

Chapter 557 Falling into the Lake

At this moment, there was a click in the sky.

Everyone looked in the direction of the sound and saw more than a dozen helicopters appearing in the sky. The leader of the masked men's eyes turned cold. "How dare you ask for reinforcements?"

Paige glanced up at the sky. She didn't expect Martin to be so fast. It was not long before she was here that he arrived.

At this moment, Martin was searching for the location of Paige. He had his subordinates avoid the red dot and lock onto the others before throwing down a silencer.

The silencers were thrown down one after another, directly blasting people to pieces.

"It seems that your reinforcements don't take your life and death seriously." The leader of the masked men sneered. Do they want to send you to hell with such an explosion method?"

"You're quite nosy." Paige swiftly made her move, intending to capture the masked man.

The masked man quickly fought back.

On the plane, when Martin saw the red dot moving, he immediately ordered, "Keep away from this area."

He knew that Paige should want to capture someone.

He had to help her.

"Descend."

"There are still many people down there, Boss. If you go down now..." Before Rhys could finish his words, he felt the warning eyes of his Boss, and he hurriedly asked someone to land urgently.

After the two of them exchanged a few blows, the masked man sneered, "There aren't many that can take three of my moves. If you're willing to work for my organization, you will definitely be able to stand out in the future."

"I don't care." Paige attacked again, hitting him directly on the shoulder.

The helicopter landed on the ground, stirring up a huge wind.

Once again, Paige hit the other party's abdomen, and the other party took two steps back and took out his phone. It was as if he wanted to instruct his men to kill the hostage.

Just when Paige was about to snatch the phone, it was kicked into the air. Just when the two of them were about to snatch it, they never expected that it would fall into the hands of another person.

Paige looked up and saw that it was Martin. He caught the phone and pulled her behind him.

The masked man looked up at the uninvited guest in front of him. "It's you again."

He thought, "Can these two be a couple?"

"They looked like a perfect match."

"But doesn't this girl belong to the Hernan of the Flame Gang?"

"Why is the Hernan of the Microvay Gang always there to help her when she was in danger?"

Paige and Martin attacked at the same time, quickly capturing him and knocking him out.

"You're not hurt?" Martin's gaze fell on Paige and he rubbed her hair.

"It's okay. Give me the phone."

She had to find the place where Bess and Molly were now.

The masked man's phone was encrypted. After Paige cracked it, she disguised herself as him and sent it to his men. "Take a picture. That girl doesn't believe that her friend is safe."

His men soon sent him a photo. It was taken by a lake. Bess and Molly were tied up with ropes, and a few big stones were tied to the other end of the rope. It seemed that they could be pushed into the lake at anytime.

Bring them here," ordered Paige.

The person on the other end of the line said, "Tell me the secret code."

"The secret code?"

A few questions popped up in Paige's mind. She checked the chat history, but there was no secret code. Could it be that they had privately agreed on it?

"Please give me the secret code." The other party sent another message.

Paige guessed that the other party must have noticed something and showed the photo to Martin. "Can you find out where it is?"

"Let me take a look." Martin took the phone and found that the photo was taken by a lake. There were no other useful clues around except for a pink camellia in the camera.

He took out the app developed by his group, locked the location in Chicago for the time being, and searched for similar places. Soon, several places appeared on the list.

"These two places are far away. It will take at least two hours to get to the destination from the University of Chicago, so let's exclude them first." Paige analyzed. "Among the remaining three places, two have camellias."

Which one will Bess and Molly be?"

"It's hard to say."

"Let's get on the plane first." Martin took her hand and left the masked man for Rhys to deal with.

On the other side.

His men didn't get the secret code from the masked man for a long time. He suspected that the masked man was in danger, so he decided to ask someone to push Bess and Molly to the lake as they had agreed.

Both of them were tied up by ropes and dragged by rocks. Every step they took was very difficult, and they kept falling.

Molly said in a tearful voice, "Sirs, we have no grudge against each other. You tied us up here, tied up the stones, and pushed us to the lake. What do you want? If you only want money, I can call my family to ask for ransom right away."

Bess was also a little scared. "Even if we die, at least let us die knowing."

"How did we offend you? Or what do you want? At least tell us clearly..."

The masked men ignored them. Instead, they grabbed the fallen women and pushed them forward again.

"It hurts..." Molly fell to the ground again, and her knee was cut by a stone. Another masked man stepped forward and pulled her up forcefully.

Although Molly's hands and feet were tied, her fingers still subconsciously grabbed the clothes of the masked man. "Please do us a favor. At least tell us the truth before we die and let us die in peace."

"Did someone ask you to do this? Who is that person? We are all going to die, so we can't hold you accountable. Just tell us."

No matter how hard Bess and Molly tried to persuade him, he didn't say a word.

Molly didn't want to move forward, but she was dragged to the lakeside.

She struggled and said, "Let me go..."

Bess stepped forward and knocked away the masked man next to her.

"Molly, don't be afraid."

"Bess, I don't want to die..." As Molly was crying, she suddenly heard a click in the sky.

The sound startled several masked men. They all looked up and found that it was a helicopter passing by or a rescuer.

The system on the helicopter quickly locked onto the place where there were people below and found that there were seven or eight spots in the southwest of the lake, which represented seven or eight people.

"Could it be that someone has come to save us?" At this time, Molly couldn't care so much. She shouted at the top of her voice, "Help! Help us!"

Her voice was covered by the clicking sound, but it reminded the masked men that there was no time to lose.

Seeing that the helicopter was about to land, they couldn't help covering their eyes with their hands.

The wind was too strong, and the sound was very loud.

One of the masked men picked up the stone and was about to throw Molly into the lake.

"No." Bess hurriedly got up and pushed the masked man away.

The masked man was a little angry and punched her in the face. Seeing this, Molly was so angry that she knocked him away. "How dare you hit my friend? I'll fight you to the death!"

Seeing that the two girls were getting more and more restless, the masked men directly threw the stones into the lake.

Molly and Bess were instantly brought into the lake by the stone.