

CEO's Mysterious Fiancee

CEO's Mysterious Fiancée By Piper Dunlap Chapter 7

• • •

Chapter 7

Martin Appears Tim, who had remained silent for a long time, said, "I'll go and check it out. Let's see how capable the girl is." As Tim left the ward, the other doctors followed him. "Professor Swift, you can't just watch. We have to figure a solution out before Mr. Stowe comes over." Denise ordered the nurse beside her, "Go and turn on the monitoring in the operating room. We need to record the evidence. At the same time, I want to take a good look at how the girl embarrasses herself.” The news that a high school student in her teens was about to have a difficult surgery spread over the hospital soon.

The other doctors gathered outside of the operating room after they heard the news. Tim was at a loss about what to do.

How could a girl have a solution? Paige changed into asepsis clothes and was about to enter the operating room. Just then, Denise appeared and said, “Listen, the patient suffered a rupture of the pericardium in the previous surgery. His heart is situated immediately behind the sternum. You have to pay close attention to it, or you will break his heart right after you open his chest. By then, you will regret getting involved in the matter.” Paige raised her eyebrows and cast a glance at Denise, “I won’t make such a mistake like you. “How dare you! Alright, show me what you can do.” Denise was furious. She turned around and walked into the observation room. The observation room was filled with doctors. They were shocked when they saw a girl entering the operating room. “Professor Swift, where did she come from? How could you let her f*ol around like this?” “How old is she? It looks like she hasn’t even graduated from high school yet. The one lying on the bed is the grandfather of Mr. Stowe...” “What if something bad happens? Mr. Stowe won’t let us off easily.” “The girl loves to push herself forward, and Dr. Williamson is willing to take responsibility. What are you worried about?" Denise said with her arms crossed. She looked at the girl through a glass wall mockingly. Paige put on a medical mask. One could tell that she was composed based on her clear and charming eyes. It seemed that she was indeed an experienced surgeon. "Adjust the patient's position." "Apply anesthesia." "Skin disinfection." "Knife." Paige ordered Colin in a calm voice. The doctors in the observation room were surprised. "Does she know medicine?" "Her steps are correct..." "Can she save the patient?" Denise sneered, "I guess she learned those from TV. You'd better not fix your hope on her." She didn't believe that Paige knew how to operate at all. Those who had a glimmer of hope for Paige's medical skills opened their eyes wide when Paige picked up the knife and was about to start the surgery. "What's wrong with her? It's critical surgery. Why does she use her left hand? Is she left-handed?" "Can she use the knife with her left hand as steady as her right one?" "I don't know if she is right-handed or not. She must have gone crazy if she dared to do surgery with her left hand deliberately." "She doesn't take the surgery seriously at all." "She probably doesn't know how to do the surgery. Professor Swift, how can you believe such a girl? She is going to scr*w the surgery up." It was the first time those doctors had seen someone completing such an important surgery with their left hand. Colin was also surprised when Paige held a knife with her left hand. He remembered that she was right-handed. Was her right hand injured? Was that why she used her left hand? Since Killian had undergone heart valve replacements many times, the structure of her heart had long been different from that of ordinary people. Paige opened Killian's chest without hesitation. Everyone in the observation was shocked. "She is just a little girl, isn't she? I'm sure that even those experienced old doctors won't have the courage and confidence she does. She is much calmer than I thought. It's amazing." "Her skills seem to be excellent." "She is good at using knives." Denise was stunned and murmured, "How is it possible..."

She wondered if she underestimated Paige. Obviously, Paige was not a novice at all. When Paige opened Killian's chest, she noticed that his heart was badly injured and the blood vessels were displaced. It was not easy to distinguish those vessels. What was more, Killian's heart was extremely close to the sternum due to the lack of protection. Get Re Colin took a look and knew that Killian was in terrible condition. He couldn't help worrying about Paige. Surprisingly, the latter was calm and didn't make any mistakes. "Zoom in and show me the details." Tim was shocked and could not help but wonder what she would do later. Paige separated the sticky connection between Killian's heart and the back of the sternum with a serious expression. It was the most difficult part of the surgery. As Killian's condition was bad, it would take at least a few hours for an experienced doctor to finish the part. However, half an hour was enough for Paige. She lowered her head and operated on Killian with her bright eyes full of confidence. All the doctors held their breath as they watched Paige do the surgery carefully. It was critical. If she hurt Killian's heart or blood vessels by accident, Killian would d*e immediately. Just then, a group of people appeared. Although the man in the lead was only about twenty years old, he looked commanding and powerful. He had exquisite facial features, especially sharp eyebrows, and a handsome nose. He looked extraordinarily heroic, cold, and noble. As soon as the doctors saw him, they stepped aside one after another. They said with their voices full of fear and awe, "Mr. Stowe, you're here?" Behind Martin were about eight cardiac experts. All of them were the best in the industry. Apart from Martin, no one else could call these experts over in such a short period. Tim bowed to Martin and said respectfully, "Mr. Stowe, your grandfather's condition has worsened again. Even though we have coped with his pneumonia, there are symptoms of heart decay. During the examination today, we found that he suffers from several other diseases..." "Who is she?" Martin's cold gaze fell on the surgeon in the operating room. Since she wore a surgical mask, only her eyes could be seen. However, it was not difficult to tell that she was in her teens. “She is...” Tim followed his gaze and hesitated. His heart thumped non-stop. He didn’t dare to tell the truth. Martin probably would tear him apart. Rhys Jones, the assistant to Martin, said in anger, “You can’t hire such a young doctor. On the way here, I heard that a high school student wanted to operate on the grandfather of Mr. Stowe. Is she the one? I didn’t know the doctors in Farwen Hospital were this irresponsible before. Do you know who she is? Do you know about her ability? It turns out that as long as one is brave enough, he or she can be a surgeon here. How dare you!” “Mr. Jones, you are mistaken.” Tim was so scared that his legs went weak. He didn't know how to explain for a while. The other doctors in the observation room were also scared out of their wits.

• • •