Chapter 218

Chapter 218 Honor the Bet

"Hello, Paige. I am a teacher at Cornell University. We need a talented student like you. Will you come to our university to study? We can offer all the conditions proposed by the University of Pennsylvania. Moreover, we will give you a scholarship of 320 thousand dollars."

A scholarship of 320 thousand dollars was unprecedented. Everyone present was surprised.

A scholarship of 50 thousand dollars used to be the highest one.

Paige was different. She was the only one who got full marks in the last seven years. Seven years ago, Martin got full marks. Being smart, he graduated from high school when he was 15 and scored full marks.

After Martin, no one had gotten full marks for seven years.

Paige broke the record seven years later

"Sorry, I have no intention for the time being. Paige refused politely

The teacher from Cornell University felt regret. He could not help but ask, "May I know the reason? We can offer what Stanford University or the University of Chicago offers. Although our most famous professor has retired, we can ask him to teach you. In addition, if you want to go abroad to get another degree, all the expenses will be borne by us

What a good treatment!

Hearing that, Patricia was jealous. She never expected the teachers to offer such favorable conditions. Moreover, they were kind, as if they were trying to please Paige

The teachers seemed to be cautious in front of Paige.

"I have a university I like."

Although it was not exactly what Paige liked, she decided to choose that university.

"It must be the University of Chicago. Am I right?" The professor at the University of Chicago was confident and said happily, "Paige, as long as you come to our university, you can choose the professor you like. And the scholarship is not a problem."

Everyone was stunned by the professor's words. The condition was better than other universities. Not every university allowed Paige to choose professors, and there was a limit to the scholarship.

"If you like doing experiments, we can supply you with a laboratory"

Even the servants present couldn't help but open their mouths in surprise

The University of Chicago could supply a laboratory to a student.

They attached importance to students.

Otherwise, they wouldn't offer such conditions.

"Stanford University can also offer that. Besides a laboratory, you can use the piano room, research room, dancing room, and painting room at the university

People were shocked again. They had never seen famous universities competing for a student. And the conditions were getting more and more favorable.

"Sorry, I like the University of Illinois at Chicago."

"University of Illinois at Chicago?"

The teachers, parents, and servants were shocked.

The University of Illinois at Chicago was less famous than the University of Chicago and Stanford University Although it was good, it could not compare with the University of Chicago and Stanford University

Why didn't Paige choose the best university?

What was she thinking about?

When the teacher at the University of Illinois at Chicago heard that, he was excited. "Paige, our principal said we will offer you whatever other universities offer In addition, the principal asked me to tell you..."

Everyone followed the sound. They wondered what the principal wanted to tell Paige and why Paige liked the university

"Our principal said we had just purchased H30, the world-renowned medical research instrument. You must be interested in it."

The instrument was bought to attract Paige.

It cost 800 million dollars.

There were only two H30s in the world. One was at the Canada Research Institute, and the other was at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

The instrument could help to realize a qualitative leap and a quantitative change in medical study.

Paige smiled. The principal knew Paige's weakness well.

"Our principal said that he also bought such instruments as X1, T2P, and Y23. They are in the research rooms of our university, and you can use them at any time. In addition, our principal also offered another condition."

When everyone heard that, they wondered what the condition was. Paige seemed to be interested in the conditions offered by the University of Illinois at Chicago.

"You can choose to study in classrooms or do research privately. No one will interfere with you."

In other words, Paige could choose to go to school or not as she wished. Her attendance record would not be influenced

Every student hoped to be supplied with such good condition.

The other teachers thought the method of the University of Illinois at Chicago was not good. If a student didn't properly attend classes, what would he learn?

Paige might regress if she chose the University of Illinois at Chicago.

The conditions would ruin a talent.

"I chose the University of Illinois at Chicago." As soon as Paige said that, the other teachers felt disappointed and regretful. They left after sitting for a while.

The teacher at the University of Illinois at Chicago did not expect the principal to have the foresight to know Paige would choose their university. He was excited and energetic.

He kept chatting with Paige. When he left, he kept telling her not to write the wrong name of the university

After the teacher at the University of Illinois at Chicago left, Patricia's face was sulky. She did not expect Paige to be so popular. Moreover, she did not expect Paige to choose the University of Illinois at Chicago. Patricia believed there must be something wrong with Paige's mind.

Donald and Danica were about to praise their daughters, but Bonnie spoke first.

"Ms. Paige, I made a bet with Amily when we were free."

Bonnie's words drew Danica's attention. "What's that?"

Paige was also surprised and looked at Bonnie.

"Amily bet Ms. Patricia would get a higher score, and I bet Ms. Paige would. The would do all the housework today."

Danica said with a smile. "Bonnie, you win. Amily, you have to work hard today"

"My pleasure." Amily gritted her teeth secretly and stared at Bonnie.

Bonnie looked at Amily proudly and said, "Wait a moment, Ms. Paige. I will go and get something."

Everyone did not know what Bonnie was doing until she came over with a pair of shoes and bent down to help Paige put them on.

Paige was confused.

"Ms. Paige, someone said she would wipe your shoes if you got the highest marks."

When Bonnie said that, she looked at Amily with a gloating look, "The shoes are here now. Amily, help Ms. Paige put them on before you wipe them."

Amily did not expect Bonnie to say that. She had to wipe Paige's shoes in front of so many servants.

She felt embarrassed.
