly.

The runes weren't just zigzag lines etched on a glassy surface they all gathered together to form a drawing.

The drawing of a figure sitting down on the void of space cross-legged. But what surprised Zeras was the figure's head which had the images of a hundred celestial bodies present within and outside his body.

The presence was so real it was like he was truly standing before a mediating giant, but the presence of worlds in its head made him doubt whether that was true or not.

Nonetheless, the dark light on the stone monument kept brightening up before they all suddenly concentrated on his body.

Instantly, all the runes on the figure's body gathered on Zeras but he couldn't feel anything, almost like someone just set the flashlight of a projection on him.

But that quickly took a turn when the golden notification panel appeared...

[The Ancient Chaotic Monument has been opened]

[Host will now use its power to begin his evolution to a true chaos devourer]

Immediately, the dark crystal on Zera's forehead surged with a powerful light and it furiously formed another set of runes on his body that also formed another image but he couldn't see it or to better say wasn't given the time to as a scorching pain filled his entire being when the light was forcefully entered into his body.

"ARRRRRRRGH...." Zeras screamed out in rage when he felt it. The power flooded into his entire body. A power that threatened to raze him his entire existence. It was like a full dragon entering into his mouth, and continuously ravaging within. How could his puny body contain so much powerful force?

And immediately cracks began appearing all over Zera's skin.

His body couldn't hold on...

"A Phoenix...." The words suddenly rang out to Zeras whose blood-red eyes snapped open in shock as he looked at the figure on the totem whose eyes were wide open and staring straight at him.

His eyes were the same as Zeras's looking into the vast expanse of space. No limit at all...

“A Phoenix...” The words boomed out through his entire existence as cracks rapidly spread over all of Zera’s body.

“A Phoenix...” It rang out the third time and Zera’s eyes flashed with a thousand emotions and instantly he responded.

“Rebirth...” He screamed out. It was the only thing that came to mind when that word was heard. It was a symbol of rebirth and immortality.

“To set the body on flames, nine times...” The words once again rang out and this time, Zera’s hands enveloped in hundreds of cracks exploded into gore and blood and were burnt into nothing by the corrosive energy...

“ARRRRGH...”

“To set the body on flames, nine times...” the words once again boomed out to him as the sound of his second arm violently exploding to gore once again resounded in his ears and Zera’s teeth clenched tightly from the pain.

“To set the body on flames, nine times...” The words rang out for the third time, almost as if unable to hear his screams of agony. And in the next three seconds, Zera’s entire body was gone with only a single object present, his head...

Now he had lost connection to everything and could already smell death rapidly approaching. And with a broken smile on his face. Zera decided to do something he rarely does. To pray...

“May...may...I rise...from the ashes...Like a phoenix...” He said and like that, his last body disappeared leaving only three objects standing in the scenes.

A stone monument with a picture of a god-like being. The dark crystal that was always on Zera’s forehead. A body of white stood in between the two bodies. Made up of milky white energy. The face of the figure and even body proportions were completely the same as Zera’s.

“Alas, you have passed the test, even in half-death...” The words boomed out from the mouth of the figure who sat down cross-legged in the monument.

“You...” The figure suddenly said turning its attention the crystal that was now floating in the water.

“Destroying you, and I’ll do the world a favor...” The being said with an emotionless gaze but suddenly a dark light manifested above the dark crystal and a tiny figure appeared sitting on it.

A dark figure with a devilish form that Zeras always took when he used the hollow domain.

“Those are some big words coming out of your forsaken mouth. He already passed your stupid test so give him what he wants...” The figure who looks like a replica of Zeras said out, his voice oozing with an eye-raising disdain.

“You never learned your lesson, even after eons and eons of wars. No matter how many times you reincarnate, you will always be destroyed...” The being in the monument said as a smirk appeared on ‘Zera’s’ face but he gave no reply.

“I’ll give him the totem just as I have been ordained. Whatever happens as a result of that, only fate can be the judge of that...”

“Yeah, yeah, whatever. Slaves to fate...” ‘Zera’s’ responded and instantly he disappeared back into the crystal. Immediately, the being directed his gaze away from it before turning to look at Zeras, his expression that of pity.

“A phoenix’s Rebirth. To set the body on flames nine times for a new being to be born. O Chaotic ones, Bless him with your power. Soul To Body Rebirth...” And immediately the stone monument shattered into pieces, becoming a small dark crystal that rushed into Zera’s soul body.