51 Discussion With Quinn Voidspace

"I'm Quinn, Quinn Voidspace." Quinn said looking strangely disappointed.

"Oh, you're the second on the rankings" Zeras said with familiarity. He could remember the name Quinn Voidspace was just below his on the rankings.

"Yes, I am." Quinn replied in a prideful tone.

Seeing Quin's prideful expression as if he did something noteworthy by ranking second, Zeras couldn't help but ask

"What's the rankings all about anyway, does it really matter much."

"You bet. The rankings is very important in the EIA. In the EIA, everything is bought with points and the more points you have, the better off you're.

It never hurts to be rich does it. You have to buy resources like Mana cultivation manuals, Mana cores, access to different cultivation worlds etc It never ends." "Anyway what was your trial about. Seeing you're first on the rankings, either you have one shitty luck during the trial or you really are one tough roach." Triton said to him, his eyes shining in curiosity.

"My trial. There's nothing special about it. Just trying to fight for the position of king in one ancient world, getting into skirmishes here and there and some things like that. It's actually a really great experience and not that hard. What about yours?"

"Mine? It was tough as hell. I was thrown in the middle of a racial war to act as an army general of the good sides. You know the good sides forces in majority of all scenerio are usually weak, and this one was no different. It was a tough war, but my sides won in the end." Quinn replied, as if it was nothing but Zeras know it wasn't as simple as that.

Acting as the general of a weak force in a war and winning in the end. He knew there was more to Quinn than he was letting on.

"What department will you be joining in the EIA, Zeras." "Department?"

"Yes department. Wow. Seriously, don't tell me you didn't make any research before coming here." Triton asked shocked as he noticed there was something off about the questions Zeras was asking. To him, they were normal information, but Zeras did seem to have a single clue.

"To be honest. I don't." Zeras replied truthfully, with Quinn understanding his predicament, the he could help him out in knowing more about the EIA.

"Well there are different departments in the EIA. It's like a huge university except more inclined to training Gene Awakeners. Since there're are many type of genes, then it's sure some won't focus on battle.

Examples are like a person with the Curing Hand gene or the Elvian races known for their powerful healing abilities. Then they'll attend the Health class while those like the diamond or dragon races or humans with attack type genes will focus more on the battle classes.

There are tons of different classes in the EIA like research, Weapon making, battle ship engineering, Infiltration classes, Dimensional travel classetc." Quinn answered listing all the classes he could remember.

"Well if there'll be a class I might choose based on my gene then I think it's the combat class." Zeras said absentmindedly. While his Absolute Morph Gene leans towards Infiltration and spying, it's actually very powerful in it's combat abilities. Besides his Chaos Devourer gene also focuses on combat so the combat class looked like it was perfectly tailored for him.

"Guess we're in on the same class then." Quinn said as his own gene also focuses mostly on combat.

"So what's the deal about the Dragon race and the Diamond race." Zeras asked Quinn. He was a little bit curious when Quinn mentioned about them focusing mostly on attacks.

"The Diamond race are pretty special race in that their entire body is covered in diamond." Quinn said pointing out in the distance where a being from the diamond race could be seen.

Zeras looked at the figure which was in every way masculine and covered in blue coloured diamond scales. He stood at an height of about 1.9 meters, and was discussing with other groups.

"They are very strong due to their diamond skin which is almost impervious to anything. Their attack power is also very frightening. It'll take a human with a C-grade gene at the Late Star rank stage to fight equally with a diamond race expert at the same stage." As for the dragon race, although they look human. They can change to powerful beasts known as dragon." Quinn said pointing into the distance where a young man with a golden hair could be seen.

He was in every way human and maybe his strange golden hair and his snake-like eyes could give someone a clue, but it'll still be hard to distinguish between him and a normal human.

"In this humanoid state, they can only exert mostly 50% of their strength but once they transform into their dragon form, then they'll be true monsters.

They're are also very defensive of their race. I'll advise you to avoid getting in trouble with them, but they are actually friendly anyway. It's not bad to make friends with them." Quinn said as they both looked at the young man when he suddenly raised his head and stared at them, before a small smile appeared on his face.

Zeras stood there shocked speechless, it was as if the young man could sense them staring at him.

"That some serious perception." Zeras said under his breath.

"Pretty cool right?" Quinn asked before erupting into a loud laughter.

The duo engaged in small talks as Zeras finally came to understand a little about Quinn. If one thing was sure, then Quinn must have some really great background as he knew almost everything about the other races and the EIA.

A voice suddenly rang out through the hall interrupting their discussion.

"We have now arrived at the EIA training base. Cadets are now advised to prepare for disembarkation."

"We're here, Zeras..." Quinn said his voice quivering due to happiness.

Golden Tickets and Powerstones are greatly appreciated. Don't forget to keep those powerstones coming. Besides I noticed the powerstones reached 100 last week on Sunday, but this week it's already 100+ at only on Friday. This is great improvement guys.

Let's keep going and we'll soon be on the rankings too.

52 EIA Training Base

"We're here, Zeras..." Quinn screamed out to him gleefully as they both went towards the exit direction.

The spaceship exit door slowly opened Zeras immediately felt something different about the air and that was Mana. He could feel it was extremely abundant as his pores automatically open as if trying to suck in the mana present.

After exiting, Zeras could finally see where he was as he marveled at the gargantuan structures present, flying jets moving around the air, and present on them were people dressed in a dark-red uniforms.

"All participants are to head towards the building 100 meters and 45° to the right to retrieve their cadets uniform and track watch." The AI voice reverberated as Quinn dragged him towards the building.

"You know I wouldn't believe it if you told me you've not been here before..." Zeras said with a smile as he looked at Quinn.

"You're the one living in the forest till now..." Quinn said with a laugh as they both entered the large building, written on it were New EIA Cadets.

-- -- --

A young man with raven dark hair could be seen walking through the EIA Base with a bag behind him and a black watch in his hand.

Zeras looked at the watch as he saw the arrow on the map before moving toward the right in the direction of the dorm rooms.

"Hmm, so this is a Mana Arc Generator" Zetas muttered to himself looking at the talk dark metallic pole just behind his dorm room.

One of the privileges of ranking higher on the Trial was this Mana Arc Generator that automatically directs Mana the closer one is to it. Due to him being first, his dorm room was the closest to the Arc Generator making sure he had an abundance of Mana in his dorm room than most.

Clenching the doorknob and stepping into the room, a smile couldn't help but creep his way towards his face.

The living room was very large with three large sofas arranged in a square-like format.

A chandelier could be seen on top of the ceiling illuminating the room in a white light that glowed gently.

Far at the other end, three doors could be seen with a small indicator present indicating bathroom, kitchen, Cultivation room, and bedroom.

Zeras immediately moved towards the mana room as he opened and was shocked by what he saw.

The Mana room was dimly lit and right in the middle of it was a small pool filled with strange blue water.

Zeras moved towards the pool as he dipped his hands into the water, but he only felt like touching hair while the liquid quickly entered his pore and settled in his dantian.

"Mana... Liquified Mana?" Zeras felt his mind went numb as he couldn't believe that was even possible.

Normally, mana was just like air existing only in gaseous form but the Mana in the pool coalesced to form liquid. This could only be due to the concentration of Mana becoming so much that it turned into liquid. With this crazy abundance of mana, he wasn't sure how much his cultivation would improve if he absorbed everything.

Zeras felt his heart pumping in anticipation but before that, he needed to do something important and that was his system updates he ignored up to now.

"System Interface..." Zeras called out causing a golden-coloured notification panel to appear in front of him:

{Attributes points: 20/20}

"Add 10 points to strength. +5 points to Intelligence and 5 points to Agility" Zeras ordered. He chose to add no points to his perception because he was at least confident of the EIA Base being secure. As for why he had 5 points to Intelligence, it was because every time he looked at the intelligence being at 5, he couldn't help but feel the system was ridiculing him.

[Points successfully added]

{Basic Skills}

21:01

>>Dash: Increases Host current speed by triple. (Level 2)

Zeras suddenly felt a hot feeling pass through his entire body before he felt a cold current that made him take a breath in as he felt himself growing stronger.

[Ability Upgrade Cards: 2]

"Good. Now what should I upgrade?"

Zeras focused as he debated on what skills to upgrade and made his decision.

We didn't reach the 200 powerstones goal, but I'll still be posting 2 extra chapters for you guys help. Thank you for your support.

53 [Bonus chapter]Taking A Walk Through The Base.

"Upgrade Dash and Regeneration."Looking at the skills and abilities, Zeras chooses to increase his Dash and Regeneration.

[Congratulations, Dash has been leveled up to level 3.]

[Congratulations, Regeneration has been leveled up to Level 2]

Dash-Level 3

Host speed has been increased to quadruple that of his normal speed.

Regeneration- Level 2

[Host will now recover from wounds twice faster than normal.]

Why did he choose to increase his speed and generation, Simply, he could feel that's what he'll be mostly in need of in the EIA training.

With that done, Zeras directed his attention to the system's new ability

[System Ability]

>>Scan: Ability to instantly learn the basic information of all living or non-living matters.

"Hmm, it's just like Its name." While it might appear simple, he could feel it'll be a handful in the future. It's like having an extra dictionary in hand.

Zeras stood up as he directed his attention to the watch. It was one of the Cadets' tools that was given to them.

It contains mainly the maps of the entire school, a means of communication with other students, receiving EIA updates, school rules, and the rankings of the students. Like on Zeras', the number 1 would always be seen if he wasn't trying to access any other thing denoting him to be the number one on the new cadets rankings. The only thing he probably hated about it was that it couldn't be taken off. It must be on the student's hands all the time acting as some information gatherer for the EIA in case of mishaps.

The Training will be beginning the next day and today was more of a free day for all the students to make them familiarize themselves with the environment.

As for Zeras, he'll properly make use of this free day by resting his head and brain.

Zeras immediately headed towards the bedroom and opened the door, giving himself a good nod due to the huge bed that was placed in the center of the room.

That was the most important thing in the entire place to him.

Immediately jumping on it, his bones let out a comfortable crinkling sound as an intoxicated smile appeared on his face.

To be honest, he would die a happy man if he could sleep on this till the end of eternity.

Zeras was about to drift into his smooth dream world when a beeping sound suddenly rang on his watch...

"Tch, talk of a bad timing..." Zeras snitched as he opened one of his eyes to stare at the notification.

<Quinn Voidspace>

<Hey man, where the fuck are you. I'm thinking of going out to explore this cosmos. What do you think? You'll join. Yes? That's great, I'm waiting for you outside, with a surprise too.>

"Damn kid, how did he even get my contact..." Zeras muttered as he looked at the notification.

"Hmm, exploring the cosmos? I'd rather sleep." Zeras ignored the notification as he sank into the comfort of his bed but he wasn't in it for long.

<Quinn Voidspace>

<Hey man. Hurry up, I'm in the splash zone right now and you need to be here. It'll be worth it, I promise.>

"Ahhh, ok, ok. You win kid..." Zeras said as he struggled to raise himself from the bed.

It wouldn't hurt to go out and check the base out too, he could even test out his new system ability. Win-win.

Zeras stood up as he moved towards the door. Immediately arriving at the exit, he pulled open the door, exiting the room, and right in front of the door was a young man with silver hair who had a big smile on his face and wore a large dark glass in his eyes.

"Yoo-hoo, ready to go man?" Quinn said flashing Zeras a smile as he waved from the distance opposite his dorm room.

"You... Since when have you been here? What are you even doing here..." Zeras said as he slowly locked his door unconsciously tightening the knob even more than necessary.

"Tch, I live just five meters from you, can't you see..." Quinn said pointing towards the distance as Zeras looked at the house closest to him and truthfully, that was Quinn's dorm.

"Talk of bad luck..." Zeras muttered under his breath as he moved towards him.

"So where are we going..." Zeras said moving towards the exit when suddenly the third closest room to his dorm slowly opened and emerging from it was a young Elvian guy with long white hair and no pupils at all.

"Triton Elvianor?" Zeras said shocked.

"Zeras Celestria?" Triton too said shocked unbelievably as he couldn't believe Zeras was also living just opposite his dorm room.

"Are you also going to explore this new cosmos, brother? You can join in too." Quinn said waving at Triton.

"Hey, you..."

"Are you guys also going to check out the base? Nice, then we can all go together..." Triton said cutting Zeras off as the trio slowly moved out of the dorm.

Zeras felt his stomach rumbling as they'd been walking around the base for almost three hours now without a single rest.

"Ok, if I can remember very well Quinn, we've visited the Training area, The classes hall, the genetic serum hall, the Mana manual hall, and even the already visited New cadets building. I think that's all, right?" Zeras asked tiredly.

"Of course not, we've not checked out the second and third years area," Quinn replied...

"But that area is prohibited isn't it?" Triton asked shocked. The New Cadets are not allowed into the senior year area according to the rules.

"Ok, ok. But there's still an area left out and that's the...." Quinn asked looking at the duo as Zera's stomach rumbled once again.

"Um... Cafeteria?" Zeras asked subconsciously causing a smile to appear on Quinn's face.

"You're right? That's the last place we'll be heading." Quinn said dragging them in another direction.

"But visiting the cafeteria on the first day, that seemed a little unusual right? Besides the senior areas also make use of the cafeteria too. I believe crossing them right now is also a bad idea." Triton said doubt in his voice and also slight fear.

"Tch, you don't have any moxie man. You won't survive long in the EIA without Moxie bro. But don't worry, we won't spend long, just grab some food and exit. Eazy peazy?"

"Hmm, okay then." Triton finally agreed as Quinn dragged his neck towards the cafeteria.

As for Zeras, all he could think about right now was to fill his stomach.

Have an idea about the novel don't forget to place your comments.

Chapter 54 One From The Nine Families

The cafeteria was a long hall, arranged with chairs and tables while at the end of the place, two waiters could be seen responsible for serving food.

The trio moved toward the direction of the waitress as Zeras felt his stomach rumbling even more.

"Um, can we have one plate of Mizashi Twale and three fruit juice?" Quinn ordered like a gentleman looking like he had rehearsed this more than thousands of times.

The two waitresses giggled looking at the trio as they went in and out of the place. A big box was brought out with a tray holding three cups of juices.

"Thank you, officers..." Quinn said dragging them towards a particular table as the trio settled down.

Opening the box, Zeras saw it was like some type of gigantic pizza with different colored ingredients on top of it.

Immediately ripping out a piece, he shoved the entire thing in his mouth without care as Zera's eyes suddenly became a black hole.

"This... It's so sweet..." Zeras said tears almost slipping out of his eyes as he just couldn't believe a taste like this also existed. All he had known in his life was stale hard bread with water but now that he tasted this. This was the first time he realized he also had taste buds for sweet things in his mouth.

Looking at the duo, he could see they were looking at him with strange expressions on their face before Quinn suddenly blew up in loud laughter, while a mocking smirk just appeared on Triton's face.

"What? Did I do something wrong..."

"Um... You're using your hand to eat..." Triton said pointing to the knife and fork that was placed beside him.

"Besides, what do you mean sweet, the Mizashi Twale is more of an in-between food of bitter and sweet when it comes to food and you're savoring it as if it's the number one sweetest food in the world. That's weird man..." Quinn said as he slowly picked up his knife and fork.

Zeras looked at the duo as he couldn't help but mutter beneath his breath

"You guys don't understand..."

Zetas slowly took up the knife and fork feeling incredibly weird as he found them slipping out of his hands but using his improved strength, he forcefully dipped it into the food and slowly brought it to his mouth but the pizza slipped off before they could touch his lips.

Now a raging tornado was slowly being built inside him, but when he looked forward, he noticed even the two waitresses were now staring at him shocked while Triton and Quinn seemed to want to bury themselves.

"Tch, what do I do wrong again," Zeras said with a down-trodden expression.

"Are you really from around here man..." Triton said looking at him suspiciously.

"That's not how you use a knife and fork bro. It's an almost crazy notion that there exists someone this age who is unable to use a fork and spoon. I mean I could do it when I was two." Quinn said as he shifted towards Zera's seat and began teaching him how to use the fork and spoon.

It was boring and mind nerving for him as in the Orphanage, what was knife and fork, they wouldn't even pierce the stale bread, everything was done with the hand.

That has been ingrained in his origin but after continuous pestering from Quinn who seemed to want to twist his hands away and Triton who never stopped gulping down the piece making Zera want to scream at him to wait, he finally got the hand of it as he picked up his first pieces using the knife and fork.

"Hmm, it's a really good experience, but I still prefer my hand..." Zeras said as the two waitresses giggled at them once again.

"You're lucky, if the entire new cadets had seen what you just did now, you would become the butt of the joke in the entire EIA. Fortunately, we came here when nobody was around..." Triton said as he dug into the food eliciting a serious nod from Quinn also.

"But all in all, you're a pretty fast learner if this is truly your first time picking this up," Quinn said seriously as Zeras snorted within him feeling proud.

"He wouldn't learn it so fast if not because he was afraid I would finish up the entire thing..." Triton said with a smirk looking playfully at Zeras.

"That's not true..." Zeras said firmly denying the accusation.

"Yeah, it's not..." Triton and Quinn said with a smile as they both stared at him with a knowing smile.

"Ok, maybe a little..." He was really afraid of Triton finishing up the entire thing that's why he hurriedly tried to learn the spoon-knife thingy.

"Now when I think about it, it's really weird not being able to see you guys' eyes. It's like I can't see who you are..." Zeras said as he looked at both of them.

Triton has no pupils, with his eyes just covered by the entire white making it hard to see what he was thinking about.

As for Quinn, he always covers his eyes, the last time he used a blindfold, this time he used a dark glass, so dark Zeras couldn't see his eyes at all. Not being able to see their eyes seemed to also tweak a nerve in him sometimes.

"We Elvians don't have pupils according to you humans but we have the same experience as pupils when looking at another Elvian. I believe some humans too can see our real emotions with time. It's because this is your first time, you'll later understand after spending enough time hanging out with Elvians." Triton explained to him.

Zeras nodded as what he said made sense, and he directed his attention towards Quinn instead who didn't say anything but just continuously dug into the food.

"What about you Quinn, why did you always cover your eyes like a blind person but I can tell you can see as clear as day..." Zeras asked him.

"Oh, covering my eyes? It's due to my genetic ability. It's related to my eyes and leaving them open wastes some energy." Quinn replied.

"I'll only open them if I need them..." Quinn said as Zeras felt his curiosity piqued. A genetic eye ability that uses energy just to open them. It's a first for him.

"Um... I feel like I've heard that ability before, but... Are you from the Nine families Quinn? Particularly from the Voidspace family?" Triton asked suspiciously as Zera's jaw dropped to the ground.

One from the Nine family?

Chapter 55 First Meeting With Second Years Gone Wrong!

"Um... I feel like I've heard that ability before, but... Are you from the Nine families Quinn? Particularly from the Voidspace family?" Triton asked suspiciously as Zera's jaw dropped to the ground.

One from the Nine family?

"Yes, that one..." Quinn said with a smile. It seemed his cover was finally blown away.

Quinn watched as both figures stared at him their jaw almost dropping.

Zera was shocked as apart from his Celestria family, he didn't know of any other family belonging to the Nine families. Now he heard of a second family, the Voidspace family and it seems Quinn was even part of them.

As for Triton, he was also shocked as the Voidspace family wasn't only strong but even ranked third among the hierarchy of the nine families. The Nine families were always very careful in mixing up with the EIA, seeing one of them in the EIA was shocking and they might be more than the eyes meet with Quinn.

The sound of the door being opened echoed as the tension got broken and they all stared into the distance.

Entering the cafeteria were two young men dressed in a dark-red EIA uniform, with two stars on their pockets, the sign of them being second years.

Zera's eyes narrowed as he felt the powerful waves of Mana undulating from both figures.

They were both definitely at the peak Star rank stage or above.

The duo also looked in their direction visibly shocked that they were even here in the cafeteria.

Zeras took one glance at them before directing his attention away as he faced Quinn and was about to ask him more of the Nine families when he heard the footsteps closing in on them.

Arriving before them, Zeras finally got a good look at their faces.

One of them had flaming red hair, with a handsome face. His eyes were flaming red and he looked like a beast in that uniform of his.

A hot aura of flames seemed to surround him causing the air around him to increase in temperature wherever he walked.

The other was a lanky young man with dark hair and crooked eyes. His eyes were incredibly piercing to behold as if one was staring at a snake in the eye. Zeras on sighting him suddenly felt disgusted. He could feel it deep within his soul, the young man was no good.

A face-off unfolded between the trio and the duo, causing Zeras to look on strangely, but he was close to finally obtaining his information about the nine families causing him to turn to Quinn

"So can you tell me what rank is your family in the ni..."

"Tsk, tsk, tsk...It seems this year's New cadets are even more arrogant than our set back then, not even standing to acknowledge their seniors..." The lanky guy said as they both giggled looking at them.

Zeras could feel Triton suddenly quivering on his seat as he hurriedly stood up and bowed. Seeing Quinn also standing up, Zera also stood up. It seemed this was a rule among the EIA.

"We're sorry seniors for disturbing you, we'll just move over to the next table," Triton said hurriedly, visibly afraid of starting trouble with the seniors, but the duo slowly let out a crooked smile as they looked at the trio.

"You caused us trouble and you think that'll end by you just moving to the other table..." The lanky guy said as Zeras discovered something was off in the discussion.

When did they disturb them?

"Ahh, but you know, kids can't help but make mistakes, so how about you transfer 200 points to my accounts and I'll consider this settled? What do you think..." The lanky guy asked with a sinister smile.

Zeras noticed Triton's body quivering even more as a struggling expression appeared on his face before he moved his hand watch forward.

A satisfied smile appeared on the lanky guy's face, as he also brought out his hands forward which was to initiate the transaction but his face changed in the next second.

Zera's face immediately contorted to rage as he finally realized what was going on. It was something that occurred very well in the orphanage.

They were being bullied. Right here in the EIA?

His hands immediately slapped away Triton's hand as he stared daggers at the duo.

An intense bloodlust covered the cafeteria as Zera's eyes slowly turned into a shade of dark.

"Are you trying to rip off my brother right in front of me?" The voice was almost like a gentle whisper but the incredible amount of killing intent made the seniors' eyes narrow while Quinn stared at Zeras his face in shock before a hidden smirk appeared on his face.

Jim was visibly shocked by the killing intent the boy was oozing out making him unconsciously take a step back in fear but he regained himself as he looked at him before smiling.

"You're a very arrogant one, aren't you? Your friend is very wise but you have to be taught some lessons before you understand..." Jim said as his lanky hand extended forward towards Zera's shoulder.

"I believe you'll be going against the rule 16 of the New Cadets if you touched him..." The voice rang out from Quinn whose voice echoed out from beside Triton.

"It says the Seniors must not lay a single hand on the air of the new cadets for an entire week after they've arrived. Touching him will be a breach of that rule and I don't think you want to risk that with the number of people looking at you, would you..." Quinn said as he looked at the two waitresses who were witnessing the exchange.

Jim's hands stopped just an inch from Zera's shoulder as he slowly retreated them. He also looked at the waitress, a frown appeared on sighting them before directing his attention away and looking at the trio.

"It seems you can have your arrogance for a week. After a week, I promise your lives will be interesting..." A sinister smile lined his face as he stared at the trio who looked at him with blank expressions on their face except for Triton who seemed to have all colors drained from his face.

With an arrogant snort, the duo moved out of the cafeteria as Triton collapsed on his chair.

Zeras couldn't help but look at him strangely before asking.

"Don't you know you're only getting ripped off by them? What makes you so scared?" Zeras asked. Triton's way of easily obeying disgusted him from deep within his soul as he looked like the weak children who were usually bullied by the other guys in the orphanage and were the ones who suffered the most.

A smile appeared on Triton's face as he stood up,

"I remember I have something to do at home. I enjoyed the walk. See you guys later..." Zeras watched him move out of the cafeteria as he soon disappeared.

"It seems there are some things you have to know about the EIA," Quinn said as he dipped one slice of the Trawl in his mouth.

"The EIA, it's not as simple as it appears..."

Chapter 56 The EIA'S Ugly Side

"It seems there are some things you have to know about the EIA," Quinn said as he dipped one slice of the Trawl in his mouth.

"The EIA, it's not as simple as it appears. While it might be like a good school with great reputation, the inner circle of the EIA is very competitive, almost brutal." Quinn said looking at Zeras in the eye.

"Do you know in the EIA, apart from the death of a student. The seniors are almost free to do anything else to the new cadets.

Like what just happened now, things like stealing points and bullying is just another common thing in the EIA."

"But won't the instructors be against that or punish people like that?" Zeras asked shocked. Things like that should be punished if discovered.

"No, they won't. To be honest, they actually support that." Quinn said blankly.

"What!!!"

"Look, if you get bullied today by having all your points stolen, then tomorrow, you lose four of your teeth, won't that motivate you to try to grow stronger as fast as possible?" Quinn asked with a smile.

Zeras eyes dilated as he finally understood the reason behind the EIA supporting that. Truly if you get bullied everyday, then no one will teach you to take your cultivation seriously.

"So, maltreatment was needed. Only with competition can the students grow faster making the EIA keep their reputation as the strongest awakener school.

But too much competition and it'll fire back so there are also ways to avoid that which is that one week law where the seniors must not lay hands on the new cadets.

Also if you want to live long in the EIA. You need one of the two things. Stay away from the Seniors at all cost or have a scary background. Scary enough to make all the senior years avoid you..." Quinn said as he took in another slice.

"But can't I report to the Instructors?" "They won't listen. Actually, even though there really is a rule giving us new cadets a week from being bullied, If the two waitress weren't watching, then they won't have cared at all and take away the points forcefully. There will be no solid proof. Do you get it?"

"Is that why Triton was so scared?" Zeras asked in understanding.

"Yes. The Elvian races are not known for their powerful strength. They are more of healers than fighters. And right now, he can either pray for the seniors to avoid him which I think is impossible or he tried his best to appease them. Either way, he's not wrong to obey them at all." Quinn said drawing a nod from Zeras but he couldn't help but notice something strange about Quinn.

"But what about you. You don't look scared at all..." Zeras said. He noticed throughout the ordeal, there wasn't a single time when Quinn was frantic at all, almost like he didn't even care. Apart from standing up as a sign of acknowledgement, there wasn't a single fear on his face.

"Well, I have quite the background which is enough to make them unable to lay hands on me. I'm not sure they'll want to lay hands on one from the Nine families." Quinn said as the duo quickly devoured their meal before standing up making their way towards the exit.

-- -- --

Quinn and Zeras appeared in the dorm rooms as Zeras bid the guy farewell before walking towards his dorm room.

Clenching his hands on the door knob, Zeras was about to enter when he was suddenly interrupted by Quinn's familiar voice.

"Hey, I'm just curious. What would have happened if that senior had really grabbed your shoulder." Quinn asked in between small laughter.

"If he had touched my shoulder... I would have shown him why I'm ranked first on the rankings." Zeras said before entering into his dorm room.

The smile faded away from Quinn's face as he realized Zeras truly wasn't joking at all. Then he smiled as he muttered to himself

"He really was worth making friends with..."

Zeras snapped the door shut close as he tried to forget what just happened in the cafeteria and his anger towards what Triton did slowly faded away.

He didn't really have time for this senior-junior banter. His focus is on growing stronger as soon as possible. If anyone tried to become an obstacle towards that goal, then he'll immediately cut them away.

All in all, the small walk was something he enjoyed and he met with quite the interesting duo today.

Guess it really was worth sparing his three hours of sleep to heed the call.

Zeras immediately entered into his bedroom as he jumped on the bed before snoring off.

Tomorrow was going to be the first day of training and he was expectant on how that will go.

-- -- --

A deep rumbling of his arm immediately brought Zeras out of his sleep as he quickly tried switching off the watch.

Looking at the screen, he could see the notification.

"Training Drilla will start an hour from now." Zeras immediately jumped up from bed as he moved towards the washroom to get ready for the day.

20 minutes later...

A young man with raven dark and blue eyes could be seen dressed in a dark-red uniform. Zeras looked at his picture on the mirror as he couldn't help but give himself a nod looking at the beauty on the mirror.

"And that damn system said I don't have charm, Tch." He said with a prideful smirk and disdainful smirk on his face but the system notification suddenly appeared in front of him

[Charm: null]

Zeras snorted coldly as he ignored the jealous system.

Looking at the front of his uniform, there was a golden image of a star in front of the cloth, depicting him to be the First on the new cadets rankings.

With one last look at the mirror, Zeras slowly exited his dorm room, moving towards the direction the arrow pointed.

Chapter 57 First Day Of Training

Zeras walked through the cold dimly lit environment as he followed the arrow on his watch to the direction indicated.

He discovered the Training Area was just behind the Cafeteria as he quickly navigated his way and arrived at the training area, an extremely long area of forest, and far in the distance were different mountain ranges with harsh and strange weather conditions.

Arriving at the training area, they were barely anyone around the place Zeras looked around for a seat but there was also none.

Looking at his watch, he could see the time which was 5:32, the training drills were supposed to start at 6:00. He guessed he was in a hurry to arrive there.

Unknowingly to Zeras, the world has changed. In the orphanage, the children would have been awakened around 5:00 in the morning for combat practice, but the same couldn't be said for regular people who wake up as late as 7 or even 8 in the morning.

Hearing Zeras wake up at 5:00 would have been shocking and a major part of the Drills on the EIA was training the new Cadets to be awake as early as 6:00 in the morning.

Zeras stood in a corner as he stood there waiting for training to begin.

-- -- --

28 minutes later...

There were about 160 new cadets already on the training grounds, as the time 6:00 clocked.

Two EIA instructors, a burly man with dark air and eyes, and a beautiful woman with purple air slowly descended from above as a dome appeared enveloping the students that were already in.

"Good morning, New EIA Cadets..." The burly man began as the New Cadets replied with vigor.

"A day has been given to you to familiarize yourself with the new environments and get used to the EIA. Henceforth, training shall begin and we shall all meet here every day for training at a particular time which is exactly 6:00 in the morning. Coming to the training grounds even a second after 6:00 will be deemed late and the latecomers will be punished..."

Zeras looked outside the dome as he saw some students who arrived late were prevented from joining them and taken away to another place. Probably the Punishment room.

"Today, we have a person among us who arrived here first before everybody else and that person will be given 100 points as a reward for their early mindset. Whoever it is good luck and keep it up." The Man said as Zera's watch suddenly beeped with a notification.

<Reward for being the first to come to the training grounds>

<100 points>

A smile appeared on Zera's face as he unknowingly gained 100 points easily...

"With that said. Let's begin the Drills. The drill's mission is very simple since you're all new cadets.

Did you see that Mountain over there?" The man asked pointing to a particular direction about a thousand kilometers away..."

"Yes Sir..." "Good. The drill is to get to that mountain and arrive at the top of it. When you get there, look for a teleporter and you'll be transported back here... Is there somebody who didn't understand?" The man asked as strange expressions appeared on the student's faces.

While a thousand kilometers might look far away for a normal human. For gene awakeners, they won't even run out of breath if they run that distance and back as with Mana, then they could go on.

Seeing the drills is just running and climbing the mountains it seems a little too easy for them.

"Since you're all silent. I believe you all get my word. Then listen well to the rules...

Firstly, you only have a duration of three hours to get to that mountain and use the teleporter, after three hours elapse and you don't find it, you'll be transported back to the beginning point and have to start all over again...." The man said clearly but the New cadets all scoffed in their minds.

Three hours? They could finish it in an hour.

"Secondly, fighting and teamwork are not allowed. The mission is a Solo mission. Any type of help will only result in punishment. Don't worry, even if you fall off the mountains there are Help Robots around who will pick you back up, so don't offer any help to anyone..." The man said his voice with a tinge of warning.

"Lastly..." The man said as he nodded to the purple-haired female instructors, who closed her eyes as the purple barrier suddenly flared with a purple light and covered the entire area up to more than two thousand kilometers.

Zera's face suddenly changed as a notification appeared

[A source of power has been detected trying to lock away the Host's Mana core.]

[Source has been overridden]

[Does the Host wish to negate the ability?]

The system asked as he looked around him seeing all the student's faces in shock as their Mana core was locked.

"No.." Zeras said.

[The Ability had been used on the host.]

[Host Mana core has been locked and Mana energy is no longer accessible...]

The new cadets' faces changed as they couldn't believe their Mana core had been locked and they couldn't access even a tiny bit of Mana.

"Lastly, this drill will take place without any of you using Mana. The two-hour counts start now. Good luck..." The Instructor touched the female instructor's shoulder as they both suddenly disappeared from the place.

Now left were 162 Cadets who were unable to access their Mana. Running a thousand kilometers and climbing a mountain almost 500 meters in height without mana was almost impossible to complete in just two hours.

The cadets immediately began running as time was already counting.

Zeras also immediately ran into the forest as the trail would also be a little hard for him due to him not having Mana but fortunately, unlike the rest of the students, he had more energy than most due to his Chaos Devourer gene that could absorb energy and his physical strength and speed were also greatly improved.

Normally, he could have agreed with the system to negate the ability but if he wanted to grow too, then he had to follow the norm and sweat hard too like the rest. Using Mana when nobody was looked unfair and besides he'll gain next to nothing.

58 Sweating Buckets

The sound of deep breathing could be heard resonating through the entire forest as some cadets were breathing hard like dead dogs.

It was almost one hour into the race and it just seemed as if the mountain was getting farther and farther. Some would tumble and fall but none extended a helping hand as they'll just pass by them.

At the foremost front, Zeras was running at a regular pace. Not too fast and not too slow as running too fast and he'll quickly be exhausted and if he also ran slowly, then he'll fail the time and end up being sent back to start again so he was more of juggling although even that was still pretty fast due to his high stats.

He couldn't even count how many students he already passed by who were on their knees trying to catch their breath but some cadets deeply surprised him.

One of them was a humanoid alien with golden hair and eyes. He was the boy Quinn pointed out to him that he was a dragon and easily sensed them the first time they met.

The boy was running extremely fast through the mountains and it didn't even seem like he was tired at all as not a single sweat could be seen on his face and a smile could even be seen on his face as he ran ahead of all the other cadets leaving them in the dust.

The second person was strangely Quinn who also kept up at the front and was running at the foremost front too catching up with the draconic boy.

A smile couldn't help but sneak its way toward Zera's face as one thing was sure about Quinn, he was a monster.

He could also see Gaia who kept jogging, close to meeting up with Quinn making him also give a nod. Seeing her reminded him of Commander Shiron's strange request to protect her as Zeras couldn't see anything happening to her right now. She even managed to rank in the top ten rankings of New cadets and was pretty powerful on her own.

There were other races, who were born to run as they moved with speed, their physiology making them more suited to this aspect of the trial.

-- -- --

1hr later...

Zeras finally arrived before the mountain as he rested on it trying to catch his breath.

On his forehead, sweat could be seen dripping down his face as the run took some of his energy away.

Looking around the place were some students just arriving, most of them immediately collapsing on the ground as their cadet uniform seemed to have been dipped inside water.

Nobody has yet to begin climbing the mountains yet as if they were all waiting for some signal.

Zetas looked at the mountain as his eyes narrowed.

"Tall. It is tall." The mountain almost reached 500 kilometers in height and he felt all his muscles screaming to him in defeat, not wanting to move again but seeing the time passing made him ignore them.

He had never climbed a mountain before making his work even harder but thankfully they were footholds emerging from the mountains acting like some type of holdings to climb up the mountains.

Most of those in the top ten rankings immediately began climbing after taking enough rest as Zeras also took hold of the hold using it to slowly drag himself up.

The mountain climbing seemed a little easy as Zetas arrived at around half the distance breathing like an almost dead hog.

His neat and well-ironed uniform was already dirty from sweat and covered in dust but he ignored it as he kept climbing.

Taking a small rest to catch his breath, he looked at the top where a strange alien guy could be seen. His body seemed to be made of some type of sticky glue that made him easily attach himself to the mountain without falling.

With its natural physiology, it immediately passed by the other students as it screamed out to those below him:

"See you later, losers..."

With a sinister laugh that made Zeras feel like punching him in the nose, the big rapidly clung to the mountain as he disappeared far away from their sight...

"Tch, lucky bastard..." One guy dressed like a joker said to him as he struggled to move up the mountains.

Zeras gave a nod too, agreeing in his mind. Some of the trials are easy for some races due to their strange constitution while some are harder for others.

All in all. It looks kinda unfair.

He tried to continue moving ignoring that when a shrill scream echoed from above him.

Zeras immediately raised his head as he saw one human pummeling from above with a broken stronghold in his hands.

Zeras immediately swerved to the side avoiding the guy as he landed on the person below Zeras both of them pummeling downwards and dragging around four other cadets with them.

A drone-like robot immediately caught them before they landed on the ground making them avoid breaking some bones as the drones dropped them to the bottom of the mountain.

Now all four will have to start again from the beginning.

Zeras took a deep breath shining his teeth as he didn't know what he would have done if he was to start again.

The four students immediately entered into a heated argument as they repeatedly caused the guy who fell on them.

"Damn it, are you blind or what..." An angry human asked with eyes that could kill. He was already so close to finishing it, but then the stupid guy just had to run him down.

"I'm sorry. It wasn't my fault. I grabbed the foothold but suddenly it got removed and that's why I fell.

Not all the footholds hold tightly to the mountain. Some are fake..." The boy said as Zera's eyes narrowed.

Not all the footholds are rigged to the mountain!!!

The mountain climbing trial just got harder as the students slowly moved up the mountains checking well if the foothold was stable before using them.

Not only that, but they also have to watch above them to make sure they don't accidentally get pushed down by other fallen students.

Zeras kept climbing as the occasional shrill scream of students falling and taking a few down with them rang out continuously, but he ignored it as he focused on climbing.

-- -- --

40 minutes later...

Zeras finally arrived at the top of the mountain as he breathed out his lungs, laughing happily when suddenly a heavy body landed on his suffocating him...

59 Finishing The Drill

40 minutes later...

Zeras finally arrived at the top of the mountains he landed on the ground with a thud, and breathed his lungs out.

A heavy body suddenly landed on Zeras, but he didn't even have the strength to push the body up. Looking at the body, he could see it was that golden-haired dragon race boy.

"Move away... You'll suffocate me..." Zeras said to the boy as he struggled to move away from Zeras and landed on the ground behind him.

"I'm...Ha...Ha...I'm... Sorry... sorry bro..." The boy said with bated breath as they both looked at the sky, the sun showing no Mercy at all as if wanting to milk all of them dry of blood.

"We.. we're not brothers... You're a dragon... I'm... I'm...a Human..." Zeras said as the boy laughed out loud and they slowly pushed themselves up.

Zeras finally looked at the surroundings as he saw the portal was just about 20 meters away but unfortunately, there was a gigantic abyss with no end just before the teleporter.

"How are we supposed to arrive at the teleporter? I don't think they suppose we can all fly can we..." Some students complained.

But Zera's eyes narrowed as he saw the extremely tiny rope that passed over to the other side of the teleporter.

"Look. There's a rope..."

The students were surprised as they looked at their feet and saw there truly was a rope that extended over the Abyss and to the teleporter.

But it was so tiny it was almost unnoticeable.

"That's really great. After running and climbing a mountain. We now have to climb a rope too..." A guy from the gooey race complained.

It was the guy whose body could easily cling to the mountain due to his strange gooey body but this time it was a tiny rope and clinging to that wasn't easy at all also due to his gooey body.

A smirk appeared on Zera's face as he muttered to himself.

"Nature really is kind to all beings..."

"We only have 15 minutes more..." One of the students said as they all quickly clung to the rope.

They were about 9 ropes that extended to the teleporter they all quickly took one and clinged on it to start climbing.

Zeras clung himself to the rope as he couldn't help but take a spittle in due to the endless abyss before him.

As for the so-called Help Robots, Zeras wasn't willing to stake his survival on them.

Clinging to the rope and slowly climbing their way up.

All of them slowly made their way to the teleporter as they tried moving faster due to the time that was rapidly draining while some fell occasionally but got picked by the robot and sent down the mountain to begin all over again.

Falling into the abyss was more painful than a death sentence...

Zeras moved on the rope, slowly dragging himself forward with the dragon boy just behind him.

But as he was struggling, he couldn't help but notice something strange going on beside him as all the students seemed to suddenly pause and look in a particular direction.

A strange expression appeared on Zera's face wondering what the cause was, as he also looked in the same direction and his eyes almost popped out of their sockets.

A person was walking on the rope and it was...Gaiah Shiron?

The entire students watched as Gaiah easily walked on the tiny rope, without even shaking at all, and walked its 20-meter length in less than a minute. Arriving on the other side, she stood on the teleporter as she waved at all the students still climbing with a mocking smile before disappearing in a flash of light...

The whole new cadets stood there dumbstruck as they watched the magic that just unfolded right now.

"Is that not against the rules..."

Zeras looked at the joker race boy who said it as he ignored him and quickly climbed forward the way he knew it, but in his mind, he couldn't help but tell himself...

"Nature really is unfair..."

-- -- --

8 minutes later...

Zeras finally managed to crawl his way to the other side as he fell face flat on the teleporter before disappearing in a flash of light...

He finally completed the day's drill.

It was like being weaved through space but the duration was very small as Zeras found himself in the starting line where they all came from and the two instructors could be once again seen.

The instructors looked at Zeras strangely but nodded satisfactorily.

'It seems he's worthy of the 1st new cadets rankings..."

A figure also immediately appeared next to Zeras In the next second revealing it to be the dragon boy who also stood up quickly gaining a hold of himself.

After him was Quinn Voidspace and then other students...

"It seems I ranked second out of the cadets and Gaiah was first... Guess she is not that bad..."

"The first two hours have gone by and 70 of you managed to complete the trail within the time frame. That's an amazing result.

The remaining 92 students would have to start their drill again from the beginning.

As for the first person to arrive here, she'll be awarded with 50 points. Whoever it is keep it up..." The Instructor said with a smile as Zeras noticed he didn't mention it was Gaiah for some strange reason.

"With the drills completed, a notification will appear informing you all of your next classes. Remember failure to attend a class will lead to the deduction of points and if you don't have points, then you'll be escorted to the punishment room to pay. We will all meet here once again tomorrow, you all can leave now, and good luck in your other classes..." The male instructor said as they all quickly left.

Zeras moved out of the place as thheuddenly felt a buzzing on his watch due to a notification <Combat class starts in 30 minutes now>

<Please proceed to the Hall of Classes>

Zeras snorted coldly as he muttered angrily

"How classic of the EIA. Not even a minute of rest."

He immediately moved toward the direction of the Combat Hall as directed by the arrow on the map. Even though he wanted some rest, it wasn't at the cost of losing his precious points.

60 Attending Combat Class

Zeras walked for 20 minutes straight as he finally arrived at an area of the EIA base.

It was completely covered with a large gate with the word "Hall of Classes" written at its top.

There were different towering buildings in the area and with the help of his map watch, he finally arrived before a dojo-like structure among the structures present in the place.

Entering through the wooden door, he could see the inside of the dojo, which was a large gigantic place with different futons on the wooden floor instead of seats. It seems the EIA modeled the Combat building in the Ancient Japanese setting.

At the far end of the dojo, a man could be seen with golden hair and an incredibly large frame who had his eyes closed in meditation as he sat on the golden-colored futon.

One thing was sure, the combat instructor was a Non-human and most probably a dragon-race expert.

Zeras slowly made his way forward as he sat on one of the futons waiting for the class to begin -- -- --

40 minutes later...

The dojo was already filled to the brim with cadets who all sat cross-legged on the ground.

The man slowly opened his eyes as he began the class Immediately "...combat in the military is fighting between two groups of armed forces. So when you engage in combat, it means you are engaged in fighting that involves the use of weapons.

A spar is the exchanging of light blows with each other which might not involve weapons

What we'll be doing for today is a spar.

So you can choose any opponent of yours and spar with each other if you both agree. The use of genetic abilities is allowed.

Points on how you failed will be explained and there will be an improvement in our fighting styles. Let's begin"

A strange expression appeared on Zera's face as he was expecting the man to begin with some introduction and all, but he just jumped straight to business.

Not like he was complaining...

Two young men slowly came out to the stage.

They both were from the Human race and a smile and polite bow were observed between them.

"I'm John Deere." The blue-haired boy said.

"I'm Sima Crimson..." The crimson-haired guy said before they both got into a fighting stance.

"Begin" the man voiced out making both of them rush towards each other. Zeras noticed a strange phantom of water surrounding the blue-haired boy revealing his genetic ability to be something related to that of water while the other boy who had crimson-coloured hair was enveloped in flames.

They both met in the middle of the stage slamming a fist towards each other.

"BOOOOOOOOM!"

A winner was immediately observed as John was sent reeling backward ability as his body smashed into the barrier surrounding them.

But he could be seen in the next second running towards Sima, who formed fireballs in his hand and sent it towards the direction of his opponent with speed.

John's momentum was forcefully halted as he tried to immediately conjure a water barrier before him successfully blocking the strike although the barrier was blown apart in the second strike.

He slowly breathed out in relief because all his Mana had been spent conjuring that barrier when suddenly a third flaming ball smashed in his stomach as he was sent flying into the air, falling into the ground with a thud...

The fire ability user was proclaimed the winner

"You let your guard down, why do you think your opponent won't be able to conjure another fireball." The combat teacher said, his voice echoing throughout the dojo.

Know in a war, a slight emotional displacement might make your opponent burst out with ten times more power than they are capable of.

You all need to know that a genetic ability no matter how stupid-looking is not weak, it is the user that matters," The man voiced out, his voice stern.

Another two students climbed onto the stage as different fighting styles collided and genetic abilities clashed.

Zeras saw the draconic boy fight with a strength-type human gene awakener and was victorious, subduing his opponent with the pure power of his superior physical dragon might.

The instructor continuously gave advice and reasons for failure at the end of every fight as Zeras felt himself getting more enlightened by the man's words.

Next Quinn Voidspace vs Lemont Mirad.

Zeras watched as Quinn slowly made his way out to the stage, wearing a blindfold on his eyes this time instead of those dark glasses.

His opponent was also a burly guy who had dark hair and an arrogant expression on his face. His appearance looked in every way like that of those fat bullies in the orphanage.

"Ready? Gooo" The Instructor said as Lemont moved with speed towards, his huge frame not in any way restricting his movements.

The standing silver-haired Quinn had a nonchalant expression on his face with only a small smile present.

Claws suddenly emerged from Lemont's hands as he slashed at Quinn's face but felt nothing. Suddenly he felt a presence behind her, he quickly turned back and slashed again but he only felt his hand slash nothing but air.

A strange expression appeared on Zera's face as he finally learned of Quinn's ability which seemed to be teleportation.

The boy just kept appearing here and there, almost immediately as he easily blocked all Lemont's blows.

A weird stalemate occurred with Lemont slashing with his claws and Quinn just fading away.

"It's that the only thing you can do, coward," Lemont yelled out as all his slashes kept hitting nothing but air making him frustrated and even his Mana was rapidly draining away due to activating his genetic ability.

Quinn teleported once again as he appeared behind Lemont, their backs touching. He slowly bent his head to Lemont's shoulder and whispered into his ears,

"A good friend of mine is watching so I think I'll show off a little". Lemont quickly turned and slashed behind him when he felt a hand grabbed into his hands. Quinn quickly turned slamming his other hand into Lemont's chest, making him land on the ground and immediately jumping from it with speed due to the momentum as he found himself in the air.

A cocky smile could be seen on Quinn's face as he disappeared from where he was standing.

BOOM!

A punch slammed with speed into Lemont's stomach causing a shockwave to buzz through the air. Lemont felt an overwhelming force smashed into his stomach as he was forcefully blown with speed towards the barrier.

The fatty immediately coughed up some of his dinner when suddenly he felt a knee slammed into his stomach as he was forcefully blown to the other side of the barrier.

His claws dug into the battle stage trying to stop his backward momentum, but he wasn't given the opportunity as a leg rapidly enlarged in his eyes.

"BOOOOOOOM!"

Dust covered the entire stage decreasing the Visibility of the students.

The dust slowly cleared as Lemont could be seen on the floor directly knocked out.

Quinn walked back to his seat his small smile never for once leaving his face.

Vather eyes narrowed his eyes revealing only blankness at the fight as he thought to himself

'He truly is very powerful.'

He was grateful to Lemont as he admired his courage to challenge Quinn, and also enable him to see the might of one of the nine families.

"So it seems no one is willing to challenge Mason, and we only have a single person left.

Mason Raiden vs Zeras Celestria."
