Chapter 116

Chapter 116 When Do You Learn Piano?

At this time, Abbigail held Davon's arm and went to the fifth row of the auditorium. She even introduced him to the people around her

Davon originally did not want to come, but after hesitating outside for a while, he still felt that he should participate in the award ceremony of his fiancée

Therefore, he reluctantly came.

Although he was reluctant, when Abbigail introduced his identity, he still greeted the people around him gracefully.

His behavior was a credit to the Tate family. Tyrell and Lindsey were indescribably proud!

Kamora took out her phone and secretly sent a message to Greta, "You are not enough of a friend! Why didn't you tell me about the relationship between Davon and Abbigail? If I hadn't met them in the auditorium, I wouldn't have known that you already have a would be daughter-in-law!"

Greta had been drinking her *tea when she received this message. She almost fainted from anger. She hurriedly replied, "The auditorium? What auditorium?"

She had repeatedly warned Davon not to see Abbigail in the past two days. Unexpectedly, Davon still refused to listen to her!

He ignored her warning!

"It's National Piano Competition Award Ceremony! My daughter got fifth place, so I accompanied her there. I didn't expect that Abbigail would get second place. She is talented."

"Where are you? I'll go and take a look." Greta felt annoyed.

"What? Your daughter-in-law didn't invite you?"

"They seem to have a good relationship." Kamora teased.

At this time, Abbigail was sweetly holding Davon's hand. It was unknown what she said to Davon. Davon lowered his head and listened to her. He smiled faintly.

That scene was as beautiful as a painting!

"What daughter-in-law?" Greta was so angry. "It's not what you think. They are not serious."

"Huh?"

Kamora was surprised. "Not serious? Her parents are very serious."

"Oh, you know how many people want to take advantage of the Elinor family."

Kamora understood. It turned out that the Tate family was flattering themselves. Davon's parents did not accept their relationship, but the Tate family was spreading false news.

Davon and Abbigail watched the host giving an opening speech on the stage. His mobile phone vibrated twice, and he saw that they were messages from his mother,

"You me off! How many times have I told you to break up with that girl? You just won't listen!

"Alright. If you want, marry into the Tate family! We will cut you off!

"If you like to stay with her, then don't come back!"

Davon saw Greta's messages and did not understand why his mother knew that he was there...

He turned around and looked around. Other than Abbigail's parents, he did not know the people here.

It was strange

*, Ill go back later. Don't be angry."

Davon did not want to come here. He just wanted to keep Abbigail company. Otherwise, he felt like he owed her.

Abbigail saw the messages on the screen because she was close to him. She was secretly angry, but she could not show it. She could only say gently, "is your *urging you? If so, you can go back first. Don't worry about me."

Davon tooked back. Her eyes were pure and kind, so he could not bear to do so.

"Davon, you can go back. Don't let your *be sad. You are her only son."

Abbigail said considerably. "No matter what she thinks of me, as a mother, she definitely wants her son to be good. She hopes that her son can find a good girl and live happily for the rest of his life."

"Don't you blame her?"

Davon was a little surprised. He looked into her eyes and asked. "In the hospital, she was not nice."

Greta refused to accept Abbigail and despised her.

"She is the same as me. She loves you very much and looks out for you. I know that she does so for your own good, so I don't blame her," Abbigail shook her head and smiled more gently

Davon was immediately moved by her kindness. He put away the phone and held her hand. The haze of the past few days was swept away.

He didn't care about how those people ridiculed Abbigail. So what if she had an embarrassing background? As long as Abbigail became his wife in the future, no one would dare to laugh at her.

Abbigail didn't want to be adopted by a cleaner, but fate made it happen. She didn't blame anyone but had always treated the people around her with a kind heart..

Were there any girls better than her in this world?

Even if Abbigail had dated other boys before, so what? She had enjoyed no fatherly love since she was young and thus longed for someone's care. There was nothing wrong.

Recalling her family environment in her childhood, Davon suddenly had a question. "When did you learn the piano?"

He still remembered that she once said that her mother worked very hard to raise her up, and it was very difficult.

In such an environment, she should not have been able to learn the piano.

Abbigail did not expect Davon to suddenly ask her this question. This question also aroused Lindsey's curiosity. Before Abbigail returned to the Tate family, she did not seem to have learned how to play the piano!

Then how could she play the piano so well and win an award?

"After I returned to the Tate family, I saw that Paige had a piano in her room, so I learned it online myself."

This was true. I order to improve her status as a young lady, Abbigail learned a lot online.

"There were piano lessons online. When there was no one around, I would practice by myself.

"Later, when my father saw that I really liked it, he bought me a new piano. He also asked a tutor to teach me "

This was also true. When Tyrell saw that she liked it, he asked the tutor to teach her every day. However, they did not know whether Abbigail had mastered it or not.

Just like that? Have you learned it? Playing the piano is very complicated. I learned it for ten years and only got first place in the competition the year before last year."

Davon did not expect his fiancée to be so talented. She had only returned to the Tate family for a few dozen days, but she had already learned such a difficult musical instrument!

This is talent. Paige treats the piano as a decoration! She ruined such an expensive piano!"

Lindsey was unhappy. "But Abbigail got second place after casually learning for a short period of time! She's so amazing!"

Abbigail was a little guilty of being praised by them. Of course, she knew her own level. She could only play this song. Although the tutor had taught her other songs before, she was not good at them.

Piano experts could easily tell what her level was.

Therefore, during this period of time, she had been practicing the song that she played today at home to do a good job.

She knew that Davon knew how to play the piano, so she worked hard.

At this time, she found that Davon looked at her as gently as before, and she felt at ease.
