

Chaos Devourer System

#Chapter 491: Lost... - Read Chaos Devourer System

Chapter 491: Lost...

Chapter 491: Lost...

Chapter 491: Lost...

Right at the top of the highest peaks present on Giaran's planet, the green water sea could be seen spreading through the entire distance, a perfect view from such a height.

And on that peak sat a young man with snowy white hair, whose eyes currently looked out at the sea, unfocused. Silence enveloped the entire area as Zeras sat down and simply allowed only himself and his emotions right now.

The memories of those thousand crystals present in what was most likely his soul space, and the figure of that enormous dragon that was tied down by those enormous chains.

He could sense its monumental disdain towards him, and he cracked his eyes of chaos with just a word. But what really rang throughout Zera's head were those words that he had mentioned.

"I swear by Takamahagara, if not for the chain wrapped around me by your mom, I would have immediately eradicated you from all planes of existence and stopped the road of Samsara from allowing you to place a foot in it for 10,000 years..."

"WEAK, HELPLESS, USELESS, YOU'RE NOT WORTHY OF BEING HER SON. BE GONE!!!"

The words kept ringing in his head all the time, even as he sat down and looked at the green sea in front of him. "I'm finally starting to understand some things. I'm finally realizing the truth..." Zeras mused out loudly as he grabbed a stone from the top of the hill and flung it downwards.

It bounced on the surface of the sea continuously before disappearing completely from Zera's view.

"A fusion that is not meant to be. I finally realize what Jason was saying in his final moments. Truth is, I should be able to control all that power present in those crystals. But I'm only able to control one, which is the Chaos devourer system.

I'm supposed to possess thousands of genes, each not a bit less in might compared to the one I currently control now. Yet, I only control one out of thousands.

To a person who expects me to be able to control thousands and I have one, how can he recognize my strength. How weak and helpless am I really, compared to what I could have been, that he knew very well.

How can I be truly worth standing before what I could have truly been. Truth is, I'm no monster, just a piece of trash!" Zeras mused as he grabbed another stone from the pile and immediately flung it down. It bounced continuously on the surface of the water and once again disappeared.

"System, did you know the cultivation base of that dragon, like an estimate?" Zeras suddenly asked as the golden notification panel appeared in front of Zera's eyes.

[The system had really scanned the entire place once the Host stepped onto it, and the system is finally open to some unbelievable secrets that the System finds unbelievable too...] The system replied as Zeras simply looked dazedly at it.

[Firstly, the system found out that the small realm is not present in the Host's DNA like Jason said, but in the Host's soul space, and the necklace on the Host's neck is actually the key to that soul space. Cultivators should be able to easily delve into their soul space with enough meditation, but the Host seems to be an anomaly to that, having to rely on an external key...] The system replied as Zeras grabbed another stone and flung it into the sea.

[Finally, the dragon's cultivation, according to the System's calculation, is, um, around two levels after the undying realm!]

"Hehehe? Is this a joke!?" Zeras laughed out like, teetering on the edge of madness.

[It is strangely not. The undying realm has the capability to bring back Jason who was dead to life once more, even though there would no doubt be some backfiring. A realm above the Undying realm should be able to reincarnate a person back to life without much problem.

As for the realm even above that, then if the word god could mean someone able to bring the dead back to life and the living to death, then I think only those cultivators have reached that level.]

[But does the Host know what is currently giving the system a headache?] The system asked as Zeras raised an eyebrow.

[The dragon that the host met is almost a god, and yet, it got tied down by the Host's mum. That begs the question, Zeras, just who the hell is your mum!?] The system asked as Zeras looked into the distance at the sea, and his teeth clenched tightly.

"I don't understand at all. I have no idea at all. I feel like an ordinary mortal treading among gods. I feel like I'm unworthy. How can I feel like that!" Zeras wondered as his teeth clenched tightly together, and his hands shifted to claws, digging roughly into his palms. What type of trash feels like he's unworthy of his own mother, yet, the emotion was drowning him completely. He was weak and helpless.

How could he truly be worth being the son of a goddess? His origin was just too messed up. So messed up, he feels like he's unworthy of being discussed at all. And finally, he reached a breaking point.

"HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAH"

The laugh of a person who had been fed up with everything. The laugh of a person who believed he had nothing more to lose.

And some moments of silence passed, and suddenly with a slight reverberation of his muscles, Zeras jumped up from where he sat as he looked into the green sea.

He had made his choice, now was the time to leave up to what he was lacking. Now was the time to become the son of a goddess.

He was tired of having anyone who knows of his true origin looking at him disdainfully. He was forcefully going to change their gaze.

He was going to shock them all. And everything begins with a single crazy decision!

Chapter 492 Two Requests[Bonus Chapter]

"Then fuck it all. Fuck it all. I'll become who I was supposed to be: one who controls thousands of abilities. I will devour all those crystals and become a god!" Zeras declared with a maddened expression.

"System..." Zeras called out, and immediately his right eye, which was the only one with a blue color, started changing into a crimson red, until his eyes were completely crimson red like blood. Now, abyssal dark eyes and red eyes looked into the blue sea.

[What?]

[Can you tell me how I can enter that space one more time?] Zeras asked as the notification panel appeared once more in his eyes.

[It has to be known that the Host was only able to enter that place because the Host was triggered by that strange word! Entering into the Host's soul space would require some external stimuli before...]

"Hey, system..." Zeras suddenly called out.

"Do you know, ever since you have fused with me, you have been lying to me. If I had known that I can access those powers, I'm sure I would have done all I can to find a way back into that space, but you kept it from me.

You know of my origin, don't you? You kept it away from me too. Do you know, right now, apart from how desperately I want those crystals, what I want next would be to bring an end to your existence..." Zeras said with such an abyssally dark tone that it would have caused any man to piss his pants.

\[If you can't open that space for me right now, then I promise that one day when I reach the level of a god, the first thing I would do is tear you out from my head, and then rip you into pieces.\] Zeras barked as a grin appeared on his face.

And one could tell, even though he was smiling, he was far from joking. He meant everything he said, word for word.

\[If the Host wants to desperately enter back into that space that much, then truly is one singular way.\]

"I know, you're a bastard..." Zeras said with an abysmally dark grin.

\[The way is for the system to forcefully storm open the necklace. And transfer the Host in. But this might very well be the last time, the Host would be able to enter than soul space or the Host will never be able to exit that soul space, as another door would have to be created to exit.

Host can take it the difficulty as another necklace being created, which I doubt the Host would be able to do.\]

"Hmmm, so I either get stuck into the soul space forever, or I lose access to it forever..." Zeras mused as the golden notification panel appeared once more.

\[Those the Host finally understand, why the system sometimes refuses to give the Host answers. Because, the answers are just too damaging.\]

"I have made my choice..." Zeras muttered as he looked onto the vast expanse of space, before suddenly he turned to look behind him.

"So here you are..." The excited voice of Audrey rang in his ears as Zeras looked at the Giaan who slowly walked towards him.

"You don't look like a person who just seemed to be a step away from death a few hours ago..." Audrey commented as he slapped Zeras on the shoulder playfully.

"What can I say, I was lucky to have such a lucky healer on ground.." Zeras replied as Audrey chuckled.

"Lucky you, then. And you seem to have quite the good eyes.." Audrey said as he looked at the beautiful scene of the sea flowing from the height.

"I have a request, Audrey..." Zeras suddenly said as Audrey sat his butt on the ground and looked into the distance.

"Ask away..." Audrey said as he suddenly rubbed his hand on the ground and a strange flower grew up from it. Plucking the flower, he pulled out the stalk as he began chewing on it, a satisfied expression on his face.

"I need a place to grow my strength. A place secure, a place where I can scream and not a single soul will hear..." Zeras asked as Audrey laughed out loud.

"That is a funny request. You can just say you want to go into close meditation and you need a cave..." Audrey said to him as Zeras smiled.

"Well, Giarans and humans sure have different accents..." Zeras replied as Audrey stood up and looked at him seriously.

"I'm glad that you ask for that, Zeras. You know, the Prodigies war event will be happening just three weeks from now. All the various clans right now would have their various geniuses in meditation, trying all they could to improve their strength.

I'm glad you asked to improve your strength. It shows me you're really taking your part of the deal pretty seriously..." He said as Zeras smiled.

Only if he knew just what craziness he wanted to do right now.

"Do you need any resource you need for your cultivation, battle arts, law books, anything you want and I'll try my best to fulfill..." Audrey said as Zeras raised an eyebrow before a smile appeared on his face.

"I need a medicine..." Zeras asked as Audrey raised an eyebrow.

"A medicine?"

"Yes. A medicine that can heal the soul or the consciousness..." Zeras asked as Audrey's eyes narrowed and he looked at the sea below them.

"Then there's only one place to find what you seek..." He said as Zeras looked at him with a curious expression on his face.

"The Sea of life..." Audrey suddenly said as he pointed to the sea below them.

"This body of water? It just looks to me like any other water body. Well, except that it is green. Is there something I'm missing?"

"Jump in.." Audrey commanded as he dived into the sea, and he quickly disappeared within its depths, Zeras following him a moment later.

Chapter 493: A Mad Decision

Rapidly traversing the cold waters of the sea of life, the two figures swiftly swarmed downward with horrifying speed. As they rapidly approached the bottom of the sea, Zeras expected to see nothing but sand, but instead, he beheld an entirely new world of mountains and large peaks beneath the sea itself.

Looking at the mountains, he could see various holes carved into them, resembling cultivation chambers. Despite the hundreds of chambers in each mountain, Audrey didn't stop, ignoring them as he led Zeras deeper through the ocean of mountains. After traversing for more than hours, they arrived before a gigantic mountain that almost covered their entire sight.

Standing before it, Audrey stretched out his hands and touched the mountain surface. Magical green light emanated from the runic lines inscribed on it. After waiting for a minute for all the runes to brighten, a dark vortex materialized out of the runes, revolving like a black hole. Audrey turned to look at Zeras, and in the next second, he flared out brightly with green energy, creating a domain that pushed away the water, forming an empty water domain around them.

"The event starts in just three weeks. If you don't exit back then, I'll come looking for you. But you can rest assured, none but me can open this up, so you can cultivate without having to worry about anything. And if you're serious about the scream, then I assure you, not a single soul will hear your scream, perhaps save for your cat which has been dying to be a great fisherman for the past three days..." Audrey said, pointing towards a place where Zeras could see Fluffy jumping around the water surface.

"I never knew void cats like fishing. And Is it just me or is that tiny thing walking on the water? How the hell did you even get your hands on a four striped cat, Zeras.

He would be able to control a total of four elements once it properly grew up. No doubt become a very useful companion. Perhaps, a war pet?" Audrey said as they both looked at fluffy, clicking his tongue in how lucky Zeras was.

Unfortunately, the thought of Fluffy ever fighting has never crossed Zera's mind at all. He simply allowed the cat to have its way all the time, but nonetheless, he would kill anyone who dared to purposefully harm a single fur on it, without excuse.

"Thank you, Audrey," Zeras said as Audrey simply shrugged it off. Immediately, Zeras entered the dark portal, which closed behind him as Audrey stood in the water, looking at the cave with furrowed eyebrows. When he had met Zeras at the top of the mountain, he had sensed some strange change in him that he couldn't quite place. Now, when Zeras asked for a place to cultivate silently, it piqued his curiosity even more, as he had learned from the D'arvey that Zeras had not cultivated a single time throughout their journey.

"Whatever happens, I look forward to that change in three weeks," Audrey said to himself before swiftly ascending, leaving the sea in absolute quietness.

Immediately, Zeras stepped through the portal, feeling like he had entered a completely different world as a strange energy assaulted him. Noticing it wasn't Mana but some sort of new energy, he felt all his headaches slowly clearing away.

Looking around, he saw he was in some sort of cave, with a pool of liquid at the center, its colors forever changing.

"Scan," Zeras ordered, and immediately, the god notification panel appeared in front of his face.

"Pool of life: A pool containing one of the purest essences in this world. The essence of life. Very good in curing consciousness," the notification read.

"Hmm, seems he didn't forget about what I asked him," Zeras muttered to himself as he looked around the cave.

"Right at the farthest area of the sea, not a single soul would be able to hear me from here..."

"What is the host planning to do?" the system asked.

"Become what I ought to have been since all this while," Zeras replied as he took off all of his clothes, leaving only his underwear.

"If the host is talking about forcefully fusing with the crystals, then the host is simply asking for suicide," the system warned.

"Really?" Zeras asked as he stepped into the pool, feeling a cold sensation spreading through his body as he transformed into his true form, a three-meter-tall devil coated in red scales.

"Yes. According to the system's estimate, the host had not yet been able to fuse with another crystal because the host's soul space and the golden necklace are slowly establishing a new connection. Unfortunately, the connection was broken by Jason Celestria..."

"Seems Jason did more damage than we thought he did," Zeras replied, unperturbed.

"But now the necklace has found its way back to the host and is rapidly establishing that connection. According to the system's estimate, in just 5 or 6 more years, the connection would have been complete, and the host will be able to naturally fuse with one more crystal and obtain a new gene,” the system explained.

“And how many years will it take to fuse with the third crystal?” Zeras inquired.

“According to the system’s estimate, around five years after the host fuses with the second crystal...”

“So it’ll take every five years to fuse with a new crystal, and there are more than a thousand crystals there. How long would it take to fuse with them all? Five thousand years? Five thousand years to reach my full potential, something that I ought to reach, since all this while, if not for mishap?” Zeras pondered aloud.

And the system remained silent.

“I can’t wait. I can’t wait for five thousand bloody years before I become worthy enough of my own mother! I’ll be devouring all those crystals right now! And I’ll appear before that fucking snake and force him to spill out all those fucking secrets. I’ve waited fucking enough already,” Zeras screamed out in anger.

Chapter 494: Then Let It Be A Fucking Bloody War!

“I can’t wait. I can’t wait for five thousand bloody years before I become worthy enough of my own mother! I’ll be devouring all those crystals right now! And I’ll appear before that fucking snake and force him to spill out all those fucking secrets. I’ve waited fucking enough already,” Zeras screamed out in anger.

“Ahhh, Zeras, this is stupid. Do you know, in those other crystals, you’ll find other genes but also other systems? They would want to fuse with you, but can you handle thousands of systems in your head or thousands of crystals in your body? Your body is not strong enough; it’ll implode like a balloon.”

“Then I’ll destroy all those systems and put my body to the test. Don’t you say the Chaos devourer body is unrivaled? When was the time I have even put that to the test? Well, I’ll be testing whether you’re a fucking bloody liar or not.”

“You want to fight with the systems. Haha, you’re an idiot! You want to fight with a thousand systems. If I materialize into a physical form, which should be possible in your soul space, it’ll be a fucking bloody battle, Zeras. Talk less of fighting a thousand of me? It’ll be a fucking massacre,” the system said as Zeras closed his eyes and sank into the sea.

“Let it be a fucking bloody war then.”

“WHAT!!!”

"Do your job, system. And get me in there already," Zeras commanded as the system remained silent for a while, and Zeras could swear he heard the sound of sighing in his head.

"I'm waiting."

"Ok, ok, Zeras. Listen to me, I have a plan! Bloody hell, when did you change so much?"

"When I got tired of some idiots dictating my fate!" Zeras replied.

"Whatever! We'll be working on a plan together to make sure your body doesn't implode. And I'll be telling you a secret about the Chaos devourer body."

"I hope you're not just trying to waste my time, because I'll never listen to some fairy tale for five years."

"Look, Zeras. Your body. Do you see all those red scales on your body?" The system asked as Zeras snatched.

"I fucking see them all the time."

"Good. Those scales reach up to a thousand, don't they? In truth, all those scales have entire worlds within them. At their full potential, they would be entire worlds."

"I would have been surprised if I was some small chicken of the past three years."

"The goal is to keep those crystals into your scales! Your scales are entire worlds, so they should be able to contain the crystals. Put all the crystals into your scales, Zeras. And you will reach a level of physical strength that would tear that stupid dragon himself into pieces," the system replied as Zeras's grin widened abysmally.

"Now you're talking like a Chaos devourer system!"

"But, Zeras, you'll have to first destroy the various system's consciousness that is present in those crystals. You won't be able to control a thousand voices in your head at the same time, nor would those systems agree to be locked in a scale. They might choose to implode on you, reducing you to ashes. As for how you fight a thousand systems, then that is completely up to you, Zeras. And I'm talking in thousands because this might very well be the last time you access your soul space; it'll be too damaged after the battle, and this water won't be able to heal it up to five percent! If only you can listen to me and play it safe. Wait for some years more, Zeras. You have been waiting for all these years, and that is why you're here right now. Just wait some years more, and you'll have everything you want!" the system once again tried to convince him. Unfortunately, Zeras had already made up his mind.

“Transport me now,” Zeras ordered as the sound of sighing rang out once more in his head.

“Guess, this is how fate is, huh. Not even I can escape it!” The system replied, and immediately, Zera’s necklace began radiating with a powerful golden light.

Brighter.

Brighter.

Brighter...

Until an incredibly bright golden halo filled the entire room, and immediately, the golden light illuminated all of Zera’s sight, and instantly, Zera felt himself getting dragged somewhere at speed. As the light in the room dimmed, the only left in it was a devil who simply slept still in the pool of water.

The golden necklace came to rest on Zera’s chest, but something that was never meant to occur happened. The golden necklace disappeared into ashes that floated into the air, forever lost to time.

And with a poof, the necklace that ought to serve as a key for Zera’s consciousness immediately disappeared!

“Grand Elder! Grand Elder! Please heed my call and wake from your slumber,” the sound of intense begging could be heard as a thousand-meter-tall titan knelt before a 100,000-meter-tall ginormous mountain banging his head on the ground, so much blood flowed out of it. The entire planet shook fervently with every bang of the titan’s head.

“What could have made your still heart shake so much, my dear disciple,” the voice rang out from the mountain as Kenji raised up his head, tears spilling out of sea, its sheer magnitude rivalling that of a sea.

“The Cosmic Force Grand Elder. The Cosmic force of Takamahagara is rapidly turning. Something, something is tearing apart the fabric of fate!” Kenji roared out loud, as he coughed up a sea of blood from his mouth and fainted.

And suddenly, the mountain began unfolding, and in a blink, the mountain had disappeared, and now stood a rocky man who reached up to 100,000 meters tall.

His eyes, the representation of a thousand coms violently jagged at the empty air, and right before his eyes was the river of fate, but right now, the river that had not rippled for countless eons, was starting to shake fiercely with an exceedingly powerful wave.

“WHAT THE!!!” The giant screamed out with so much power, half the entire planet he stood on was fractured from the momentum behind his mere word.

“Just who the hell is disrupting the balance of a million eons!!!”

Chapter 495: Awakening Of Ancient Existence...

Chapter 495: Awakening Of Ancient Existence...

“Now I feel it, closer than ever...” The voice rumbled through the entire golden planet, where laid a massive structure, millions of strange golden runic lines inscribed on its surface revealing bursts of golden lights that illuminated the entire planet. The voice was from none other than the figure who stood at a thousand meters tall, its body brimming with extremely powerful golden light while its heart pumped within its chest, sending a violent pulse of energy that caused the entire space around him to go haywire, creating an illusion of the birth and destruction of the space around him. Its golden eyes were currently opened, and its pupils were narrowed, its gaze passing through countless galaxies and billions of miles, and this time it came to rest on a single planet.

“He has finally been locked on! He must be destroyed before he damages the river of fate even more...” The figure’s voice rumbled, entire laws before his mouth shattering to pieces and getting erased from all existence.

“ARRRRRIIIIIIISSSSSEEEEEEE....” The roar boomed throughout the entire planet and suddenly the floor began shaking with power as if a massive earthquake was occurring; unfortunately, this was no earthquake. The ground was torn apart, massive streaks of lines appearing all over its surface and from within, figures began appearing, each of them 500 meters in height. They were the very definition of masculinity, their bodies bulging with so much powerful muscles that the entire seemed incapable of containing them. They were humanoid, except they possessed six arms and were enveloped in some sort of metallic golden color. They were all like minions of the figure who sat on top of the massive structures, and the figure’s eyes flashed as he looked at his children. Yes, children, before they reached tens of thousands!!!

“A total of ten thousand of you will go to this world and bring me the head of this figure...” The voice rumbled as a picture appeared in the heads of thousands of such people, and instantly they all took to the sky and rapidly disappeared away from the golden planet, soaring through space with speed.

“That should be enough to save this world from extinction. The rest of you can go back to slumber...” He ordered, and immediately, the land became the gigantic maw of a whale, instantly devouring all of them as everything returned back to normal! And slowly the massive eye also closed back once more, as the world was once again enveloped in silence...

“A Being That Could Shake The River Of Fate So Much! An Anomaly... That Must Not Exist!!!”

It was a dark stretch of the void of space, illuminated by red stars, each of them 50 times larger than Earth. Yet the space stunk with the smell of the deepest of hells, as below those red stars was a long river of red. A river of blood that filled the entire space, mixed in with the bodies of thousands and thousands of ginormous corpses!!! Suddenly, a ripple could be heard from the ripple of space, and from the sea of blood, a body slowly floated up to its surface, a small humanoid body, the most handsome of all men anyone had ever laid their eyes on. Even though he was floating in this bloody waters, he radiated an otherworldly clean and pure aura, but instead of his aura being pleasing to the eyes, his aura made anyone feel like they were standing before the greatest evil to ever live.

“Hmm, a greater anomaly has risen once again. And this time, with such momentum that it shook the stake river of fate so much. I can smell it, I can smell that it is once again my time... my time to HUNT!!!”

A Cosmos! A red cosmos, unlike any other before. Its sheer size, of course, could never hope to be calculated, nor the amount of dark worlds present on it. In the vast expanse of this exceedingly dark cosmos, darkness reigns supreme, swallowing the feeble flickers of light with relentless hunger. From the depths of the void to the highest echelons of power, corruption thrives like an insidious tumor feeding off the suffering of the weaklings! But at the center of this cosmos was a gigantic world! A world bigger than anything that an ordinary mortal had ever laid their eyes on. In this world, Demonic overlords, and eldritch abominations of unfathomable power slumber, their evil aura as boundless as the void itself...

Before these bodies that laid slumbering, there laid a throne, an ebony dark throne, and beside the throne was a smaller throne, where a figure could be seen seating. A feminine figure, in all shape humanoid, with beauty that none in the world would be able to match. From her forehead, red horns pierced out, their color the purest shade of the thickest blood, her pale white skin, covered in that beautifully red gown that brimmed with countless ancient runes. The world was exceedingly quiet until suddenly, the feminine figure raised up her head and looked up at the red stars. Her eyes suddenly opened, and within it, one could see the illusion of a thousand souls wailing and screaming in anguish, as her eyes flashed in those abyssal red light, before suddenly she smiled, her smile reaching directly to her ears.

“My King! My King Has Awoken! One With The Purest Devilish Bloodline. One Who Had Been Lost For Countless Eons. The Purest Of Us All. A True Chaos Devourer!” She whispered, her abyssal red eyes twinkling with the greatest joy that anyone would have ever seen.

And then she turned to look at the various abominations beneath her feet who were all slumbering.

“Malgazar, the Malevolent!”

“Azazel the Abyssal Lord.”

“Mordred, the Dark Conqueror...”

“You Three Arise And Escort The King In...” Her gentle voice rang out loud and clear, ringing through the ends of the world, and immediately, three crimson lights flashed through the world and immediately, they had disappeared through the empty space, as if they were nothing but a mirage.

And once again the lady sat down on her throne, and looking at the gigantic throne once more, she closed her eyes and once again descended into slumber, but this time, with a smile on her face!

Chapter 496: Zeras Battles With The Systems!

In the next second, Zeras felt himself rapidly pulled by some strange force, but this force was clearly different as normally he never felt himself getting pulled forcefully before. He just found himself within the space. But this time, he could feel the intense pulling on his consciousness, one very forceful, but Zeras remained unflinching and didn't struggle against the pull at all.

Less than a moment later, he found himself once again still and slowly opening his eyes. What he saw was thousands of crystals right in front of his face.

“It's you again!?” The angered voice of the dragon rang in his ears, but Zeras didn't even spare him a glance as he focused on the various crystals. Immediately, an extremely dark light appeared in his eyes, and with a will, Zeras shifted into his Chaos Devourer form, becoming a three-meter-tall devil, even in his soul form.

“ROOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOARRRRRRRR!” A mighty roar surged through the space where the crystals were heard, space itself succumbing to the power of the roar as stars knocked into each other, and all were pushed back by Zera's roar, huddling together 50 meters away from him.

And just as expected, each and every crystal suddenly began lighting up, and from within them, they began emerging. Humanoid beings no different from Zera's normal soul form, but what distinguished them was their strange colors, each of them possessing a unique and vibrant hue.

“Why have you come here, kid? To disturb us from our slumber...” One of the Zeras, oozing with powerful golden energy, said as Zeras laughed abyssally.

“Kid? I am your master. And today, I have come to awaken you to do what you were created to do!” Zeras replied, as he watched snickers and grins appear on their faces.

“And how exactly are you supposed to do that? You're so disgustingly weak, it's a shame that we all have to even fuse with you at all. You're unworthy of our power! Be gone!!!” Each of them roared out, and just like the dragon, an apocalyptic power of multicolored energy roared forward towards Zeras, whose smile widened to his ears.

And slowly, Zeras could feel himself sinking into that consciousness. That second him, if it can be called that, the him, that doesn’t reason normally, the mad him!

“YOU ALL BE GONE!!!” Zeras roared out powerfully, his eyes rapidly flashing with intense red as a gigantic mushroom of red energy burst out of his mouth and smashed against the energy that was swimming toward him.

What followed was a devastating explosion that rocked the entire space as both energies tried to forcefully tear apart the other, but much to the surprise of all the other Zeras, they watched as their energy got immediately canceled by Zera’s and immediately the rest of it smashed towards them with horrific power.

Yet none of them made a move, as a Zeras with astral blue color suddenly raised his hands and then clapped them together!

Tap

Immediately, the sound echoed through the space, and the surging remnants energy that was swimming towards them immediately disappeared!

Erased from all of existence with a simple clap from the Zeras!

“This is MY Soul Space! You don’t get to decide whether I leave or stay. Not you, neither the one who put you all here!!!” Zeras roared out in anger, yet all he was given was repeated snickering from them.

“You all are blind! And I’ll be showing you just how blind you all are! Now!!!” Zeras whispered to them and in the next second, he began expanding!

YES!

Zeras was expanding.

Instantly from three meters, Zeras reached 1000 meters, and then his size doubled by the time reaching 10,000 meters, then ten more times reaching 1,000,000 meters. Right now, all of those Zeras looked like ants before him, and even the dragon lying outside was like a small rope!

“Do you all know what I have learned about this place? It is that right here, I am the one and only true god!!! And I’ll be devouring you all! Let me see how you resist me!” Zeras’ voice boomed out with such power, the thousands of Zeras felt their entire bodies quivering from intense vibration, making the world turn upside down.

And when they looked up once more, what they all saw was a throat., and in the next second.

Clench

Zera's clenched his teeth tightly and then forcefully swallowed.

"You! You gulped down all the crystals!!?" The dragon roared out loud in shock, as Zeras turned his abyssal eyes towards him.

"Oh don't get jealous. I'll be gulping you down too soon!!!" Zeras replied as the dragon's eyes flashed in shock at the humor before it laughed.

"Gulp me down!!!? That is only if you don't explode from them right now..." It laughed and in the next second, Zeras' face changed, as he suddenly felt his stomach widening. And widening and widening almost like it was about to burst!

"Heheheh, want to escape? You all think too highly of yourselves..." And instead of fighting back, Zeras only wished for one thing!

EXPAND!!!

He kept expanding! His stomach got bigger almost to the point of bursting, but Zeras expanded so much that his stomach, which was just about to burst, became the normal size of his body.

And once his stomach once again widened to the point of almost bursting, he turned himself even bigger.

And the fight became one of who will first give up. Would they be able to burst out of Zera's stomach first, or will Zeras be able to keep them at bay by repeatedly expanding himself!

And after countless amounts of time, a winner emerged!

Zeras grew so big, that he could easily contain all of the crystals within his body. And the crystals could no longer add any more force to make his stomach widen even more!

In the exchange between Zeras and the crystals, Zera had won and managed to keep all of them within his body!

But, the battle had only just begun!!!

Chapter 497 Zera's Betrayal!!!![Bonus Chapter]

"Do you really think you can trap us within your body!?" The roar of rage boomed out from the Zeras who were currently residing in Zeras' stomachs as Zeras laughed manically.

"Tch, then open your blind eyes, you kiddo, and watch as we reduce your internal organs into nothing!" The system all roared out, and in the next second.

BOOOOOOOM

BOOOOOOOM

BOOOOOOOOOOOM

The apocalyptic explosion was undeniable, as Zeras' body automatically puffed out loud, and with every hit, the white gas surrounding his skin rapidly dimmed.

"You'll be the one to die first if you don't release them..." The dragon said out in mockery to Zeras, but Zeras paid it no attention!

"Hey, system," he suddenly called out, and right before the dragon's eyes, a dark Zeras suddenly materialized before Zeras' face.

"I have locked them in, how will you lock them into my scales?" Zeras asked as the dark-haired Zeras looked at Zeras' body which was puffing all over, a result of the overwhelming power that was currently running amok beneath his skin.

It was no doubt going to be the most painful sensation ever, and if not because Zeras was in his soul form, he would have no doubt already coughed out a sea of blood.

"This is too risky; your soul body is rapidly dispersing. I'm sure it would have dispersed already if not because of that water that your physical body is in. It is the one rapidly healing your consciousness..."

"I asked a damn question..." Zeras roared out in rage at it as the dark Zeras coughed and quickly regained itself.

"Ok. What you have to do is to make sure you exhaust all of their energy! Right now, they all are trying their best to break out of your body and therefore are using extremely powerful attacks which are no doubt exhausting their energy!

What you have to do is last long enough to make them all exhaust their energy!" The system replied as Zeras' eyebrows furrowed before his eyes twinkled.

There was no need to kid himself; he knew well he wouldn't last that much. His soul body just as the system said was truly rapidly dispersing into nothing. If he doesn't find a way to rest them down, then he would no doubt be dying soon.

"Your plan won't work!" Zeras replied as the system sighed. How could it have known Zeras would choose to gulp all of them down?

"Well, do you have a better idea?" The system asked as Zeras' eyebrows furrowed before his eyes twinkled.

"I do."

"Oh, what is it?"

"You have to come inside my stomach and begin to kill them one by one!"

"What the? Are you insane? They are thousands of them, many of which have power not any lesser and even greater than mine, And you want me to kill them!? They can kill me, and that would mean my existence getting erased forever! There is no way in the world I'll do that!" The system replied, shaking its head firmly.

The systems are not bonded to each other, and one could kill the other. Once it is caught killing its rest, then the others would gather on it and kill it also. Once that happened, it would be erased from existence eternally, but that wouldn't mean Zeras losing his Chaos devourer gene. Zeras would still be able to use the Chaos devourer gene. It would be the only one missing.

That, to it, sounded like a ploy from Zeras to eliminate it, and there was no way it would agree to that!

"They are fighting within my body, within my domain. I can hide you from their eyes. And even if in the impossible scenario they caught onto you, in a split second, I can drag you out back.

Are you saying if you're caught you will be immediately killed before a split second!?" Zeras asked as the dark Zeras' eyebrows furrowed.

"I don't believe you can bring them out within the span of a second!?"

It replied as Zeras suddenly opened his mouth.

"Just stay on my tongue. And see if I can summon you out or not!" Zeras said with a confident expression on his face as the dark Zeras' eyebrows furrowed.

But then it regained its confidence as it slowly moved towards Zera's wide-open mouth and stood on Zera's tongue, and Zeras slowly closed his teeth tightly.

But immediately, Zeras closed his teeth, an abyssal grin appeared on Zeras' lips and in the next second

SWWAAALLLOW!

Zeras swallowed the Chaos Devourer system into his stomach.

Immediately, the dark Zeras' face changed instantly as it was sent falling down through Zera's ginormous throat and landed into his stomach.

The system's eyes widened in shock as it couldn't believe it. Zeras had betrayed it!!!

"Is this some funny joke, Zeras!!!" It roared out loud as an abyssal laughter boomed out of Zeras' mouth.

"Now all the stupid systems have been trapped in my stomach. You think I don't know what you have been up to, damn system? You think I don't know that you're just trying to one day take over my body? You think I don't know you have been plotting against me all this while!!!" Zeras said with an abyssal grin as the system's face changed massively.

"How...How did you know!?" It roared out in disbelief as Zeras' face changed massively before he suddenly laughed out loud.

"Actually, I don't know. I just knew right now. I was suspicious though, ever since you have stayed talking like a human. When I first met you, you used to call me 'Host,' but as I level up and after my evolution, you started calling me Zeras. And in serious situations, you don't call me host anymore but Zeras instead.

If you're truly a system, you should be programmed with just one thing, and the only thing you should call me is Host! Besides, how many times have you lied to me? Deceiving me?"

"What lie!!?" The system roared out as Zeras chuckled abyssally.

"All of these systems, including you, are not any guardians put in control to make sure I become some strong person in the future. All of you are once-living entities, and all you're trying to do is to take over my body!"

"You, the Chaos Devourer system, just happen to be smarter and luckier than the rest!"

Chapter 498: Devouring The Crystals!

"Splendid! Splendid!!!" The roar of encouragement came from none other than the dragon, who kept roaring out loud as Zeras directed his attention to him with a raised eyebrow.

“You know they are all different entities and not systems?” Zeras asked in shock as the dragon looked at him with hatred in its eyes.

“You have won a little of me with your crafty nature, and I might as well tell you your stupidity. The crystals were your special ability, but your mother felt they were overwhelming for you to control so much, so she did a little something to every crystal to make them more comprehensible for you, so much that you can naturally use every of their abilities just like breathing.

But there was a time limit placed on every crystal. You ought to have already possessed their power when you were around 15 at most, but you, due to your laziness or some stupid excuse, didn’t do it.

And those small things your mother added eventually changed and became living entities who once used the abilities in the past.

All of them are those people you locked in your stomach, including that dark one. They all are dead but ancient powerful entities. What do you think they would want the most? To take your body, of course, and one day reveal themselves to the world! Your mum might have tried to help you quickly learn the abilities, but she had also created a perfect condition for powerful entities to gain control of your body! I’m surprised you were able to find out that so quickly and deal with it so quickly too,” the dragon said with a brilliant smile before its face immediately changed to disgust.

“Still, you’re a piece of trash of a crafty fox, completely unlike your mother...” It roared out at Zeras after the compliment as Zeras directed his attention away from it and narrowed his eyes.

“Hmph, bastard system! I knew something was wrong when you always told me to grow stronger. You were always the one in a rush as if I’m some sort of abomination. The problem all this while was you...”

“You’re A Fool If You Think That Way!!!” The words rang out from behind him as Zera turned his shocked eyes to the dragon. “What?”

“You think your Chaos Devourer gene is an abomination? Tch, it’s a piece of trash! Once you fuse with all these crystals, you’ll understand who the true abomination is!!!” The dragon said before snapping its eyes close.

And finally, Zeras directed his attention and focused on those crystals that were now floating in front of him. He had swallowed all the systems present in them into his stomach and now remaining was the pure crystals, just like they were meant to be...

“Now, I’ll be burrowing your ideas, Chaos Devourer system. I’ll be fusing all these crystals into my Chaos Devourer scales and create a truly supreme body. A body holding thousands of genes!!!

“Heheheheheheheh...” Zeras laughed out like a true psychopath as the explosions in his body instantly increased by a thousand-fold, a result of the systems doing all they could to burst out of his body, but all was for naught as Zeras held them down with everything he had, and ignoring them, he concentrated on the task at hand...

“In This Space, I am The God. Then I’ll bring my true physical body in...” Zeras muttered and in the next second, he sat on the ground as he concentrated hard, trying to feel a link. The link that connected his soul in the soul space together with his physical body currently present outside it. And faintly, Zeras slowly sensed that link.

“You All Hit harder, Never let him sense the link, confuse him! Distract Him!!!” The roar of rage from the Chaos Devourer system rang out as they kept slamming hard against Zeras but it was all for naught! Slowly, a tear appeared right in front of Zera’s face, and concentrating hard on that tear, the body appeared slowly, tearing apart the space to make it even bigger and finally it fully came out and rested before Zeras whose eyes flashed brightly in the same devious light.

“Now it remained just one more step...” Zeras said out as he pointed his hands to the crystals and immediately they all moved towards him, coming to rest before Zeras’ body. “There was almost nothing for him to do at all, as all the crystals, now that they were no longer controlled by the system, all immediately tried diving towards Zeras’ body but Zeras held them back.

He could see the scales present on every part of his skin, and could sense the myriad abilities of the crystals. He had to make sure they match with his body part. For example, from one of the crystals, Zeras was dragged into a vision as he concentrated on it...

The entire world was extremely quiet, mountain hills and forest surrounding the entire place as various birds chirped and various animals ran around the place.

UNTIL

BOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOM!

A gigantic meteor suddenly smashed down from the heavens themselves and immediately a devastating explosion rang out, as Zeras watched the entire world shatter apart and was sent into the void of space.

But what shocked Zeras to his core was that, what he thought was a meteor was actually a leg! A leg coated in thousands of runic lines, each brimming with a powerful aura!

In the next second, his eyes snapped back to reality as he looked at the yellow crystal and a smile appeared on his face.

Directing such type of crystals to scale in his hands would be wrong, because as shown, the crystal was a power that rang through very well with his legs, and so the best place for it was on a scale on his legs.

Immediately, Zeras' eyes narrowed as he concentrated his senses on a single scale on his legs and magnified his attention.

Slowly but surely, he could sense the world that his system claimed was present in every of his scales!

A pitch-black void hidden in every of his scales!

Chapter 499: Zeras Death!!?

And immediately, Zeras permitted the crystals only a single place on his body which was none other than the red scales on his leg, and in the next second, it exploded becoming a runic symbol and dived into Zera's legs.

With utmost focus, Zeras watched as the pitch-black void of the world, in the scales, became creating apart and immediately, the world of darkness became a world of astral blues...

And the gigantic astral blue crystals appeared in the middle of the astral blue world and began pumping like a heart, every of the pump, causing the pitch red scales on Zera's legs to become painted in an astral blue as Zeras watched thousand of ruins emanated from the crystal and clutching hard against the world!

"This...This is it. Those runes are where the abilities are hidden. Instead of waiting for the system to unlock the abilities after evolution.

All I need now is to comprehend each rune, and once I do, I'll learn a new ability from the crystals!" Zeras mused to himself, and understanding that, he dove out of the world as he focused on another crystal, watched its vision to understand what part of his body will best fit and immediately he placed it where it should be, his pitch black world in the crystal, lighting up by the world.

BOOOOOOOOOOM

BOOOOOOOOOOM

BOOOOOOOOOOM

It was like those entities had gone mad as they continued hitting hard on Zeras but they only reminded him, he needs to keep going harder.

Unknowingly to Zeras, the dragon currently had one of his eyes opened, as he looked at the ginormous figure of Zera, whose body pumped, apocalyptic power rippling out due to the destructiveness from the beings attacking him as the young man's soul rapidly dimmed, yet he continued fusing those crystals into every of his scales, even through the pain of his soul light rapidly dimming, and the horrifying pain that comes from the attack!

"A Fusion of thousands of Genes, in a body, playing in my very own eyes. Another World-ending monster is being born.

Another Monster just like you is being born, master. Your son is now awakening..." The dragon mused out, its voice quivering, as it looked at the body that was laying on the soul space.

Every of Zera's crimson red scales had fully changed color and now, he was undulating with power! Power that made the eyes of the dragon himself flash in caution.

Compared to the dragon's true power, even the power that Zera's body held right now was still not worthy enough. But the dragon saw more.

It saw what it had seen on its master when he chose to become her life and death companion. He saw the horrific potential for growth, and he could now see the same on her master's son.

But this, he had to say was even grander, as he had chosen a completely new and crazy path that no one had ever imagined, nor had chosen. He had defied the original part that its master has placed down and walked on a completely new path...

And with his soul light remaining just a scanty screen of light, Zeras fused the last crystal right on the last scale present on his chest. And when he fused with all the crystals with his Chaos Devourer body

KAAABBOOOOOOOOOOOM

A devastating explosion rippled forth as Zeras ginormous body was unceremoniously sent flying like a rag doll, but Zeras stopped himself with all he had as he directed his attention to his body, which had become a star!

BADDUMP

BADDUUMP

BAADDUUMMPP

The sound of his chest beating rang through and clear, a powerful pulsing with an array of light rippling through Zera's soul space, with increasing momentum, and that was when Zera's face suddenly changed as the dragon's voice ringing his head.

"If You Don't Take It Away From Your Soul Space Right Now. It'll Tear It Apart Completely And You'll Die!!!!" Instantly Zera's face changed as he hurriedly concentrated on his body and sent it out of his soul space.

Only then did he heave a sigh of relief. But now, his soul light had already dimmed to the lowest level, as Zera felt the world around him becoming gory, and a feeling of intense sadness suddenly overwhelmed him.

He might have truly been able to fuse all those crystals with his body, but his soul couldn't last long. The system has been able to overwhelm it and now his soul was dispersing. And a soul dispersing was something that Zeras knew well to be death.

"Ahhhhhh," Zeras breathed out a sigh of relief as he looked at the dark void of space, and his eyes focused on the dragon.

"Tell me dragon, would my mum think I'm worthy enough for her when she sees my corpse..." Zeras asked as the dragon opened its second eyes for once and gave Zeras a good stare...

"Do you know why I hate you so much?" The dragon asked as Zeras chuckled...
"Because your mum was The Youngest True Supreme. A Perfect Being with not a single weakness at all! Until she met that damn man, and gave birth to you. You became her weakness, and she lost Everything to that weakness! Her status, her Freedom, Her power!!! It is the fault of that damn man, and therefore your fault too..."
The Dragon said, clenching its teeth tightly as its claws clenched tightly shifting towards Zeras, but the chain around his body tightened hard on it and completely restricted its movement.

"Please, permit me to kill him master, let me kill the thing that dragged you down to the abyss. And then I'll find that damn man, and fight with him, our battle lasting for a thousand years. And even though I won't win. He would also never be whole again!!!"
The dragon declared, yet the chain remained as tight as ever.

"You want to see whether your mum would be proud when she sees your corpse, then I'll give you a single chance to do so." The dragon roared out in anger as the core on its chest suddenly brightened up, and from within a liquid trickled down and landed on Zera's body as the entire world turned to a pitch black after that...

Chapter 500: Energy Wave OF A True Universe Rank!

"It's been two weeks and 6 days since he has been down there, just one more day before the events begin. Are you sure you don't want to still go wake him up? We won't make the event if we don't leave two hours from now..." The hasty voice from the lady rang out, standing beside a Giaran who was none other than Audrey.

"Ahhh, I don't want to disturb him at all during his cultivation time, a time like this according to what we have heard, is a one in a million chance. But without waking him up, we would miss the events and all the hard work will be for naught. Besides, I already told him I'll be getting him faster after three weeks, so I guess I'm not breaking my word, right?" Audrey narrated as Senna's eyes looked tiredly at him, while Novelu simply covered her mouth as she forced in her laughter.

"Ok, I'll be going in..." Audrey said as he prepared to take a step forward and that was when suddenly, the sea of life began boiling! GRRRUM GRUUUUM GRRRUUMMM It was like an ancient titan was awakening deep within the sea of life as Audrey's eyes narrowed looking at the sea which kept boiling harder and harder and immediately his eyes widened in shock.

"But he wasn't the only one and the same could be said for Senna and Nivelia, as the trio slowly took steps backward. Far deep down the ocean, they could feel the multitude array of light that was currently shining from the farthest are, but that wasn't what was causing them to step backward. What was responsible for their reflexive action was the current pressure that was slowly undulating outwards.

"This..This is an aura of a True-Universe Origin Rank. The same as us. Yet Why...why do I feel so much fear, and my sense of caution is ringing out so loudly!" Audrey mused beneath his lips, as the sea of life suddenly smashed against the cliff that they were on, the power shaking the entire cliff as their eyes narrowed dangerously, and they watched that array of lightning rapidly getting brighter, and brighter and brighter...

UNTIL!!! BOOOOOOOOOOM A pillar of water rose into the sky, and faster than the eyes of the three Universe Origin Rank could conceive, a figure landed in front of them, crouched, as his naked upper body brimming with extremely powerful muscles was fully on display and his water-soaked white hair that reached down to his waist flared with splashes of astral blue crystals, like a night in the dark sky.

Slowly rising up, he stood at a mind-numbing natural height of 2 meters, towering above them all, as his astral blue eyes looked at them, a small smile appearing on his face.

"I'm late, aren't I..." He asked, as the face of the three Girans changed. "Ze...Zeras!!!" Novelia asked, as her face once again turned a deep shade of pink, including that of Senna who simply looked at him dazedly...

"You..you have reached the True Universe Origin Rank!!!?" Audrey announced as Zeras eyebrows furrowed. "Have I?" Zera asked curiously. He really didn't follow the conventional way of cultivation and his strength was usually calculated as an estimate, but right now, they were telling him that he had reached the True Universe Origin rank. It was something even he didn't have a clue of...

“Meow...” “Meow...” Suddenly the sound of a cat rang in Zera’s ears as Zera snapped his eyes towards the direction only to see the multicolored cat which was currently running around the water surface, with a fish in its mouth.

“Wow, it finally caught a fish!?” Audrey asked in even greater shock than Zeras breaking through to the universe origin rank. One had to know, the cat had been relentless for almost 3 weeks now, and finally it caught a fish...

Zeras could see Fluffy bouncing around on the water surface as a smile bloomed on his face, and suddenly he stretched out his hands towards fluffy and right before everyone’s shocked eyes, the sea beneath Fluffy’s legs rapidly changed and morphed, and what was formed, was a flight of steps that finished right on Zera’s hands.

“Meow?” Fluffy said in surprise as it suddenly placed its claws on the steps only to find out that it truly wasn’t sinking, and immediately it took the second steps and then the third and the fourth and in seconds, he had climbed up the entire steps and arrived on Zera’s palms as it immediately jumped on Zera’s face and began snuggling on it, while uttering satisfied snarls..

“Seems like someone missed its boyfriend...” Zeras said with a grin as he swiped his hands and immediately, the stairs formed of water immediately returned back to normal mixing in with the sea.

Finally he directed his attention towards the Girans whose eyes were currently looking at him in even more shock...

“What?” Zeras asked, not understanding the strange gazes.

“Your control over water? Have you learned the law of water?” Novelia asked as Zera raised an eyebrow.

“I thought that was a natural thing for a True Universe Origin Rank?” Zeras asked as they shook their heads.

“It truly might be possible, but for such good control can only be achieved after 10 years of practicing or learning the law of water. No one just points to the water and it forms stairs...” Audrey said as Zera raised an eyebrow.

‘I must have been using one of the crystals, reflexively...’ Zeras thought in his head as he directed his attention back to them.

“Alright Zeras. It’s time to leave or we might miss the event. But first, to the place to get you a new pair of clothes...” Audrey said as they prepared to take off but Zeras suddenly stretched out his hands and immediately, the void of space twisted wildly and instantly a vortex was formed, its other wide revealing the place that was around 200 kilometers away from where they are currently standing.

“Is..that...”

“The Law Of Space!?”