Chapter 21

The Auction Begins In the end, the entire hospital turned to ashes. Paige felt that someone might set the fire. Bob “I find out who set the fire and made you suffer in the Tate family, I will beat that guy’s a*s!” After chatting for a while, Paige checked the time. Anna should be arriving at the appointed place. Then Paige went downstairs. “M*m, I will go out for a while.” “Eh, OK..” Danica originally wanted to ask her daughter where she was going, who she was going to see, and what she planned to do, but Danica was afraid that her daughter would feel annoyed, so she could only smile and ask, “Do you need Ryker to drive you?” “M*m.” Patricia, who was at the side, could not help but interrupt, “I just told Ryker to take me to a place later. I have made an appointment with a friend.” Danica slightly frowned, “What about Victor?” “Victor is taking a nap. If he gets up now, I am afraid that he will be sleepy. That would be dangerous.” Patricia said this and looked at Paige with understanding. “Paige, if you have something urgent, I can call my friend to change the plan. So, Ryker can drive you.” “No need, I can drive.” However, her Rolls-Royce was smashed by the cargo car. It was still under maintenance. Paige thought about it and asked, “Are there any other cars at home?” Danica was surprised. “How can there be no cars at home? I’ll ask the driver to take you to the garage. Pick one you like!” Pick one she liked? This time, it was Paige who was surprised. Danica lightly touched the intercom system on the wall and said to the driver, “Ryker, come over here. Take Paige to the garage.” The entire garage had three floors! There were all kinds of top-class supercars, limited edition cars, high-class cars, and RVs. The colors were varied. “What does my family do for a living?” Paige was shocked by the luxury cars in front of her. “Ms. Tate, you don’t know?” The driver was stunned. He thought that everyone would recognize Donald at first sight. After all, who didn’t know the richest man in the country? “Mr. Lusk has always been the richest man in America.” Donald had been ranked first on the richest list in America for twelve years! “Since Mr. Lusk announced his retirement last year and the young master took over the Group, the young master became the richest man in the country.” No matter who the name of the richest man was, he was still a Lusk Paige remembered that Tyrell and Lindsey told her that her parents were both unemployed. This was what they called “unemployed.” After a while, a sports car was heard being driven out of the Lusk’s house and heading for the main road. In order to play low key, Paige drove the Bugatti Veyron to an underground garage nearby. Anna had been waiting there for a long time. When Paige pushed open the door and got out, Anna’s eyes were fixed on the car for three seconds, and then she asked in astonishment, “This is your car?” The car plate was 99999, a top-notch custom-made model of Bugatti Veyron. There was only one in the world. Although Anna knew that Paige had found her biological parents and was now living in L*rsen Villa in Chicago, she was still surprised as no ordinary rich family could own such an expensive car. Anna clutched her heart as if she had a heart attack. “What is your father’s surname?” “Lusk.” “Donald Lusk?” Anna widened her eyes in shock “You know him?” “Who doesn’t know the richest man in the country? You are so lucky!” Anna then commented, “Those fools from the Tate family, it’s too late for them to regret it now.” In a private manor on the outskirts of the city, it was brightly lit. This manor had a total of thirty-two entrances. If one looked down from the sky, it would look like the shape of a sun drawn by a child. Each car would enter a different entrance leading to a different garage. After parking the car, the visitors would take the exclusive elevator and enter a specific room. The bidders would not have a chance to meet other bidders during the whole process, even after the auction was over. Because of the high privacy, this place was safe, and every admission ticket was priceless. Anna was the most favored little daughter of the Elliott family. Of course, she had a way to get the tickets. She and Paige were already frequent guests here. After parking the car, they took the elevator and entered the third private room. There was wine and snacks in the private room. This was the first time Patricia had come to a place like this. If not for her best friend leading the way, she wouldn’t have known that this luxurious private manor was an underground auction house. “Olivia, how did you know such a place?” Patricia mentioned it to her best friend Olivia in the afternoon. She didn’t know what gift she should prepare for Killian, so Olivia suggested taking her here to take a look. My brother took me here a few times. There are all kinds of treasures here! In a while, you can see and buy something That Mr. Stowe would like. He must be very happy ” Olivia also came from a rich family She assumed that Killian must have seen many ordinary treasures, but the ones that appeared at this auction were all not available in the market “Why can’t I see anyone else?” Patricia was a little puzzled. “They are all in other boxes. There are a total of thirty-two boxes in this hall surrounding the stage in the middle. “But there is no host on the stage. It’s an intelligent auction. “Do you know why each box has a huge glass wall? It would be easier for us to see the treasures. “You can see the outside clearly from here, but nobody can see us.” Patricia couldn’t help but feel envious when she heard her best friend’s words. It would be great if her five brothers were willing to bring her here to see the world. In Room 1, Rhys stood next to Martin and said respectfully, “Mr. Stowe, the Heart Relief Grass will appear at the last moment as the finale of the auction.” “OK,” the man sitting on the sofa said in a low voice. He looked elegant and noble. He heard that the Heart Relief Grass had a miraculous effect on heart treatment. He wanted to get it so that his experts. could conduct some studies. “The auction begins.” The stage in the middle slowly opened up, and a treasure was seen rising slowly. The system’s voice automatically introduced the source and value of the treasure. The huge electronic panel magnified the shape of the treasure. Every detail of the treasure could be seen. That was a small bottle of Heart-Soothing Powder. It was said that a heart disease patient would feel his heart comfortable after taking it. Also, it could be used to make soup. When the patient was si*k, it could be put into the water to quickly relieve the pain. There would be no side effects if coupled with other medicine. During the introduction of the system, the Heart-Soothing Powder followed the track of the ground and moved to the glass wall of each box to let people observe it. “Paige, isn’t this the leftover you made while making the Heart Relief Pill?” “Yes.” Paige did not hide anything and said frankly, “This is called making the best use of everything.” Although the effect of this Heart Soothing Powder was not as good as the Heart Relief Pill, it still had some medicinal value.
