

Ceo's Mysterious Fiancee by Piper Dunlap

Chapter 522

Chapter 522 Let Us Face It Together

As Jairo and his gang descended the spiral staircase, they immediately saw the two lovers kissing passionately.

It was a fiery and intense kiss that shattered Jairo's vulnerable heart.

Suddenly, it felt like the world didn't belong to them single people anymore, and they were being abused wherever they went.

Jairo was about to say something, but Rylee covered his mouth and led them down a different path.

Lamont deepened the kiss bit by bit, releasing all the unsaid words and yearning from over a year in this one moment.

The passionate kiss was like a storm, hitting her one after another. Yana felt like she was running out of breath, and only then did Lamont stop.

His misty eyes were still filled with love, and his handsome face looked even more attractive than before, although it was clear he had lost some weight. His face looked like smaller and it was unclear if it was due to his injury or because he had been worried about her. Overall, he looked a bit haggard.

Looking at the wounds on his body, Yana said with sadness, "Why are you so foolish? I already told you that I fell in love with someone else, why won't you let go?"

"In this life, I only want you, and no one else," Lamont said, looking directly into her eyes with a red-eyed gaze. "Promise me that you won't leave me again?"

"But," Yana's eyes dimmed as she spoke in a low voice. "You should have seen those two data packets..."

"I know," Lamont said firmly, gazing deeply into her eyes. "I know what kind of danger we're facing next, and I know your identity. But I don't care, and I'm not afraid. As long as you're by my side, I can handle anything."

Yana was puzzled. "With your conditions, you could find someone better than me."

Lamont held her face and said affectionately, "You're the best. I know exactly what kind of person

I'm looking for, and you're the most suitable and the one I like the most. I'm not interested in anyone else but you."

After he finished speaking, he lowered his head and kissed her.

Yana was kissed by him for a long time before saying, "You are so silly."

Lamont was obviously a top hacker and the third young master of the Lust family, but he wanted her, the successor of an organization with no parents and a history of wrongdoing.

Their worlds were obviously black and white, and they were not suitable for each other at all.

"You're the silly one. When we were dating for the seventh month, your toxicity flared up, but you didn't let me know. I was so stupid. I clearly noticed your abnormality, but I didn't think about it more deeply..."

At that time, he and Yana were on a date and often found her coming out of the bathroom with a pale face, but he didn't think much of it and believed Yana when she said she was feeling unwell during her period.

"That's because you trust me. You won't suspect every word I say, even if it's a lie."

Lamont looked into her eyes again and leaned in to kiss her. "I wasn't careful enough. From now on,

I'll pay more attention to you and won't let you bear these hardships alone again."

"Lamont, I don't want to burden you," Yana said truthfully. "This matter is too complex for us to handle... Besides, I don't want to involve people around you, like your sister."

Yana felt extremely guilty about Paige.

"At first, I mistook her for a spy sent by the organization and attacked her... Later, when the medicine men arrived, I asked her to leave, but she insisted on taking me with her... Several times, she was injured by the medicine men while trying to help me. Despite her own injuries, she didn't leave me behind, even though she could have escaped with her own skills."

Yana's eyes grew moist. "She was so badly hurt, but she still carried me back... Her kindness is too much for me to bear."

Despite having never met before, they were brought together by Lamont.

"Then, become her sister-in-law and treat her well for the rest of our lives," Lamont said tenderly, touching Yana's face. "Paige also likes you very much. Although she appears cold on the surface and doesn't talk much, she takes you seriously in her heart."

Lamont paused for a moment and continued, "Once you get to know her better, you'll discover that she's really kind, has many good qualities, and is easy to get along with."

Yana could tell that Lamont was genuinely pleased with his younger sister Patricia, "I've never heard you praise Patricia like that."

Lamont spoke softly, "Paige has assured us that she and her fiancé will do everything in their power to help resolve this issue. So, let us face it together as a family. No matter what happens, I will not let go of your hand."

Yana was touched, "Paige said she has a big chance of curing my poison."

"She also made the same promise to your brother. I have complete confidence in her medical skills," Lamont smiled and stated with conviction, "There is no poison in this world that she cannot cure. After all, she is the miracle doctor Skylar Benson..."

Yana's eyes widened in surprise. "She's Skylar Benson?"

The legendary master healer who never showed himself?

"Yes," Lamont affirmed.

Yana was completely stunned. She and her brother had searched for a miracle doctor for so long, only to find out that it was not an old gentleman, but a young and beautiful girl who was only seventeen or eighteen years old.

"That's why I believe her when she says she can cure me," Lamont had complete trust in his sister's abilities.

Yana could hardly believe her luck. Not only had she reunited with Lamont, but she had also the genius doctor Skylar Benson to cure her of her poison...

It seemed that the bond between her and Lamont was still unbreakable and ran deep.

"Paige mentioned that the poison in your body is quite troublesome, but it's not incurable. She needs to draw some blood for research purposes. When she comes back to draw your blood, I'll ask her to be gentle."

Yana laughed. "Drawing blood is nothing to me. It feels like being bitten by a mosquito, and it doesn't hurt at all."

After going through so much, she was not afraid of this small needle.

"It should be gentle," Lamont caressed her hand gently and said, "Nevertheless, we should still be mentally prepared. The poison requires some time to recover."

"I've already survived for a year, so I don't mind waiting for a few more months. I'll tell Paige to treat it confidently. I trust her," Yana said with confidence.

Lamont looked at her tenderly and said, "Let me take you upstairs to change into clean clothes. We're flying back to China soon."

The words "flying back to China" reminded Yana of her brother, Nate.

Oh no!

She thought she was going to die this time and asked her brother to take a picture of Lamont's recent situation, hoping to see him one more time before she died.

"I need to make a call," Yana said, looking for her phone.

"Are you calling your brother?" Lamont asked gently. "Paige has already explained the situation to him. He's waiting for us in China and will meet us tomorrow."

Yana was surprised and embarrassed at the same time. Did Lamont know her dying wish, which was to see him one more time?
