Chapter 214

Chapter 214 A Misunderstanding

The teachers from all the famous universities received the news early in the morning and rushed on their way without stopping. Indeed, they had not drunk any water until now.

They thanked Tyrell one after another and were about to enter the house.

“Abbigail, what are you still standing there for? Lead the way for the teachers,” Lindsey smiled and said enthusiastically.

When they heard the name “Abbigail”, everyone stopped in their tracks and looked at Lindsey suspiciously.

“Madam, may I ask if Abbigail is your daughter’s name?”

“Yes, her name is Abbigail...”

When they heard these words, everyone realized that they had found the wrong person!

It was all the fault of those teachers who had been fighting with each other just now. They didn't even figure out the identity of this girl!

They almost stepped into her house to drink coffee!

“Excuse me, isn’t this Paige’s home?” one of the old professors suddenly asked.

When they heard the name “Paige, Tyrell and Lindsey were stunned.

“We are looking for Paige. This is the exact address she filled in her documents.” The other recruitment teacher took out the personal information that Paige had registered at the school before and compared the door number outside the door. It was the same!

“Could it be that Paige carelessly filled in the wrong address?”

“Excuse me, may I ask if there is any neighbor child called Paige here?”

“It is estimated that this child was careless and filled in the wrong number!”

There were many villa houses here, and Paige probably lived in one of them!

“You... Are you looking for Paige?” Tyrell was stunned as if he was struck by lightning!

Lindsey subconsciously asked, “Is she that good?”

“Yes. She got the highest score in the exam!”

These words were like a bolt of lightning. The Tate family, including their several serv*nts, were all stunned!

Paige got the highest score?

Hadn’t Paige been a poor student in studying?

Did these teachers see the wrong name?

How could Paige be the best student?

“It seems that we have found the wrong person. Sorry.” The teachers saw the expressions of the Tate family, and apologized one after another, turning to leave.

Lindsey hurriedly stopped one of the old professors. “Sorry, may I ask if Abbigail can be admitted into your university with her score?”

The one who was stopped was a professor from the University of Chicago. He had felt that Abbigail’s name was very familiar just now, and now he finally remembered who this person was!

He pulled back his hand lightly, completely different from the enthusiastic state before.

“Your name is Abbigail?” He looked at Abbigail and confirmed again.

“Yes.” Although Abbigail was shocked by Paige’s results, Abbigail smiled and said politely, “I scored 1,320 points this year.”

“No.”

The old professor was about to leave when Abbigail asked, “Does the admission score of the University of Chicago become higher?”

The old professor looked at Abbigail again with some displeasure. “I heard that you won a ranking by plagiarism in a grand piano competition. Plagiarism can’t be tolerated in our university. Even if you get full marks, we will not accept a student like you!”

The teachers from other universities were stunned when they heard that. Abbigail looked gentle and polite, but she actually won a ranking by plagiarism?

Such a ****!

Abbigail’s face turned pale.

“Although our admission score this year is 1,300 points, we won’t accept students with bad behavior,” a teacher from another university spoke up.

“So will we.”

“Don’t enroll in our university. Even if you do, we won’t admit you. Our principal values the conduct of students han the score!”

mor

“Our principal is the same.”

Hearing these teachers from famous universities rejecting her one after another, Abbigail turned extremely pale, and she almost lost her balance!

Tyrell was stunned. It was only after they left that he realized what had happened.

When Lindsey saw that the s*rvant was still recording it, she shouted angrily, “Stop it! Isn’t it embarrassing enough?”

The neighbors in the surrounding villas were laughing at them, especially Leah, who had previously asked them to sign a contract with her. At this time, Leah even showed a look of gloating.

Lindsey’s face was burning as if she had been slapped dozens of times. She pulled Abbigail and scolded the other s*rvants in a low voice, ‘Just go in!’

Everyone quickly entered the house, closed the door, and even locked the door.

“How can Paige get the highest score? How is that possible?” Lindsey was about to go crazy, and she kept pacing around the living room. “She must have cheated! want to report her! It can’t be!”

Without waiting for the others to speak, Lindsey angrily rebuked, “It must be her. The matter of plagiarism must have been leaked by her. Otherwise, how could these teachers from famous universities know what happened that day? Don’t forget that the award ceremony was not public!”

When Lindsey said this, she wanted to strangle Paige to death!

“It was no secret though. I feel that it wasn't Paige who said it.” Tyrell sat on the sofa. His previous high-spirited demeanor was gone, replaced by humiliation and depression.

Abbigail was also sad. Tyrell still trusted that little sl*t so much until now. If Paige wasn’t the one who leaked it, who else could it be?

“How do you know that she didn’t say it? You are biased towards her!” Lindsey was furious. “You and your mother are the same. You are bewitched by that little b*stard Paige!”

“If it is Paige who revealed this to the professor of the University of Chicago, it means that the two of them know each other. But that professor clearly didn’t know Paige, and he mistakenly thought that Abbigail was the one he’s been looking for!”

Hearing this, everyone felt that it made sense...

“Could it be that Paige told him by phone calls? So the professor hasn’t seen her before?” Lindsey guessed.

“It doesn’t matter who leaked it out now!” Tyrell angrily corrected her. “What’s important is that Abbigail is rejected by those famous universities at the same time. What will the neighbors say? Will she still be able to apply to the top universities in the future? If she can’t, she is so far away from Davon. If Davon is attracted by other girls, what should Abbigail do?”

“That’s true.” Lindsey was silent as she thought of a countermeasure.

“Don’t blame everything on Paige. If you hadn’t been so ruthless in the beginning, then Paige would have been able to gain some respect for us this time!

“Also, if our relationship hadn’t been so tense, even if Abbigail copied Paige’s work, Paige would not have been so merciless! She wanted us to compensate her and wanted to cut ties with us!

“Also, she knew Rylan. Maybe she could help us build a good relationship with Pal Group!

“We can use Paige in so many things, but it has all been ruined by you!”
