Chapter 178

Chapter 178 Decoct the Heavenly Ginseng Herself

After a few ***.

The chef finished cooking, and Martin personally brought the dishes to her. "Can't you sleep?"

"Yeah..." Paige was a little surprised when she saw him getting in with two trays in his hands. "You usually cat in your room?"

"No." Martin put the trays on the table and said gently, "But I can always make an exception for you. Wait a minute. There are more dishes downstairs. I will go fetch them now."

Seeing him leaving the bedroom, Paige felt warm in her heart.

Outside the window, the crescent-shaped lake was sparkling in the sun. The endless daisies swayed in the wind. Paige came to the balcony to enjoy the beautiful scenery and let the cool breeze touch her face.

Martin walked over with two trays in his hands. He was tall and handsome. When he fell his gaze on Paige, his eyes. were full of gentleness and affection.

"I will eat here. The view is pretty good." Paige pointed at the table on the balcony.

"Sure." Martin put the trays on the table and pulled out a chair for her.

Paige sat down, and then she saw him fetch her a lot of dishes over again.

After eating the delicious food, Paige said lightly, "I should go back. You can keep the Heavenly Ginseng. I will prepare the other medicine and decoct them together."

"Where are the other medicines?" Martin asked softly.

Were they in the Triangle Area again? Or were they in some other dangerous places? He couldn't let her go alone.

"In Chicago."

"I'll send someone to get it. Give me the address," Martin said worriedly.

"Don't worry. I will be safe."

Some of them are in Knapcoll Villa, and some have to go through a few processes before they can be decocted together. In short, it's tricky to deal with these medicines.

"It will be ready tonight. You can take me home first," Paige said gently.

She didn't intend to tell him the location of Knapcoll Villa for the time being.

"Don't work too hard," Martin said, feeling sorry for her.

Although Rosa's condition was serious and it was important to get this done as soon as possible, Paige's health was equally important to Martin.

"I know."

After returning to Villa, Paige didn't head towards the garage until Martin left. She was going to drive back to Knapcoll Villa.

Danica was drinking afternoon tea in the garden. When she saw Paige, she instantly greeted her with a smile, "Paige, you are back! Come and join me. Is your friend well? Did you get a doctor for her? What illness does she have?"

Paige called Danica last time and only gave her a brief explanation, so Danica did not know the specific situation. But

Paige did say on the phone that her friend had an accident and was very seriously ill and that she needed to go abroad to pay her friend a visit.

"She is fine. Don't worry. , I have something to deal with. I need to go," Paige said gently.

"Again? But you just come back. Wait a second. Let me get you a glass of juice. Drink it before you leave..."

"I will drink it when I come back."

"Then drive safely..."

Paige to Knapcoll Villa and ordered people to prepare all the other medicines. She was going to decoct it herself.

At the same time, Rhys received the message and immediately called Martin.

"Mr. Stowe, the other party said that they wanted to see the Blue Dogbane and Purple Lotus Root first. They probably thought that we were liars."

Martin held the steering wheel with one hand and said in a casual tone, "Send him the pictures."

"Yes, sir."

Rhys was a little surprised. He had not expected that Martin would become so easy to talk to for the sake of Rosa.

Usually, Martin would absolutely ignore the other party if they wanted to inspect the goods first.

It was dark.

Paige sent the medicine that she made to the Moon Dunes Villa.

"This is the Heavenly Ginseng. Slice it and take 0.01 pounds of it every time. Decoct it with these medicines. Boil them gently for about ten minutes. Feed it to Mrs. Stowe when it cools down."

Paige handed the medicine over. "This is a total of six packs for three days. Take it twice a day."

Some people in a vegetative state needed to be fed through nasogastric tubes, but Rosa had the swallowing reflex and she was able to take liquids.

Martin did not expect Paige to make the Heavenly Ginseng so quickly. He touched her face and said, "You didn't get a good rest after you went back?"

"I have slept enough on the plane." Paige said lightly, "I still have something else to do. I'll be off then."

"What is it? I'll help you," Martin said, didn't want to let her go.

Paige wanted to say that there was nothing he could do, but she was afraid that he would stalk her. So she said, "Nothing. It's just some business affair."

"Business affair? But you just came back" Martin felt sorry for her and touched her face. "I can give you a ride."

"No need. I will drive by myself." Paige checked the time and reminded him, "Don't forget to help Mrs. Stowe take the medicine."

"Sure." Martin followed her to the car and said with a worried look on his face, "Take good care of yourself and drive safely. If you need anything, call me. Don't shoulder everything alone."

"Got it."

Paige stepped on the accelerator and away. Martin watched her leave. He was amazed that his girl was so versatile and skilled.

People her age were still busy passing tests, while she already learned to drive and start her career.

Adam looked in the direction in which Paige left and could not help but ask, "Mr. Stowe, which famous doctor prescribed the medicine that Ms. Paige sent over? Should we examine it first?"

It was not that Adam did not believe in Paige, but that no doctor could cure Rosa in the past few years.

Even Todd could do nothing about it.

Now that Rosa was dying, no one knew if there would be any side effects after she took this medicine. They had to rest assured before Rose took the medicine.

Adam was afraid that Paige would buy the fake medicine. She was still so young, and she might not know when she was fooled by others.

"No medicine in this world is more effective than hers."

Adam was stunned by Martin's evaluation. "Did Ms. Paige make it herself?"

How old was she?

How could she make medicine herself?

Adam had heard that Paige saved Killian twice and that she knew medicine, but many famous doctors couldn't even cure Rosa's illness...

Now that Rosa was dying, would Paige's medicine really save her?

Then wouldn't she be more awesome than those famous doctors?

"Get me the car. I'll send it to Grandma," Martin said. He planned to go to the Riverside Villa himself.

Adam did not expect that Martin would trust Paige so much.

"Then why did you also ask Skylar to treat your grandma?"

Since Paige had already given them the medicine...

If Rosa was healed after taking Paige's medicine, they wouldn't need Skylar at all.

"I spent so much effort finding him because I wanted to know if he could heal Grandma and help her recover from a vegetative state."

Paige's medicine could only save Rosa's life for the time being.

He still had to consult Skylar as to whether Rosa could return to normal again.

"It's different."

Adam understood and bowed to him respectfully, "I will go get the car over."

It was really amazing that Paige at her age could save Rosa's life. Her medical skills were rather superb even in this country.

However, only an experienced doctor like Skylar could heal someone in a vegetable state back to normal again.

"Sir, may I come with you? I haven't met Mr. and Mrs. Stowe for a long time."

"Okay," Martin said.
