Chapter 556

Chapter 556 Write a Word on the Back

She was no longer in the mood to argue with Paige. Feeling disgusted, she turned around and ran away in anger.

At this moment, her friends were waiting for her at the bathroom door, a little confused. Patricia seemed to know the top scorer, Paige Lusk. The two of them even seemed to be having a conflict...

They thought, "Is it because there was a conflict between the two sides in the backstage today?"

"The smell on my body is so strong, and no one reminded me!" Patricia was so angry that she passed them and went into the bathroom to wash up.

Her friends covered their noses and said, "We don't smell anything... Did the top scorer say that you stink? Don't listen to her nonsense... You don't...stink at all..."

Although they said so, they still kept a distance from her and only dared to stand at the door and wait.

After leaving the University of Chicago, Paige took a taxi and went straight to Lorham Mountain.

Leana was still in shock, and she always felt that someone was following her. She quickly returned to the dormitory and recalled that when she was hugged by Paige just now, she seemed to have written a word on her back with her fingertips.

At that time, she was so scared and nervous that she was in a daze. She had no idea what Paige wrote on her back.

At this moment, she tried her best to calm herself down. She took out a pen and paper and recalled the strokes that Paige had written. After trying it many times on the paper, she was shocked to find that it was actually the word "Martin"!

She thought to herself, ' Does Paige want me to tell Martin about this?

"That's right, Martin is extremely powerful. There is nothing in this world that he can't solve. I have seen Martin before, but I don't have his contact information..."

'What should I do?"

She was so anxious that she could only search for the company's phone number on the Internet and then call them.

Leana listened to the nonsense and finally heard it say, "Press zero for operator service."

She pressed the "Zero" button in a hurry and waited with bated breath.

Soon, a sweet voice came from the other end of the line.

"Hello, this is the front desk of the Stowe Group. Is there anything I can help you with?"

"Hello, I have an appointment with your president. My name is Paige.

Please answer the phone for me..." Leana knew that if she told the receptionist her real name, the receptionist would definitely ignore her.

Not to mention the receptionist, even if she really reported it to Martin, he probably wouldn't remember who she was.

"Excuse me, our group has not opened the phone appointment service yet. May I ask which business partner is speaking and when you have an appointment with our president?"

"In short, you're right to ask your president to answer the phone. It's an urgent matter. If it's delayed, you'll definitely be fired! I'm not trying to scare you!"

"Did you just say that your name is Paige?"

"Yes."

"Please wait for a moment. I'll confirm it for you."

Fortunately, the receptionist didn't make things difficult for her. Leana secretly breathed a sigh of relief and couldn't wait to wait for the other party to answer the phone.

At this time, Martin was sitting at the conference table, listening to the finance minister report on this month's financial situation.

Rhys received a call from the receptionist and whispered to Martin, "Ms. Paige called you and said she had an appointment with you. It's an emergency."

Rhys also felt that the phone was unreliable, because Ms. Paige would never say the word "emergency"...

What's more, she had the personal contact information of Martin. Why did she have to contact him through the company's number?

It's likely that this person isn't Ms. Paige, but using her name.

But how did she know about the relationship between Ms. Paige and Mr. Stowe?

Hearing that it was "Paige", Martin still raised his hand to signal for the reporting to pause. He took the phone handed over by Rhys.

'Hello, is that Mr. Stowe? I'm Leana Barker, a good friend of Paige. She's in trouble..." Leana hurriedly told him what had happened.

"Okay, got it." After hanging up the phone, Martin immediately got up and left, exuding a powerful aura.

The people in the conference room didn't know what had happened. They looked at each other in dismay until Rhys said, "That's all for today. The meeting is over."

Seeing that Rhys was about to leave, the finance minister hurriedly grabbed his hand and asked in a low voice, "Rhys, did I say something wrong just now? The profit this month is not as high as last month because Mr. Stowe has invested in several other places in the company, and..."

'Mr. Stowe has something urgent to deal with. Don't be nervous."

Hearing what Rhys said, the finance minister breathed a sigh of relief. Just now, he thought it was his data or way of reporting that made Mr. Stowe dissatisfied.

Martin had sent a black hair clip to Paige to locate her whereabouts. At this moment, he opened the app and discovered that she was approaching Lorham Mountain.

Just as Leana had said, the other party had asked her to go to the top of Lorham Mountain alone, probably to set up an ambush there.

Although he was very worried about Paige's safety, he thought that he was the first person that came to her mind when she was in danger.

He couldn't help feeling warm in his heart and sped up to get there.

As soon as Paige arrived at the top of Lorham Mountain, countless bullets came at her. She quickly dodged and looked up to find that there was an ambush around her.

Some were hiding in trees, some were hiding behind stones, and a large group of masked people were standing in a row in front of her.

In order to catch her, the other party dispatched a lot of people.

The place that Paige was standing on was an open space without anything to block it. It was equivalent to a living target that could be shot at any moment.

But she still looked up and asked coldly, "Where's my friend?"

"You'd better care about yourself."

The voice of the masked man, who was the leader, had been processed by a voice-changing device and was as cold as a machine.

The other party threw out a few more smoke bombs. As soon as Paige saw the purple smoke, she knew that it was poisonous. She covered her nose with her hand and quickly retreated to the side. Countless bullets passed through the smoke and did not hit her.

When the smoke dissipated, everyone found that the girl had disappeared. They were looking for her everywhere, but they didn't expect that Paige had already sneaked behind them, knocked them out as fast as she could, robbed their weapons, and held one of them hostage.

'Where is my friend?" Paige asked coldly.

"You're agile." The leader of the masked men laughed and shot the man who was held hostage.

Paige didn't expect that he would be so cruel as to hurt his own people...

' Don't worry, your friend will wait for you in hell." The masked man smiled eerily. "If you know what's good for you, come back with us. Otherwise, your friend will die in pain."
