Chapter 12

Patricia Is Back Get Bons Anna

continued, “If not for you, would their small workshop have developed so much, and would they move from a small city to a first– tier one? Tyrell could be one of the richest men in Chicago all because of your hard work! Otherwise, he might be broke. “He doesn’t have the talent to do business, so he causes trouble for you every few days. You have to clean up his mess! You should have been the richest person instead! And he would have nothin g! It's a pity you haven't earned anything for yourself all these years..." "What's wrong with that?" Paige's voice was a little la*ry as if she didn't care. "As long as I want money, I can earn it anytime." "I just feel sorry for you! Ever since we were young, they have left you with Cassie and rarely returned home! "When they found Abbigail, they kicked you away. "They are so ungrateful!" "Alright, let's not talk about them. Keep an eye on the Heart Relief Grass for me. One stalk is not enough," Paige interrupted, "If it shows up in an auction, let me know immediately." "Don't worry." They chatted a while longer before the call ended. At this moment, Paige's phone vibrated. She unlocked the screen and found a new message sent by a subordinate. "Boss, I have a big order! "A super—rich man ordered a hundred pieces of clothes, a hundred bags, and a hundred pairs of shoes for his daughter. He wants them today. "I sent all the limited editions to him! The inventory is empty now! "When are you going to give me a few more drafts? "I want them! It's urgent!" Paige tapped the screen with her slender fingers and quickly replied, "Soon." "OK, then I will wait for your news. I will be at the rich man's house soon. I will see what his daughter looks like. I hope she is not ugly and won't ruin your clothes." Paige was a little surprised. "You will personally deliver them?" "It's such a big order. I must be considerate! Don't you agree?" Putting down the phone, Paige was puzzled. What kind of family was this? They bought so many clo thes and shoes at once. Were they going to open a shop? At this time, a luxury RV stopped at the entrance of the villa. Chapter 12 Patricia Is Back 1/5 Get Boys Dillon stepped forward and respectfully opened the car door. He bowed and said, "Ms. Lusk, welcome home. You will bring a lot of joy to this house." Patricia got out of the car. Her skin was fair, her figure was graceful, and her face was beautiful. Her bangs were tucked behind, revealing her smooth forehead. Her lustrous eyes showed confidence. Several servants moved her luggage into the house, and Dillon followed her all the way. "Ms. Lusk, you were busy with the examinations, so I didn't dare to disturb you. After it was over, you went abroad to play with your best friend. N ow that you are back, I finally have a chance to talk to you...," Dillon said in a low voice. "What is it?" Patricia's facial features were ordinary, but she was spoiled and exuded superiority. Even her voice carried the arrogance and nobility of an outstanding person. She wore a fluffy dress today. The hems set off her beauty and elegance. She held a branded bag and wore branded jewelry. She looked like a noble flower. And her beauty came from money and skincare products. "It's..." Before Dillon finished his words, Patricia noticed there were dozen outsiders in the garden. They hung countless beautiful clothes and bags on the racks. After tidying them up, they were about to bring them into the house. Several servants were blowing balloons ons in the garden and hanging star lights on the trees. Even Amily was helping. Amily Chavez was Patricia's "exclusive s*rvant". Patricia grew up with her. After Danica gave birth to five sons, she couldn't produce milk and lacked energy after she had a baby girl. After Patricia was born, Amily fed her on formula, put her to bed, and stayed by her side. In this family, there was only one thing that Amily had to do, which was to serve Patricia well. Therefore, Amily's status was slightly higher than the other s*rvants. She was like a mother to Patricia. When Patricia saw her, Patricia gave a bright smile. "Ms. Lusk, you are back!" When Amily saw Patricia, the smile on her face did not fade. She quickly walked over and said, "I finally see you! You i nsisted on living in that boarding school. Now you have lost weight in just a month!” “You are thinner, too. Is it because you missed me?” “Girl!” Amily was amused by her and looked at her again. “Fortunately, you are more beautiful!” Patricia smiled sweetly and looked at the other s*rvants. “Is this a surprise prepared for me?” Did her parents want to reward her for preparing for her exams? Or did they think it was time to throw a come-of-age party for her? Get Boys Or did they want to congratulate her in advance because they thought she would go to the University of Chicago? No matter what, Patricia felt happy to see this. There were no girls who did not like beautiful clothes and shoes, not to mention they were limited editions. Besides, a party seem ed to be coming up. Sure enough, her parents doted on her the most! Although she had five older brothers, her parents loved her equally. When Amily heard that, her expression was a little awkward. "I'll go over and take a look." Patricia's tone was still joyful. But Amily quickly called out, "Ms. Lusk, they are not for you."

When Amily said that, she glanced at Dillon. They did not want to hurt Patricia's feelings. Amily should be the one to break the bad news to Patricia. "Amily, I know you did not expect that I would fly back on my best friend's plane in advance. I know you have not set up the party yet... It doesn't matter. I will pretend I don't know. You can continue your work. I did not see anything." "Patricia..." Patricia happily entered the ho use. She was the only girl in this house. If these things were not for her, were they for her brothers? Her parents wanted to give her a surprise. It was normal for these servants to not admit it. Patricia entered the main hall. Dozens of display racks were neatly placed there. Every skirt and bag seemed to be tailor-made for her... Patricia shuttled through the racks, happiness filling in her heart. Emily tried to explain, but when she saw Patricia's cheerful face, she could not bear to break her fantasy. In the room, Paige just finished working and was ready to rest when someone knocked on the door. Bonnie Perry's respectful voice came from outside the door, "Miss, your parents invited you to the garden.". Paige realized the surprise wa s ready. She closed the door and obediently followed Bonnie to the garden. Just as she stood at the entrance of the garden, everything suddenly went black. The lights of the entire villa were turned off. Three seconds later, a dreamy light appeared. 3/5 “Miss, please come in.” Bonnie bowed and made a gesture. Get Bogs Paige walked into the garden. There were all kinds of beautiful star lights hanging on the trees. Countless brightly—colored balloons floated in the air. Colorful ribbons fell from the sky. Was this a surprise for her? Paige had never received a surprise from Tyrell and Lindsey, but now, she could feel how her biological parents loved her. Patricia, who was in the room, was surprised to see this. Why did no one tell her before releasing th e ribbons? But she would get thousands of likes once she posted this. Patricia was about to go to the garden to take a few photos. Then she suddenly found her parents were running out happily and shouted, “My precious daughter.” Patricia couldn’t help but lower her head shyly and smile. Since she was young, her parents had never called her so lovingly. Did they miss her after so many days? Did they think she was in the garden, so they happily ran out to welcome her? What they didn’t know was that their precious daughter was still in the house!
