Chapter 545

Chapter 545 Jack Hanged Up

"You're more talented than her, but your practice time isn't as long as hers." Paige honestly replied, "If you practice more in the future, there's a high chance that you will surpass her."

"Then I will definitely practice more and strive to take a big step forward."

The short-haired girl didn't expect to be recognized by Paige. She had a secret motivation to surpass Patricia. She didn't even dare to think about it before!

"Paige, what do you think of the performance that I played the saxophone just now?"

"How's my piano performance?"

"The flute show is okay?"

Many people gathered around Paige, hoping to get her evaluation and recognition.

On the other side.

Patricia stared at Paige's silhouette for a long time. Even when the crowd had dispersed, she was still rooted to the spot in disbelief.

Ever since Paige was a child, Carroll Schultz had been teaching her for more than ten years...

It should be noted that the famous chess Master Quinn, Lane Gold, had only received a month of guidance from Carroll Schultz...

What ability did Paige have to get close to Carroll Schultz and win his favor...

It was not difficult to tell that Carroll Schultz had come here to block Paige way just to play chess with her.

According to Carroll Schultz, Paige didn't answer his calls or reply to his Line messages in private...

How could Paige be so arrogant?

But when Patricia thought about it carefully, Paige seemed to have always been so arrogant, so superior, as if she had been standing in the clouds all the time and disdained to fall into the mortal world...

At this moment, a few girls ran over to pull Patricia.

"What are you thinking about, Patricia? You're so focused."

"You played the violin so well just now. I think there's something wrong with the judge's ears. You should have been scored higher than Kailyn."

"That's right. I think Kailyn is not as good as you at playing the violin. She plays it so badly."

"I don't think either."

Patricia knew that her best friends were comforting her, and she felt a little better. She smiled and said, "It doesn't matter. Kailyn is also a member of the Lusk family. If she wins, the Lusk family will share the glory. I am also proud of her."

"You're so broad-minded, Patricia."

"This must be the education of the daughters of rich and powerful families. We have to learn more from you in the future."

"Oh, by the way, Patricia, you promised us the concert tickets today..."

Several people looked at Patricia with expectation.

Patricia smiled faintly. "I'll call Jack right now."

"That's great! I knew Patricia would treat us like real sisters."

"You're so nice, Patricia. Every time I can't get a concert ticket, you will help me..."

"I'm so envious that you have a star brother, who is top-notch in the entertainment industry and so handsome..."

"Wow, Patricia, your family is so good-looking, especially you..."

Everyone praised Patricia.

Patricia dialed Jack in front of them. The people around her did not forget to say that they envied her for she had the cell phone number of a big star. Patricia, you are so happy...

The call was quickly answered.

"Jack, can you give me a few tickets for your concert?" Patricia said, "Here's the thing. My best friends like you very much and want to go to your concert, but they can't get tickets. You are too popular..."

Afraid that Jack would not agree, Patricia added, "They have begged me several times. It's not good for me to refuse, but I don't want to make things difficult for you..."

Jack felt sorry and said. "I've just given the tickets to others, Patricia. How about this? I will leave you a few more tickets next time."

"You don't have tickets now?" As soon as Patricia finished speaking, she felt embarrassed...

Patricia's friends looked at her pleadingly, as if they wanted her to plead with Jack again...

"I have more than a dozen tickets in his hand, but I promised my agent that I would give seven or eight tickets to his family and friends. The agent will take the rest to thank a few people who can help me..."

Although the tickets were free, their seats were not the best...

The best had already been given to Paige and Martin...

"Please say sorry to your friends for me. I will leave a few more for you next time." As soon as Jack finished speaking, he heard someone calling him, "I'm going to rehearse. Let's talk later."

"Hey, Jack..." Patricia still wanted to say something, but Jack had already hung up the phone.

Looking at the expectant and enthusiastic gazes around her, Patricia explained apologetically, "Jack said that he did have more than a dozen tickets, but he promised his agent that he would leave seven or eight tickets for his family and friends, and the rest have been sent out, so he have no tickets now."

"Not a single one?"

"But his first stop of the concert is in Chicago. I really want to go and have a look!"

" Patricia, can you ask Jack to make an exception and secretly let us in?"

It was common for celebrities to do this.

"Please, Patricia..." Everyone began to plead with her again.

Patricia knew that Jack was a man of principle. He would not allow anyone to walk around in the corridor, let alone hide behind the scenes to watch a concert...

Patricia knew this a long time ago.

"Jack asked me to apologize to you on the phone just now. He said that he would leave a few more for you next time. I'm really sorry. I called him too late."

The others felt a little regretful and unwilling. They always felt that it was all because of Patricia.

Patricia could have called Jack to throw a tantrum and asked the staff to let them in. It was such a simple thing, but she was unwilling to help.

Since Patricia was unwilling to help, why did she agree to help them at the beginning?

Didn't Patricia just want to show off that she had a celebrity brother?

"I don't want concert tickets, Patricia. You know, I've always admired Hernan. I heard that he's attending a famous charity party in Chicago next Monday. He was asked to bring a female companion with him. Can you recommend me to him as his female companion?"

A short-haired girl asked.

Perhaps afraid that Patricia would reject her, the short-haired girl added, " Patricia, Jack's concert ticket is very popular. It's very difficult to keep one more. I understand this, but your Hernan has always been alone and has no one he likes. Help me call and ask if he has chosen a female companion. If not, recommend me..."

"Please help her, Patricia. If she is lucky enough to become your sister-in-law, she will definitely ask Hernan to give you more pocket money in the future."

"What pocket money? He would give Patricia shares."

The short-haired girl hurriedly expressed her loyalty. "As long as I am the wife of Hernan, I am willing to give you all the shares that Hernan gave me..."

Although Patricia was a little speechless when she heard what they said, the feeling of being begged urged her to pick up her phone.

Soon, Patricia dialed Hernan Lusk.
