Chapter 207 Doctor of Traditional Medicine

“Paige, you saved your grandmother! You brought her back from the dead in just minutes! You are amazing!” Donald was so excited that he wanted to hold Paige.

Unexpectedly, Danica rushed to take Paige in her arms first. “It’s wonderful. Your grandmother is fine! We were so scared!”

She was afraid that something would happen to Elena...

But Danica didn’t expect Paige to be a brilliant doctor.

No wonder Killian always praised Paige for her excellent medical skills.

It was not that Killian favored her, but that Paige really lived up to the compliment!

Her medical skills were really superb!

The decisiveness, calmness, and wisdom Paige displayed when she saved the old. woman’s life just now were simply impressive!

The feeling of being loved, spoiled, and valued by her mother was something Paige had never experienced before.

“When your grandmother wakes up and finds out about this, she will be very happy!” Danica looked at Paige with appreciation, proud of having such a child.

While Donald was proud, he was also thinking about what Paige had been through in the Tate family all these years. If she had a carefree childhood, why did she acquire so many extraordinary skills?

And why was such a brilliant kid not favored by that family?

Thinking of this, Donald felt sorry for his daughter again. He felt that Paige had suffered a lot!

He secretly vowed to treat Paige much better and compensate her!

The doctors, nurses, and caretakers around were all shocked. From the words of Donald and Danica, it was not difficult to guess that the two patients in bed were not only Patricia’s grandparents but also this girl’s!

But didn’t Donald and Danica only have one daughter?

Then where did this girl come from?

It seemed that Donald and Danica doted on Paige even more than Patricia.

Then people turned to look at Patricia at the side and saw her jealous face.

Realizing that Paige’s identity was not simple and that she had indeed said something that offended her just now, the nurse at the side lowered her head and apologized, “I’m sorry for questioning you... I didn’t know!”

Paige’s medical skills were definitely above theirs!

The caretaker also said apologetically with her head down, “I was also too anxious and said something wrong... Please forgive me!”

She was ashamed of her and rashness.

When Elena had a fit just now, the caretaker thought it was Paige who caused it. Now that she thought about it, it was *to think that a girl would do such a thing to her grandmother.

“What happened when I went out just now? Why did Grandma suddenly have trouble breathing?” Patricia spoke up again. “I asked this not because I wanted to blame someone, but because I wanted to make things clear so that we can all prevent this from happening again. Just now, there were only Hernan and Paige in the ward. Hernan has always been steady. Paige, did you say something to Grandma that agitated her?”

Patricia deliberately blamed the incident on Paige.

But Hernan scolded in a low voice, “Didn’t Paige say it? Grandma was breathing with difficulty due to neurological reasons. This is because the brain hemorrhage has affected the respiratory center. No one agitated Grandma, and Paige didn’t do anything.”

Patricia was afraid that Hernan would see through her, so she pretended to mean well and nodded like she just understood.

“It seems light readings also help. At least at the critical , you can imitate what you have read about. Today must be your lucky day, Paige. I guess that the universe just wanted you to impress Grandpa and Grandma.”

Hernan heard the hidden meaning in Patricia’s words and asked coldly, “Do you consider ‘Medical Compendium’ and ‘Historical Records’ light readings?”

He thought, imitating? Lucky?

Why don’t you also save a life like that?

“I mean extracurricular books. and Dad usually only let me read books that help improve my grades. I don’t even have a chance to read those books.” Patricia took the opportunity to nestle in Danica’s arms. “*, I want to learn from Paige and read different books.”

The doctor on the side said respectfully, “Reading doesn’t give you the power to save people. Ms. Paige’s obviously far better a doctor than us. She did not save a life by just people. Ms. Paige’s obviously far better a imitating something she had read about.”

Patricia was secretly dissatisfied. Can you up? What does it have to do with you? she thought.

Carter did not pay attention to Patricia’s resentment. He bowed and said, “Miss, is there any way to help them recover as soon as possible?”

Paige smiled faintly. During the diagnosis, she had already figured out what illnesses her grandparents had.

“I know a doctor of traditional medicine. She is quite famous. She has medicine that can treat Grandma and Grandpa.”

Hearing Paige’s words, everyone present froze!

“Paige, you also know a famous doctor? And she can prescribe medicine to save your grandparents?”

Donald was shocked. Then he thought of the fact that Paige was a famous piano master in the world. Thus, it made sense that she had connections. It was not difficult for her to get to know a doctor of traditional medicine.

Danica was also surprised and happy. “So, your grandparents can be cured? Great!”

She did not expect that her daughter also had this connection. Paige just kept surprising Danica and Donald!

“Paige, is that doctor even better than Dr. Patton? Dr. Patton graduated from a top medical school. His family has been practicing medicine for three generations, and he couldn’t even cure our grandparents. Are you sure your friend can help?”

Patricia paused here and tried to cover up by explaining, “I mean, Grandpa and Grandma are suffering from very tricky illnesses. So many famous doctors and experts can do nothing about it, and you said your friend could cure them. What if... What if you believe her and really give her drugs to Grandpa and Grandma, but it turns out that she’s lying to you?”

Did Paige know how many snake-oil salesmen were out there swindling money?

But Paige’s tone was full of confidence. “She won’t be lying.”

Because the doctor was none other than herself!

How could Dr. Carter Patton hold a candle to Skylar Benson?

“I can also guarantee that as long as you continuously give them medicine, within a month, Grandpa and Grandma will be able to wake up.”

Donald and Danica were shocked. One month?

They had been unconscious for a long time, but Paige dared to guarantee that they would wake up within a month.

Then... That doctor must be very good!

At this time, Hernan looked at Paige a little inquisitively.

Even if Paige knew a famous doctor, how could she guarantee that their grandparents would wake up in a month?

How did she know that the doctor had medicine suitable for her grandparents’ conditions?

Looking at Paige’s confident look, Hernan wondered if the doctor she was talking about was herself.

In addition, the doctors and nurses at the side all admired her. Paige must be highly skilled!
