61 Fighting With A Diamond Race Expert

"Finally."

Zeras immediately stood up as he made his way towards the battle stage.

Another person also moved out at the same time as he moved as they both headed towards the battle stage.

Zeras looked up and down at the guy before him whose entire body was covered completely with blue stones, he was like a gigantic stone man with his height around 1.9 meters tall, a head taller than him.

The entire cadets stood with bated breath as normally trying to fight a diamond race expert at this stage of cultivation was impossible for a human but it wasn't just a regular human fighting this time. It was the number one on the rankings. The number one on the rankings vs the almost impenetrable race. It was a cool battle to watch.

"Mason Raiden..." The diamond race expert said bowing slightly.

"Zeras Celestria..." Zeras replied before getting into a fighting stance.

"Begin..." The stern voice of the Instructor echoed out as the Mason immediately pressed off the ground, the wooden floor they were standing on seemed to creak from his weight as he instantly appeared before Zeras.

Zeras also immediately pressed off from the ground as he slammed out with a fist too.

"AHHHHH..." The crowd gasped as they couldn't believe his arrogance.

It was common knowledge, that the diamond race had extremely destructive attacks and defense due to their diamond-like body but Zeras was actually competing in brute strength with his fleshy body.

The result could almost be determined.

A smile appeared on Quinn's face from the corner he sat in as he couldn't help muttering.

"Now, I want to see if he really has the power to back up his words or if he's just being arrogant."

He was genuinely shocked when Zeras told him he would show the second year what it means to be first in the ranking.

Quinn could feel Zeras was serious with what he said which couldn't help but make him guess the reason for his confidence, and now he'll finally have a glimpse of his power.

"BOOOOOM."

A smile widened on Zera's face as he smashed his fist on the diamond fist and felt an overwhelming force slammed into his body, running amok, but he immediately kept it under control as he was sent five steps backward.

Mason too was also sent reeling backward as he tried to negate the power of that punch.

An unbelievable expression appeared on his face as he couldn't believe the human before him could send him back five steps. They were equally matched.

"What?" The crowd gasped as they couldn't believe that fleshy body could match the diamond body in brute strength.

'That's interesting' Zeras thought to himself. While everyone might be surprised at his body, thinking it was only flesh and shouldn't match a stone.

Only Zeras knew how many times he had continuously upgraded the power of his body to get to this level. He had strengthened his strength continuously with the system's attribute points and yet Mason could match him in strength.

No wonder a normal awakener won't be able to match a diamond race expert in strength. A normal awakener won't have the same physical strength he possessed and will have his bones reduced to mush.

They immediately moved once again appearing in the middle of the battle stage as they exchanged countless blows not moving a single step backwards.

BOOM

BOOM

A smirk appeared on Zeras and Manson's faces as they threw out all they had without holding back as if wanting to prove body dominion over the other.

With one more powerful blow to each other's face, they were sent skidding backward five meters as Zeras stopped his retreating motion.

The result was determined. A result both fighters don't want to agree too. They were equal in strength.

Since they were equal in strength, then the winner would come to one thing.

Zeras immediately pressed off the ground as he moved towards Mason from below.

The air was violently blown away as Mason sent out a powerful punch in his face, but it was only a feint.

Zeras immediately went to his side and he threw out a powerful punch at his ribs, his smile widening.

Mason's eyes dilated realizing it was only a feint but his shock soon disappeared as a mocking smile also appeared on his face

"That's Naive..."

Mason suddenly took a step forward as he bent his ribs to the side in the last second managing to avoid Zera's blow by an inch while he sent a powerful slap towards Zera's head as if wanting to blow his head off.

Zeras's eyes widened as he couldn't believe Mason's shocking reaction speed, but he wasn't also a single but slow as he immediately bent his upper body downwards, his back lying horizontally to the ground as he watched the slap pass over him.

Pressing off the ground, Zeras immediately jumped upwards as he rotated thrice and slammed his leg on Mason's head from above, but a punch met with his legs as they were blown backward while the wooden floor beneath Mason seemed to sink in from the weight of the kick.

They both retreated backward as the sound of two breathing out echoed in the dojo which had given deadly silence.

A small laugh suddenly escaped Mason's mouth as he stood upright.

"When I came here, I felt none could match me in brute strength but who would have believed I would meet my match even after going all out? It's been so long since I've felt alive fighting someone my age who can go out toe with me.

You have my approval..." Mason said as he tipped his head in respect.

Zeras also enjoyed it. The feeling of fighting without his life being on the line. This was the first fight he had where he didn't have to worry about dying and could let himself out and try different things in the fight. It would be a lie if he also didn't enjoy it.

"But I also don't want to lose to you so how about I tune it up a little..." Mason said as strange lines glowing with a blue color suddenly appeared on his hands reaching halfway to his elbows.

His blue stone skin was now covered in a blue colour although they glowed with a gentle blue light, Zera's hair stood on their end as he felt the power of Mason's hand rising. It was like a double increase in strength when those lines appeared.

"That's enough Mason..." The instructor said as the glowing lines on his hands slowly faded away.

"This fight... Is a Draw."

62 Mana Cultivation Class

"The Fight...is a Draw." The instructor's voice rang out through the dojo.

A faint murmur could be heard from the cadets who were dissatisfied with the results.

They could feel the growth in strength Mason had which would no doubt defeat Zeras but the Instructor called off the fight before that could happen.

"Both of you have equal strength and your battle experiences are also the same. That's why it's a draw." Mason slowly went back to his seat with no grudge or anything like that on his face. Only a small confident smirk could be observed.

Zeras also went back as he sighed softly.

He could tell if he had fought Mason after he activated that racial ability of his. Then he would have had to resort to Bio-morph to beat him which will cause him to expose his genetic ability so soon.

If it was possible, then he would like to keep his genetic ability as secret as possible because he wasn't sure how the EIA would react if they knew he was a shape-shifter.

To him, the instructor calling off the match was a good thing.

"So that's it for today, students. Today is only an introduction, we will begin the real class tomorrow. Of course, Combat Class is very important and compulsory for the first week. After this week you might choose to to not come based on the final department you choose.

So let's meet here once again tomorrow at this time. And you can all address me as Instructor Draco." The Instructor said as he once again sat on the futon and closed his eyes.

The students slowly stood up as they all moved towards the exit. Zeras also moved out of the dojo as he suddenly felt a hand resting on his shoulder.

"That was amazing, man..." Quinn said looking at him, his eyes no doubt looking like a puppy's beneath that blindfold.

"You were good yourself. Teleportation, heh?" Zeras said.

"Nah, it's nothing. I didn't even remove my blindfold, remember?" Quinn said pointing at his eyes as they both chatted their backs soon disappearing.

Unknowing to the students, Instructor Draco's eyes were opened as he looked at the back of a particular figure among the disappearing students, with doubt in his eyes.

"For a second, I felt it within him. That energy. It is different from Mana. It was the energy of...Dark matter. But that's impossible..." Instructor Draco said as he closed his eyes once again.

"So we're given an hour break. Where should we spend that..." Quinn asked Zeras as they both looked at their watch.

<An hour break before the next class...>

"What say we go to the Cafeteria..." Quinn offered as Zeras gave a nod. He had not eaten since the morning.

He couldn't help but notice something strange. Ever since he had broken through to the Early Star rank stage. He had been less inclined to eat food and could go long hours so far that he had Mana within him.

The duo dragged forward towards the direction of the cafeteria as they laughed occasionally with Quinn being an unstoppable shatter box.

The cafeteria was almost filled to the brim with new cadets. It seems they were not the only ones to think of going to the cafeteria.

Zeras and Quinn arrived before the waitresses as they ordered the Mizashi Twale with two fruit juices.

Zeras immediately grabbed one of the slices as he dipped it into his mouth. Even though he longer felt as hungry as he felt before, he still enjoyed the pizza-like food very much.

"So where is your friend?" Quinn asked as they ate.

"Who?"

"That Elvian friend of yours. Triton Elvianor, I think?" Quinn asked trying to remember what Triton's name was.

"Yeah. I didn't see him during the drills but I saw him in the combat class. He's pretty strong and he defeated his opponent too." Zeras said absentmindedly.

He truly saw Triton during the Combat class and even waved to him, but the boy didn't answer, probably due to not seeing him or for some other strange reasons he wasn't aware of.

"You know he might be in..." Quinn was about to say but was caught off by the presence of a stranger standing beside them.

Zeras looked up and he saw it was the dragon boy that almost suffocated him during the drills.

"Can I use the seat?" The boy asked as he looked at Quinn with the tray in his hands.

"Um...Sure." "Thank you..." The boy dropped the tray on the table as Zera's eyes almost popped out looking at the amount of food.

The tray was filled to the brim with strange red-colored meat and some vegetables. It was so full, that he was sure even five humans wouldn't finish the food if they all ate it.

"Are..you... going to finish all that..." Zetas asked shocked and speechless.

"I am. It should satisfy my appetite for the next five hours at least..." The boy said with a smile.

"You really are a dragon..." Zeras said as he looked at his golden snake-like eyes.

"Anyway, I'm Vornek Roosevelt." He said with a smile.

"Oh, you're the third on the rankings?" Quinn said with familiarity.

"Yeah, just below you," Vornek replied as he began digging into the food.

Zeras couldn't help but notice the way the boy's mouth widened every time he opened his mouth.

The mouth widened more than a normal human's as he dipped a crazy amount of food which would have taken Zeras five times to eat if he used his hands but Vornek devoured all that with a single gulp.

His hair stood in the end as he watched the gigantic tray get emptied in less than ten gulps.

He was expecting it to have swelled up like that of a pregnant woman but the stomach was as flat as ever, not changing at all a single bit.

"Um.. where did all that food go..." Zeras asked shocked as Quinn burst into laughter.

"Well, you know we dragons are naturally bigger than you humans. So we need to eat more than you do. What you both are eating won't even fill the gap between my teeth..." Vornek said in disdain looking at the small Trawl that Quinn and Zeras shared even though to Quinn it was still a lot.

"You don't look any bigger than I am..." Zeras looked at Vornek as he sized him up and down.

"Come on, this is my humanoid form. My dragon form is bigger than this, but transforming into my dragon form is inconvenient and takes too much energy. That's why I use this form. The uniform is also partly the cause..."

A notification suddenly appeared on their watch.

<Notification>

"Oh, there's a class like that?" Zeras asked excitedly.

"Yes... And it's the most boring class of all the compulsory classes..." Quinn said.

63 The Boring Class

Zeras looked around the gigantic hall as he noticed the majority of the students looking sleepy from the topic being discussed.

The female instructor talked about Mana and its origin but the majority of the students found that boring due to it being pretty common knowledge but the same couldn't be said for Zeras.

There was nothing like Mana being taught in the orphanage, so unlike the rest who didn't pay much attention to the topic, he paid all attention to it.

"Mana brings about evolution, it brings about change, a change so wide the destiny of our world was entirely re-written..." The instructor said her voice lit in seriousness.

"The change due to Mana spanned massively from the birth of new energy to the birth of genes in humans. From the mutation of different animals to the birth of new hybrids, from the birth of new ores in the earth's crust to the creation of powerful advanced technologies..."

"The very first ways of Mana cultivation was discovered by a powerful A-grade Gene awakener who goes by the name Sir Alexander Titanic..."

The greatest hero of humanity and the founder of the EIA itself..." The woman said as Zera's interest was piqued. The founder of the Cultivation Ways was also the creator of the EIA. However, according to the book given to him by Commander Shiron, it says the EIA was a conjugation of the Major world forces like the Nine families to battle the Alien races under one banner.

"The ways of cultivation created by Sir Alexander Titanic are four that need to be known at your stages. The first is the Star rank stage.

The lowest stage of cultivation and the first process toward the path of Mana.

With the presence of the Mana discovered at the age of 13, the process of cultivation is supposed to immediately begin. The star rank stage is the absorption of Mana into the Mana core. Divided into the early, middle, and late Star rank stages. At the Peak of the star rank stage, the Mana core would have become a flaming star burning with the color of one's elements.

The Late or Peak star rank stage at the age of 16-17.

This is the regular average age to achieve the above stages. However, some anomalies can achieve a higher stage of mana cultivation at a young stage. An example is our grand commanders who all achieved the Meteor rank stage at the age of 16..."

Zeras looked at the female instructor strangely. She said the average age for the early rank stage was 13-14, but he was 16 and only at the Early Star rank stage.

It seems he could only be classified as below average at best. Zeras turned to Quinn who was to his right as he couldn't help but ask what cultivation stage he is but he immediately paused.

"System, Activate System Scan..." Zeras thought in his mind.

[Host does not need to say activate System's Scan like a barbarian. Just say scan, besides you can only activate the ability by looking into the eyes of the victim...]

"Boring right? Told ya..." Quinn said as he thought Zeras hissed due to the boring instructor.

Quinn smiled as he maintained eye contact with Quinn, even though the guy was using a blindfold, the ability still worked.

[Host has activated Scan.]

[Scanning Victim.]

[Name: Quinn Voidspace]

[Race: Human]

[Gene: Voidspace Gene.]

[Gene grade: A-rank]

[Cultivation stage:Peak Star rank stage.]

[Host should upgrade the ability to unlock other features like strength, stamina, speed, composition, weakness, skills, and abilities, etc]

Zeras looked at the information wide mouth as he easily obtained information about Quinn without asking a single word.

With this ability, he could even learn everything about his opponents and things such as surprise attacks wouldn't affect him much.

And even with all that, the system's scan ability wasn't even at its peak yet. If he upgraded it to the peak, then it'll become quite the fearsome abilities.

Besides, he also noticed Quinn's cultivation which was at the Peak Star rank stage.

It was very high and explained why Quinn could his teleportation abilities so many times in the fight without a sign of him running out of Mana.

"After the Mana core had been filled it looked like a flaming star. Then the continual absorption of Mana will lead to the creation of a phantom. The phantom of a soaring meteor. Once the phantom of the meteor has been created, one would have stepped into the Early Meteor rank stage.

Steeping into a new rank will usually lead to a massive increase In strength and reaction speed about twice that of the Peak Star rank stage. Most importantly, a new ability will be awakened related to one's genes which will be even more powerful than the first gene they have awakened. Stepping onto the path of the meteor rank will mean stepping into the path of the real strong as a meteor rank stage expert will have no problem defeating two Peak Star rank stages not only due to the increase in strengths and the birth of a second genetic ability but due to the Mana concentration which will change on arriving at the Meteor rank stage.

Change in the sense that higher levels of Mana will be sensed and awakened. Yes, there are different stages to Mana and the higher your cultivation ranks, the higher the grade you're able to absorb...

Let's take a brief moment to explain the grades of Mana..." The instructor said which piqued Zera's interest.

"Grades of Mana?" He had never heard of that before.

Received my second Golden Tickets since the beginning of the novel. Thank you very much for you who sent me them. THANK YOU.

64 Grades of Mana

Let's take a brief moment to explain the grades of Mana..." The instructor said which piqued Zera's interest.

"Grades of Mana?" He had never heard of that before.

"There are three grades of mana, the blue force of mana, the yellow force of mana, the red force of mana, and the golden force of Mana.

Those at the Early Star Rank stage can only access the lowest level of Mana which is the Blue Force of Mana. Once your cultivation increases to the meteor level, you will be able to access the second stage of Mana which is the yellow force of Mana which is almost twice as effective as the blue Mana.

Those at the Cosmic Rank will have access to the Red Force if Mana while the golden force if Mana is the true state of Mana and only accessible to those at the Galaxy ranked stage.

You all are still very far from those stages so we won't be delving deep into the stage. What I can say is that the majority of you at this age should all be at the Late Star rank Stage. If you're not there yet. Then try your best to quickly reach the stage. You all should have broken through to the Meteor stage before the next year. Only then will you be able to proudly join the second years..." The instructor said honestly.

Zera's eyes narrowed on hearing that. It seemed a special criterion for joining the second years was being at the Meteor rank stage, making him wonder what the two second years he met in the cafeteria were at.

The rest of the class continued and Zeras made sure to keep his attention peeled which didn't escape the eyes of Instructor Aella who gave a nod of approval to him and a small smile could be seen on her normally serious face.

"Well, it went better than I thought..." Zeras said to Quinn and Vornek as they moved out of yeh hall with him.

"Well, only a weirdo like you will find it interesting," Quinn said with a smirk.

Zeras couldn't say no though.

"So, the class already ends for the day?" Zeras asked surprised.

"Yeah. The first week of class is short and only for building up the students for what is to come. The majority of the classes will only become available after you choose what department you want. Then the other classes will be available. For now, it's only those three classes." Vornek responded from the side.

"So what do you plan to head to for the rest of the day? It's still about 2:00 PM, you know, and don't tell me you want to spend all that sleeping again..." Quinn said with a mocking voice.

"How about we go to the Minor Training Area? It's said there are some special training rooms for the new cadets. Anti-gravity fights, Assassin Operation codes, Awakener Ball games, Attributes Testing rooms, It's where the majority of the new cadets will be. It's the best place to relax while also training yourself..." Vornek said from the side as a big smile appeared on Quinn's face.

"Count me in..." Quinn replied immediately but couldn't get but notice Zeras said nothing to that.

"So what about you Zeras? You coming?" Quinn asked.

"You know what. I'll pass. Anyway, where do we spend our points..." Zeras asked changing the topic.

"The points are used for buying Mana manuals and accessing some other cultivation rooms. But we are newbies so the cultivation rooms won't be available for us now. The only thing you can probably do with your points now is either spend it on the Minor Training rooms or use it to buy Mana Cultivation manuals..." Quinn said.

"Do you have a Mana cultivation manual?" Zeras asked as he looked at Quinn.

"Who doesn't? We only change Mana manuals if the one we are using is low level and we have another one that fits perfectly and has a higher level. I don't need to change my Mana manual as I even doubt the EIA can have a manual as high as mine. Besides even of the EIA, it will be damn expensive..."

Zeras nodded as he looked at Vornek.

"I do too..." Vornek replied.

A smile appeared on Zera's face as he didn't even possess a Mana cultivation manual at all, even the lowest level. Heck, he only learned of Mana manuals less than a day ago. He was lagging behind and by a lot too.

"I have to visit the Mana Cultivation hall. You guys go for the Minor Training room. I promise to check it out next time with you two..." Zeras said causing a nod from the duo.

Zeras also wanted to check out that Minor Training room that Vornek mentioned. Anti-gravity fights and Assassin operation code, it all sounds cool and really fun but he knew he couldn't.

His cultivation was lagging behind the others due to his late start. He had to be the lowest in cultivation in the entire cadets right now and though he was number one on the cadets rankings, Zeras was well aware it was all the system's strength. It's not like he was downgrading himself as it was his completing the quests and hard work that made him level up so fast. But there was this small fear lurking in Zera's heart. The fear of all his strength being attributed to the system. He didn't want to simply rely on the system to keep growing in strength.

He wanted to grow stronger through his Absolute Morph Gene and improve his Cultivation stages. That way he'll be confident in his strength. That way if something went wrong with the system in one way or the other, then he won't be completely helpless.

So instead of going to enjoy and have fun like the new cadets. Zeras made his way to the Mana manual hall to buy a Mana cultivation manual and begin his cultivation.

Looking at his map watch, he could see the area where the Mana manual hall was and he immediately made his way towards the place.

-- -- -- 20 minutes later...

Zeras arrived in front of a gigantic structure in the EIA as he looked at the hundreds of different EIA students moving in and out of the large door.

Zeras couldn't help but be shocked as he looked at the seniors and even though they appear regular just like a normal human.

He could sense the power they were trying to reign in under their body. A power that made him quake in fear even though they were only releasing the slightest bit of that power.

As for what will happen when they fully exploded. Zeras wasn't sure but he knew it will be mind-blowing.

He slowly took a deep breath as he affirmed himself.

He might be weak now, but with his Absolute Morph Gene which can upgrade itself and with the aid of his system. The he only needed time...

Zeras moved into the hall mixing with the second years as he began his path towards growing stronger by first choosing his cultivation manual.

Thank you for the Golden Tickets, I appreciate it. I won't mention the name, but you know who you are. THANK YOU. All your votes shows to me, that even though I'm only an amateur writer, you all believed I can grow too.

And I promise to also improve and give you guys only the best content. THANK YOU ALL.

Chapter 65 Choosing A Cultivation Manual

Zeras entered the gigantic structure and found himself in a hall filled with books that were floating in the air when suddenly his watch beeped.

At the end of the hall, another door could be seen with something written on at its top.

"Archive 2."

"A first-year student named Zeras Celestria has been identified.

Welcome to the First Archive Mana manual halls. Every book around you is a cultivation manual for newbies with level 1 authority. You can only see the title of the technique and read the description. If it fits with you, you can choose them by holding on to them for more than 5 seconds." an AI voice echoed out in the hall.

"Interesting..." Zeras muttered it seemed there were levels to the cultivation manual halls. Besides, different levels of authority were also required to access the archives. He was only at the first level of authority due to him just being newly admitted.

Zeras marveled at the floating books in front of him, wondering what level of technology was installed in the hall to make the book float in the air.

"You only have 30 minutes to choose your cultivation Manual." The AI voice as Zeras immediately moved towards the closest book to him, taking it in his hands he looked at the title before moving on to the description:

//Air Absorption Manual//

// Grade: Common level//

//Absorbs Mana from the air a meter around the surroundings. Increases absorption Mana rate when in an area where the Wind concentration is higher.//

//Price: 50 points.//

Zeras looked at the manual as he felt that the manual was pretty cool but with two limitations.

Zeras put down the book as he began moving around the hall and checking out the books.

Force absorption manual, black hole Mana manual, light corona manual, Red force area...Zeras shuffled through the countless books as fast as he could trying to find which fit him best.

"You have 5 minutes left..." The AI voice echoed as Zeras slowly came to a stop with disappointment on his face.

He only found one which was at the pseudo-rare level and it didn't even fit him as it requires a place with a volcano to increase its effects.

The manual here was for complete newbies just starting on their Cultivation journey and the highest price here was 100 points.

Although there were pretty good techniques, he wasn't satisfied with it.

Zeras was about to resort to fate and chose one of the pseudo-rare level techniques when suddenly his eyes narrowed as he looked at the door in the distance.

He moved towards the door with curiosity as the AI voice also rang out:

Zeras ignored that as he looked at the door which had the picture of a gigantic humanoid creature with different spikes emerging from its back while a dark gas oozed out of its eyes.

Zera's eyes narrowed as he felt an unbelievable connection to the creature as if they were related in some way he couldn't understand.

His eyes stared into the creature's dark eyes, not moving away when suddenly a beam of light shot off its eyes as it shone on the golden badge on his chest.

"Scanning cadet's badges..."

"Badges scanned..."

"First on New cadets rankings discovered..."

"Your Authority has been increased to level 2 for ranking first on the New Cadets rankings."

"You can now access the second level of the Archive and other perks that come with having your authority increased to level 2."

Zeras stood there numbed as he slowly pressed his hands on the door and with a rumbling sound. The door slowly opened.

In front of him was a gigantic white hall with thousands of books floating around him in the air.

"First-year cadet, Zeras Celestria has been identified."

"Welcome to the Second level of the Archive Mana manual hall."

"You have 30 minutes to choose a Mana manual hall."

Zeras couldn't believe it as he unknowingly gained access to the Second Archive level.

A wild grin couldn't help but sneak its way towards his face as he moved towards the closest book to him. An unbelievable expression appeared on his face as he stared at the description.

//Ionized Mana Absorber: Increases Mana Absorption through the induction of Mana absorber which increases Mana concentration in the surroundings, bringing about the absorption of Mana at ten times normal speed.//

//Grade: Rare Grade//

//Points: 250 points.//

Zeras gazed at the book before him as he couldn't believe the shocking effectiveness. Increasing Mana Absorption by ten times. Most shocking of it all was the points required which was a whopping 250 points, one thing was sure, only the Second years should be able to access this level of technique.

Zera's heart pumped within him as he was tempted to choose this technique but he calmed down his heart as he dropped the book.

Perhaps there might even be more outstanding ones in the area.

"20 minutes more..."

Zeras immediately grew frantic as he rapidly searched through the books crazily.

//Absorption Manual: Directly suppress Mana at a 20 km distance and absorb it into the user's body turning the user into an absorbing machine that instantly absorbs Mana.

//Grade: Middle Rare level//

//Points: 270 points//

//Bloody Mana Attraction: The user absorbs Mana from the blood of his dead victims. Works best during war where there are massive amounts of corpses and blood.//

//Grade: Peak Rare Level//

//Price: 300 points.//

//Dark black hole: With the aid of some tools set firsthand, a shocking absorbing force is instantly created as it turns the surrounding area into a black hole that instantly attracts Mana to the user.//

//Grade: Middle Rare level//

//Price: 280 points.//

//Solar Gazer Manual: With the sun as a producer and a panel as a catalyst, the flaming sun Mana is automatically absorbed turning the user into a mini-sun that automatically absorbs all Mana in the surroundings.//

//Grade: Peak rare Level//

//Price: 300 points.//

//Infinite Dark Mana Devourer: With a special set of breathing techniques, the user's all five senses turn into a black hole that automatically absorbs Mana in an area of 500 km endlessly.

Pros: There Is no limit to the amount of Mana that will be absorbed and no limit to the matter where the Mana is absorbed.

"Cons: Every single second of activating the technique leads to horrifying pain in the user's five senses and it will take a long period to allow the body to get used to the pain and slowly recover before being used once again//

//Grade: Low Epic Level//

//Price: 400 points//

Chapter 66 Infinite Dark Mana Devourer Manual

Zeras eyes narrowed reading the last books as he was caught between which one to choose.

Out of the multitudes of manuals he was able to access, those were the most shockingly effective manuals.

Looking at the manuals, Zeras immediately crossed out some like the Bloody Mana Attraction Manual due to its requirements for blood. Even though the technique was no doubt powerful, its limitations of absorbing Mana from blood and requiring huge amounts of corpse and bloods made Zeras give up the technique.

Where would he get massive amounts of blood from in the EIA? The technique would have been perfect in a war situation. Only then will its true capabilities be unleashed.

The Dark black-hole technique was also impressive but its requirements for setting up tools before it can be activated made him give it up. He can't walk around carrying with him tools for absorbing Mana. What if he lost them or he was in a serious situation and needed to absorb Mana quickly, he'll then be looking for some tools.

Its ease of usability was very limited and that was enough to make the cautious him give it up.

The Solar Gazer Manual was very good and wouldn't lose out to the other techniques but it's most especially used for absorbing the Sun's Mana. It would have been an excellent choice for those who have genes related to Fire and unfortunately his genes didn't have any semblance to fire. His Biomorph gene was more of a shape-shifting ability and the Chaos Devourer gene had nothing to do with flames.

The technique he was more inclined to choose was the Infinity Dark Mana Devourer.

The first reason he preferred the technique was due to its ease of usability. It was a breathing technique making it very easy to use in all situation. At least he knew had to breathe in all situation unless he was dying. And if he was dying, then absorbing Mana won't be his next priority in that moment.

Secondly unlike the others, it didn't require any special other tools maybe except for his five senses which the Mana will use to enter into his body. Besides, Its area of absorbing Mana was the highest out of the Mana manuals he had encountered with an area of 500km. The highest area in the other manuals wasn't even up to 300km.

Lastly was the grade of the technique itself. It was an Epic Grade technique, the highest among the manuals he looked through in the 30 minutes span. The Epic grade, if he was to guess anything, meant it was at a higher level compared to other techniques.

But the amount of points required to purchase it made Zeras doubt a little. It was a whooping four hundred points which was his entire point balance. As for the pain that accompanied the technique, Zeras wasn't the least worried about that. Besides, how bad can it be compared to having your human genome tearing apart from the infusion of a foreign genetic serum due to being used as a lab rat.

Zeras debated on whether to purchase it or not when suddenly the AI voice rang out.

"10 seconds more."

"Damn... I'll take it..." Zeras immediately held the book tightly in his hands for five seconds before a notification appeared on his watch.

"Do you wish to buy this Manual for 400points?"

"Ye..Ye..Ye...s"

"Congratulations, 400 points deducted."

"Total points balance, 0 points."

"The Infinity Dark Mana Manual has successfully been recorded."

"No wonder, I didn't see a book in the hands of those emerging from the Hall." Zeras mused as the manual was recorded in his watch instead of him having to take the book out physically.

Zeras sighed looking at his points which has changed from 400 to 0.

One thing was now sure about him now, he was as broke as hell.

"Well, at least I won't have to be worried about having my points bullied from me..." Zeras said trying to find a light in his plight as he dragged his body in the direction of his dorm room.

-- -- --

The Mana cultivation room was dimly lit with the blue colored pool of Mana at its center shining with a blue light that illuminated the surrounding walls in the room.

Zeras looked at the blue pool of Mana as he shut the door closed.

Taking off his EIA shirt, Zeras slowly entered the pool as he sat down cross-legged in the pool, his chest upward outside the pool.

He could already feel the Mana entering into his body through his pores just from sitting down in the pool.

Zeras immediately focused as he looked at his watch and looked at the process described within.

After reading the process more than five times continuously in order to ensure he properly understood the manual.

Zeras finally began as his normal breathing rhythm slowly changed. Little by little, Zeras suddenly felt the Mana around him suddenly getting aroused as the pool of Mana around him suddenly form a revolving hole with him at the centre.

Finishing the last set of breathing technique in the Manual. Zeras's face changed as he felt an unbelievable amount of force suddenly slam into his body all at once.

It felt like suddenly opening a dam. The amount of force that the water will use to burst out hole would be horrifying and that was exactly how Zeras felt.

The Mana was like a completely filled dam opening into Zeras body. They crazily entered into his pores but as if that wasn't enough, they entered into his mouth, ears and eyes in an unending Mana as Zeras clenched his tightly from the pain.

Pain. Horrifying Amount of Pain.

"ARRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRGH." Zeras screamed out his lungs as horrifying amount of Mana entered into his body all crazily moving towards his Mana core in his dantians which flared with a powerful golden light.

67 Middle Star Rank Stage

The silence in the Mana cultivation room was chilling to behold and the once blue pool filled with Mana had dried up.

In the chilling silence, raspy breathing echoed throughout the small room with small grunts which could only be due to pain could be heard.

Down at the center of the now empty pool, the figure of a young man could be seen, around him, a pool of blood mixed with dark gooey impurities.

Zeras felt like he was about to burst like an overfilled balloon except he was filled with Mana instead.

The process of the Infinity Dark Devourer is hard. Firstly, one would have to breathe in a certain rhythm which will draw in the Mana in the surroundings into one's body almost limitlessly.

After reaching the threshold of the body being filled with Mana, one would have to direct the Mana inside the body into the Mana Core.

Zeras already absorbed the Mana into his body by using the Infinity Dark Devourer for 6hrs straight causing his body to be stretched to the limit.

After he felt he could no longer absorb more, Zeras finally stopped as he prepared himself for the next process.

Changing his set of breathing, the Mana in him suddenly began moving into his Mana core filling it up. Concentrating, while feeling his entire muscles completely paralyzed was hard, but with teeth clenched and remembering how he was the lowest in cultivation stage in the EIA.

He ignored the pain as he struggled to maintain that breathing.

Time passed quickly as 4hrs quickly drifted away never to be found once again a golden light could be seen flaring deep within the room, it was sourced from Zeras himself or to be exact his Mana core.

Zeras directed his consciousness into his dantian as he looked at the ball which had half of it glowing with a golden light depicting him to have filled half of his Mana Core.

His lips pursed together as he knitted his eyebrows, but he was affirmed when the system's notification appeared in front of him.

[Congratulations, Host has successfully reached the Middle Star rank stage.]

[All your attributes have once again been increased by +2]

"Hahahahaha....Argh..." A deep laugh escaped Zeras long when he saw the notification panel but a sudden pain immediately attacked his lungs, bringing his laughter to a sudden stop.

Reaching the Middle Star rank stage in less than 10 hours. It was an achievement that would shock the entire world but he just achieved that. The Infinity Dark Devourer was a great choice and losing his 400 points to it was well worth it.

But with advantages come disadvantages. The Infinity Dark Devourer was a self-harm technique that absorbs Mana endlessly in exchange for pain.

Normally, it should be impossible for a human to keep absorbing the Mana into his other body for 6hrs straight as the body will have longed to reach its limits before that time talkless of the pain.

Fortunately or unfortunately, Zera's body was stronger than the average Early Awakener and his body limits were still very far away from the norm causing him to store more Mana than the average Awakener would.

But that also means he would feel more pain than the regular awakeners due to having to go beyond the norms and he could already feel his muscles completely paralyzed.

Though he reached the Middle Star rank stage and even had an increase in his strength, his body was very damaged and he'll need a long amount of time to recuperate before once again using the technique.

Zeras slowly stirred himself up as his body which was lying on the ground turned upside down with his chest now on the cold tiled floor.

Exerting all the strength left him, he pushed hard on the ground with teeth clenched and a vein bulging on his forehead as he slowly made his way to the bathroom on all fours leaving behind blood and black dirty impurities, the reminder of the Hellish moments he went through minutes ago.

-- -- --

The EIA training base looked more like a gigantic city itself, with different gigantic structures and long streets lighted dimly with the side light poles.

And if there were so many buildings present, the alleyways are no doubt to be present.

The EIA was structured into three areas, the First Year Areas, the Second Year Areas, and the Third Year areas, with the three areas only crossing part if they were accessing some structures like the cafeteria and the Manual halls.

In an alleyway close to the second-year areas but still in the first-year territory.

Walking through the streets with his head down, he looked back and around him occasionally, and after moving ten more meters, he suddenly took a sharp bend as he entered a completely dark alleyway, illuminated by the light from the half moon in the sky.

The alleyway was completely silent and bone-chilling, but the figure stopped as he slowly knelt on the ground with his head bowed down, not moving a single muscle as he waited patiently.

Three figures suddenly appeared from the shadows around the place, as they stood in front of the kneeling figure.

Their face could be barely seen in the dim light but the two stars on their badges indicated their status of being second years.

"You came. It seems you possessed the most understanding In all your colleagues..." A voice said from the three with a hint of mockery within.

If Zeras was here, he would have remembered it was the voice of the second-year senior, Jim who tried to bully away their points from them in the cafeteria.

The kneeling figure didn't say a single word as he simply stretched out his watch and one of the figures swiped his watch on his.

"Ding..."

"+230 points credited."

"-230 points deducted."

The AI voice of the watches rang out at the same time.

"Good. Good..." Jim's sinister voice rang out as he slowly tapped his hands on the head of the bowed figure.

"You have done the right thing, kid..."

"Can I...Can I go now...And you won't disturb me again..." The kneeling figure said as he finally raised his head.

"You've done exactly what you're supposed to do. But I just need one more thing from you... an information that greatly piqued my curiosity. If you tell me, then you can finally go home, without having to worry about any second years disturbing you again...." Jim said as a red glint flashed in his eyes...

The three individuals looked at the back of the figure as Jim uttered.

"Zeras Celestria and Quinn Voidspace huh... Search their information out, Durango... Let's widen the game's stage a little more bit, shall we..."

68 A Sleeping Volcano

The three individuals looked at the back of the figure as Jim uttered.

"Zeras Celestria and Quinn Voidspace huh... Search their information out, Durango... Let's widen the game's stage a little more bit, shall we..."

"Found it." The husky voice of a young man echoed through the dark alleyway as the three figures covered by the darkness gathered together "The Quinn Voidspace is a little bit of a problem, Jim..."

"How so, Durango..." Jim asked the short young man who looked to be around 18 with a height of 1.7 meters and wore a black reading glass on his face.

Durango looked at his watch as he saw the information about Quinn Voidspace which made him knit his eyebrows together.

"According to what I can gather from him, it said he's from the Voidspace family and he's also a major. Ranked second on the New Cadets rankings and cultivation at the Peak Star rank stage. He might be a little hard to deal with..." Durango said as he looked at Jim before him.

"Tch, those from the Nine families are truly a headache and hard to tame. Ignore him. What about the other one..." Jim asked as he gave up on Quinn.

"Hmmm... He's very... strange. Except for Ranking first on the rankings, there's nothing else about him." Durango.

"What? That's impossible..." Jim immediately replied as he was well aware of the source of their information. It was an entry-level 2 authority that automatically brought about more than basic information about students, including their backgrounds and current cultivation stages.

Hearing no information from Zeras made him doubt a little as such a case of having no information is an impossibility. It means the EIA doesn't have any information about Zeras except that he ranked first on the New Cadets rankings.

"Are you sure?" Jim asked as Durango showed him the information provided on his watch and just as said. Jim could only see the picture of Zeras and a single line of information.

"Even the EIA doesn't have anything about him. That means he is either a really important somebody or nobody. I can't imagine him being so important the EIA didn't want to add his information meaning he's more of a nobody..." Jim said placing his hands on his forehead with a serious look on his face.

"So what do we do?" Durango asked.

"We test him... Check what's so mysterious about him and the final decision will be determined from the results. Just ignore him for now..." Jim said as the trio slowly moved into the darkness once again.

'I can see murder in your eyes Zeras. I hope you're worth the wait or coming to the EIA will be your greatest regrets...' The thought of the past exchange unfolded in Jim's mind as hatred flashed in his eyes but soon turned into a sinister smirk.

"DRRRRRRRRRMMMM."

Looking at the screen with half-sleepy eyes <Notification>

<Drills begin in the next 30 minutes>

"Tch..." Zeras slowly stood up from his bed, reluctantly as he moved towards the bathroom to prepare for the day.

His body was still a mess but he could still walk around and jog around without falling. That was enough for the drills. Not attending the drills had a cost he wasn't willing to pay for so he had no choice but to ignore his pain and attend.

Zeras moved towards the bathroom door but stopped as he sat down on the sofa.

"Activate System's interface..." It was something he ought to have done the previous day but due to his tiredness failed to do.

[System Interface]

Name: Zeras Celestria]

[Level: 6]

[Cultivation Stage: Middle Star rank stage]

[HP: 170/170]

[EXP: 120/1200]

[Energy: 65/65]

[Mana core Energy: 70/70]

Attributes]

[Strength: 32]

[Agility: 27]

[Perception:16]

[Intelligence: 10]

[Charm: null]

"There was an increase in 2 points in all my stats, except for my intelligence and the HP and Mana core energy also increased," Zeras muttered as he stood up from the comfort of his chair and got ready for drills.

-- -- --

The days quickly passed with the New cadets slowly awakening themselves to the new realities of life and familiarity with the new environment.

15:53

After the day's training ends, Zeras will move to the Cafeteria with Quinn and Vornek. The trio would sometimes meet up with Triton as Zeras noticed him being once again the cheerful chap he met the first time before they underwent the trial at the Monolith.

Even though he could see a strange expression appear on his face whenever he looked deep into his eyes, as if afraid of looking into his eyes. But Zeras paid not too much attention to that and was just happy Triton finally got over his fears and once again became the inquisitive young chap. This was the part of him that piqued his curiosity in the first place.

The trio slowly formed a deep bond between each other as they got more familiar as time went by. Zeras would immediately head back to his dorm room, once the training ended and after visiting the cafeteria due to trying to recuperate while Quinn, Vornek, and Triton would head to the Minor Training Area where they spent the remaining of their day.

Even though the trial now where more than three times harder for him due to his injured body, Zeras managed and he could feel himself growing used to his new increase in strength as his body slowly healed. He was like a sleeping volcano before but as his body healed, he could finally feel the increase in strength due to his advancement as he noticed he could use his genetic ability for almost double the time he normally used it for before.

Of course that was only when he was alone. He still wasn't planning on letting the world know about his genetic ability yet.

Time passed incredibly fast and before they could realize it, a week already passed.

Now was the time for the New cadets to choose their departments which would determine their training for the next three years and their direction of career in the EIA.

As for Zeras, he already knew which department he'd be choosing.

Powerstones nad Golden Tickets are greatly appreciated. Don't forget to comment your views on what you think about the next phase of the story in the comments sections. Thank you.

69 Inter-dimensional Combat Department

<Notification>

<Please choose your department from the list: Note you can only choose one department from the multitude>

<Health Department>

<Gene Researching Department>

<Genetic Serums Department>

<Engineering Department>

<Infiltration Department>

<Cosmic Research Department>

<Operation Combat Department>

<Inter-dimensional Combat Department>

<Commercial Business Department>

<Alien Relations Department>

Zeras looked at the unending lists of departments on his watch which he could choose from as he quickly picked some which he felt he was born to do.

One of them was the Infiltration Department. His Absolute Morph Gene could perhaps be the best genetic ability which could be said to perfectly fit the class and he'll no doubt do very well if he attended that class.

While the Infiltration class was interesting, other classes he felt were also tailored for him were the Operation Combat Department and the Inter-dimensional Combat Department.

The Operation Combat Department looked more like the EIA group dealing with land military fighting and rescuing. An example might be the EIA group that responded to his call for help when he was stuck on the Mutant Organization branch.

If it was that department, then it was a good choice for him.

The Inter-dimensional Combat Department also looked cool and probably the same as the Operation Combat Department. Instead of it being on land, it could be in space instead and between worlds.

It was definitely a cool idea fighting a war in space itself and the thought of that made his heart almost spiral out of control.

Now he was stuck between these two choices, should he go for the Operation Combat Department or the Inter-dimensional Combat Department?

Zeras furrowed eyebrows due to deep thinking suddenly cleared away as he slapped his forehead with a mocking smirk on his face.

"Why am I disturbing myself when I have an accurate predictor here..."

"Hey system, so which do you think I should go for, the Operation Combat Department or the Inter-dimensional Combat Department?"

Zeras said to the system although it looked more like he was talking to himself.

[It is advised that the Host goes for the Inter-dimensional Combat Department instead of the Operation Combat Department. The Host will be needing that shortly to come...] The system's monotonic voice rang out once again.

Zera's eyes narrowed looking at the panel as he couldn't but notice something strange about the system's words.

"Hey system, why do you say I'll be needing that soon, I don't think I have any business out of space or anything like that, right?" Zeras asked looking for some clarification.

[The Host strength is too low to access this information.]

A vein appeared on Zeras'face looking at the notification as he wanted nothing but to rip the system apart. No matter how much his strength grew, the system would always say he was too weak to access anything.

"Then when. What amount of strength will be required to access even the most basic information about you..."

[According to the system's prediction. The host will be able to access the basic information of the system once he reaches level 10 of the system.]

Zera's eyes softened as he gazed at the notification. At least he now knew what level he had to reach to get the information about the system.

Having to keep such an entity in him without knowing a single thing about it was nerve-racking.

Besides, he was also receiving EXPs from fighting the other cadets in the combat class throughout the week except for his fight with the diamond race expert which was a draw.

Every fight with a new cadet was a 120 EXP gained, one of the reasons why Zeras loved the Combat class.

Looking at his EXP points now, it was,

[960/1200]

Zera's hands pressed the Inter-dimensional Combat Department tab on his watch as a blue wave of light emanated from the watch.

<Congratulations on successfully choosing your department>

<You can now access the department area of the EIA.>

<Please move to the Inter-dimensional Combat Department class in the next 20 minutes>

Zeras looked at his watch as he saw a new area on the map that wasn't present there before:

"Departments Area."

Dressing up in his EIA uniform, he immediately moved out of the room, closing in on the direction of the Inter-dimensional Combat Department indicated by the watch.

The definition of the Inter-dimensional Combat Department could be easily identified by just breaking down the words and interpreting them. Although it has grown through the years and become varied, its core meaning is still the same...." The voice of a female instructor around 1.9 meters tall and donning a tight-fitting EIA uniform echoed throughout the hall where about 150 students sat down.

Zeras looked at the instructor from one of the seats at the far end of the hall. He didn't chat with anyone beside him as his heart beat gently in him while his gaze rested on the Instructor who goes by the name Merica.

"Firstly, the meaning of Inter-dimensional simply means traveling or existing between dimensions of space and time.

So the Inter-dimensional Combat Department is a department focusing on combat through different spaces and times. Instead of the Operation Combat Department which focuses on wars mostly happening within a planet or world. The Inter-dimensional Combat Department focuses on battles in space itself and majorly on the spaceships.

So if you eventually come across a void beast traveling in space, an Operation Combat pupil will be killed within minutes while an Inter-dimensional Combat pupil will be able to easily solve the problem." Instructor Merica said causing a nod of approval from the students with the majority of them choosing the class because it looked like fun.

"Another major distinction between the Inter-dimensional Combat Department and the Operation Combat Department is that if the 100 of you are chosen and embark on a true operation right now, then about 30 of you should make it back alive. But if 100 of you right now are chosen to embark on a true Inter-dimensional Combat, then none of you will survive.

YOU WILL ALL DIE!!!" Instructor Merica said as the new cadets swallowed hard.

Zeras didn't need to be told that it meant the Inter-dimensional Combat Department was far harder than the Operation Combat Department.

"So if you're here for the fun... Have fun knowing your life could be snapped off in a blink eventually..."

Golden Tickets and Powerstones are greatly appreciated.

70 The Treasure of Inter-dimensional Combat

"Your departments can't be changed for the next one week according to the school protocol, so you're stuck in the class for the next one week. After a week of training, you can then decide if this is for you or not." Instructor Moneca said killing the hopes of those who want to immediately give up once they heard the high death ratio of the department.

"Now with that said, let's get to action."

The room they were in suddenly changed as the entire hall which was formerly filled with chairs suddenly changed.

The wall, the ceiling, the chair, everything changed, and it was presented in the format of a deep expanse of the void of space.

Zeras's jaw dropped to the ground wide as he looked at the space he was in and couldn't believe that it was a long white hall he was formerly present in.

"Artificial Environment Techno-morph..." the voice of a more enlightened cadet spoke beside Zeras as he turned to him.

"The entire place is an illusion, the entire environment could be changed to anyhow you like it. You could make this place like in the middle of an ocean if you want or you could make it a long grassy plane. But the original format is still a long white hall. Normally, it's not all the time you come across this piece of technology but it's not shocking if the EIA has this." Xaim said, a dark-colored, handsome human boy of about 17 with a height of about 1.8 meters.

"Thanks..." Zeras said for the explanation.

"So this is a vast expanse of space..." Instructor Moneca said, her voice ringing through the entire space...

"In the vast expanse of space, there is only one treasure. If you possess it, then you're rich, what could that treasure be..."

"Spacesuit?" Zeras guessed.

Instructor Moneca suddenly clapped loudly causing a gigantic object to appear at the center of the void made completely of blue-coloured light making it extremely glaring in the darkness.

"Yes, it's a spaceship...This is the absolute treasure of space. Hijack the spaceship of the enemy and you have successfully half killed them. Own a spaceship and you have life and hope in space...So if there is something most worthy of learning in this department, it's learning how this treasure works and how to maintain it..." Instructor Moneca's voice rang throughout the entire space making Zeras give a nod.

A spaceship was really important when it came to inter-dimensional battles. Besides, being a means of transportation, it's the armory of fighting battles in space.

"So let's begin learning more about this treasure shall we?"

The students moved forward to Instructor Moneca as they were shown the different parts of the spaceship and their functions.

Not only that, even the part which was the hardest to break in from, the most fragile part of the spaceships, the engine position, the energy Mana stones that run the spaceship, different types of Spaceship and popular models, types of weapons on the spaceship, etc.

6hrs later...

Zeras finally felt the advantages of increasing his intelligence as they were asked to learn the information and function of more than two thousand parts of the spaceship in and out.

The other cadets already took out their watches and were recording the information but Zeras didn't do anything but listen attentively and he could easily remember everything he was told.

He would probably have been looked on as a monster if that was learned as only those at Meteor rank stage and with a gene leaning more in the education faculty side should be able to perform this feat.

"So you've all learned of the external and internal parts of the spaceships. In our next class, we'll be having a test on this information given and perhaps learn to pilot a real spaceship..."

With a loud clap from Instructor Moneca, the room demographic immediately changed as the vast expanse of space transformed once again into a white-looking hall, with the spaceship already disappearing.

"See you chicks tomorrow..." Instructor Moneca said, shooping them off.

Zeras moved out of the hall, his head almost bursting into pieces due to the amount of information he was keeping in them.

He really needed to find a way to take his mind off this or he really might go insane.

Scrubbing his forehead, his watch suddenly beeped.

<Notification>

<Quinn Voidspace>

<Hey bro, have you heard the news? The Virtually Reality Fully Immersive MMORPG game of the EIA gods Battle is finally out for the New cadets. Like I would die a happy man if I could just play that game, just once in my life... I'm in the Minor training area right now trying to get a set, Meet up with me now man. I mean right now...">

Zeras raised an eyebrow looking at the information. The virtual reality of the EIA gods battle game? Is that some new class or?

"Well, it won't hurt to check it out..." Zeras muttered as he slowly headed towards the Minor training area for the first time.

-- -- --

The Minor Training Area was one of the countless structures present in the EIA, but it was one of the most visited places in the New Cadets Area, maybe only rivaled by the cadet's dorm rooms.

It was like a playground for the new cadets as there were more than enough amount of virtual and physical activities that could be performed within, whether it was the Anti-gravity room, where the students can engage in battles with absolutely no gravity acting on them, or engaging in Assassination codes where they are transported to a maze in groups and will fight it out trying to win in a battle of wits and strength.

While this is just one out of yeh uncountable activities that can be mentioned. It should still be noted that it's all physical activities. The real majority of the activities in the EIA Minor Training Area were its virtual reality activities and one of those activities was the virtual reality game: EIA gods Battle.

A Virtual reality game where the EIA students can challenge each other to fight, go on different missions, and compete with each other, to determine who the EIA combat gods are, all while just wearing a headset on and sitting in their room...
