Chapter 205

Chapter 205 Tearful Voice

"Hello." Paige nodded slightly to greet her.

The head nurse saw that Paige seemed to be nobler than Patricia. Was she a relative of the Lusk family?

Paige seemed to be born into a prominent family and well-educated. She was not spoiled or ****like Patricia. At a glance, she looked like a sensible person

"Did ***and dad wake up today?" Although the possibility was very low, Danica still asked with a glimmer of hope.

"They haven't woken up yet. Their conditions haven't improved in the last three days..."

Every day, the monitoring data would be updated to the software backstage for Donald and Danica to check at any time.

Danica had also discovered that their conditions were deteriorating bit by bit. The evaluation given by the doctor was not optimistic. They had to be ***prepared.

"Well, for the elderly, their bodily functions are declining..."

"Give us some time alone."

"Yes."

Danica held Paige's arm and walked along the corridor. "Your grandparents need rest, so their ward is arranged in the last room..."

In the ***and bright VIP ward, there were two smart beds watched by two nurses separately. When they saw Danica and others appear, they hurriedly stood up to greet them.

"Shh." Danica signed them to keep quiet and go out.

They bowed respectfully and left the ward.

"Dad, ***..." Donald didn't expect that, despite his wealth, his parents had to suffer this kind of pain. He couldn't help but feel sour.

"Jason, Elena, I really hope you can wake up and meet our biological daughter Donald and I lost back then!" Danica beckoned Paige over. "This is Paige, Paige Lusk, your biological granddaughter."

Patricia heard the two words "biological granddaughter" at the side and looked away disdainfully. Then what was she?

She suddenly hoped that Jason and Elena would never wake up so that Paige wouldn't be recognized by them.

In their hearts, there would only be one granddaughter called Patricia.

"Paige, say hello to your grandparents," Danica said gently.

"Grandpa, grandma, I came to see you," said Paige softly.

They wore comfortable home clothes and closed their eyes as if taking a nap.

Their hair was meticulously tidied up, and their nails were carefully trimmed. There was not a trace of inappropriateness in their appearances.

They were from a rich family after all. Even if his life were supported by a breathing machine, Paige could tell from Jason's amiable face that he was full of energy and optimistic about life.

Elena's well-maintained face showed her decades long experience in the business world. She was amiable and carried a trace of wisdom and the capability of a strong woman.

It turned out that her grandparents were elegant and resilient people,

"Paige, sit here." Danica signed Paige to sit in the chair between the two beds.

After Paige sat down, she naturally put on Jason's wrist, "Grandpa, we are all looking forward to you waking up quickly."

"Grandma, can you hear me?" said Paige as she placed the other hand on Elena's wrist.

Her actions naturally did not escape Hernan's eyes.

Was Paige trying to diagnose her grandparents' illness?

Hernan knew that she saved Killian before, but their grandparents' illness is even more serious...

Even famous doctors could do nothing about it...

Danica didn't notice her daughter's abnormal behavior. Danica put her hand on the edge of Elena's bed and said softly, "In the fire eighteen years ago, Paige was taken away under the cover of the thick smoke. Fortunately, after eighteen years, she returned to my side. You don't know how smart Paige is. She can manage the company at such a young age. She is not inferior to you when you were young!"

Danica smiled. She continued, "Our Lusk family all have business genes in our bones. Originally, that clothing company almost went bankrupt. I didn't expect Paige to bring it back to life after she took charge. She was supported by many employees."

Donald sat beside the bed. His nose was sour. "Dad, Danica is right. You should open your eyes and look at Paige. She is good-looking and sensible. She is good at doing business, playing the piano, and designing clothes... There is nothing in this world that she can't do! If you wake up and see her, you will be very happy!"

Donald didn't know if his father could hold on any longer and opened his eyes....

Donald's nose became even sourer, and he was choking back tears.

"Dad, don't worry. The whole doctor team is working hard. Grandpa and Grandma will definitely wake up." Hernan said, his eyes falling on Paige. "And Paige is here..."

When Patricia saw that everyone was praising Paige, she squeezed some tears out of unwillingness and suddenly knelt down beside Elena's bed.

"Grandma, when will you wake up and talk to me? I really miss the time when you carried me when I was a child. You would smile and praise me, saying that I was your most proud granddaughter. No matter how small the award or how trivial the praise got, you would be proud of me!"

When Patricia said this, she raised her face full of tears. "If all my progress and glory need your health in exchange, then I would rather achieve nothing in my life. As long as you can stay with me, smile and talk to me as you did when I was a child, I am willing to give up everything!"

Paige felt speechless.

Wouldn't her shouting and crying affect the patients' rest?

"Grandma, can you hear me? You don't even care about your favorite and most proud granddaughter? Even if I cry like this, you don't feel distressed? Woo... Grandma!"

Patricia put her hands on the bed and said in a tearful voice, "When I was a child, you would hold me and wipe my tears when I cried. You said that my tears were the most precious diamonds in the world. If someone got you would never forgive that person. But now, I'm crying for you. Don't you care about me?"

Paige didn't know what to say.

Did Patricia have to recall her childhood now?

"Patricia, grandma needs a quiet rest." Hernan reminded Patricia.

me to cry,

"I'm sorry, Hernan. As soon as I see grandparents suffering here, my heart hurts so much as if it is about to stop beating."

Donald's eyes were filled with tears when Patricia said this. Donald also felt sorry for the hardships his parents suffered. He didn't know when this would end.

Patricia sobbed and looked at her grandparents pitifully. "I was still looking forward to holding your hands like before and going for a walk with you. Didn't you always say that I was busy with my studies and didn't have time to see you? Now that I am on summer vacation, I have a lot of time to stay with you. As long as you wake up, I can do anything for you!"
