Chapter 192 I Don't Believe You

Rachel gripped the phone tighter as she had a vague feeling that it had something to do with Abby. Suddenly, the door opened from the outside. After hanging up the phone, Victor hesitated for a while before opening the door. He had planned to quickly look in on Rachel, but when he opened the door, he was surprised to see her standing at the door. When Victor looked into her eyes, he was a bit flustered. 'How long has she been standing there?

Did she hear me talking on the phone?' "Why are..." "Where is Abby?" Rachel interrupted him. She sounded worried. As much as she wanted to know that Abby was safe, she observed the agitated expression that flickered through Victor's face, and she understood. "Don't forget the agreement we have, Rachel." Victor frowned slightly. "Why do you think I will tell you where she is?" "Why? Did something happen to her?" Rachel ignored his question and continued to ask about Abby. "Is she okay?" Victor's eyes met hers.

Ivan and Lukas rushed to the hospital hurriedly. Once they arrived, they could see that Victor was standing just outside the operating room, with his eyes fixed on the closed door. The surgery was currently underway and the red indicator light just so happened to cast a rosy hue on his face. The two men walked up to Victor. When they saw that his clothes were soaked with blood, they both had shocked expressions on their faces.

The blood on Victor's clothes had yet to dry. One could only imagine the amount of blood she had lost during that time. "You guys are finally here." Victor's Adam's apple bobbed up and down.

"Lukas, head back and pack some of her clothes." "Alright, I'll go back and pack some of her stuff now." Lukas was worried for Victor since he didn't look all that well. He wanted to say something to Victor, but he didn't know where to start so he just nodded and agreed to whatever he said. Then, Lukas turned around and made his way out of the hospital in a hurry. He was heading back to Sue Garden.

"Ivan."

He couldn't get rid of the heavy sadness in his heart. Seeing the look on his face, Rachel continued in a calm tone, "The baby is gone now. Didn't you want me to leave a long time ago? As you wish, I won't appear in front of you again. Just let me go." Her words carved into Victor's heart so much so that even his voice began to tremble.

Looking at the resoluteness and peace on Rachel's face, he was completely flustered. "Rachel, just ask for something else. We are all sad about the baby. But we don't have to do this. We can still have another..." However, Rachel interrupted him, the warmth in her eyes replaced by bleakness.

She said calmly, "No, we can't." Victor clenched his fists. The urge to keep her beside him forever was stronger than ever. But he knew in his mind that it was close to impossible.

Chapter 196 The Note

An hour later Standing next to her bedside, Victor looked down at Rachel with mixed emotions on his face. Victor was feeling very nervous ever since he got the call from the bodyguard. For the past three days, he barely slept a wink. During the daytime, he stayed in the company and, at night, he would go to the hospital. He would usually just spend his nights sitting quietly in his car and look at Rachel's ward from the parking lot.

He would watch the lights in the ward turn on at night and off in the mornings. Every thirty minutes, the doctor would report back to him her condition so he knew right away what she was eating and that she had vomited in the past three days. He knew all about her fitful sleep and that she had lost five pounds in the last three days.

He wanted to charge up those stairs to go up and see her several times, but every time he made the move to go up to see her, he would stop himself. He knew very well that she was right. He no longer had any valid reason to make her stay with him now.

"The guard told me you wanted to see me." Victor was the first to break the silence between them. "I want to see her," Rachel said and lifted her head to look at him. They both knew right away who she was referring to. "I wasn't there for her when she died.

"Have the doctor and nurse accompany me. I can also take care of myself." Rachel pursed her lips. "If you're scared that I'll take this opportunity to run away, you can join me, or send more men to watch my every move. Besides, even if I wanted to get away, I can't in this state, right?" She chuckled bitterly.

Chapter 197 Are You In Love

Rachel and Andy walked along the shore. Andy looked at Rachel’s thin figure and had a lot of questions, but he was unsure where to begin. He guessed that something must have happened to Abby, but he didn’t expect her to be dead. Rachel suddenly stopped and faced the sea. She closed her eyes and let the salty, cool breeze caress her upturned face and blew her long hair around her. “Let her rest here. She can see the sun rising from the sea here.

I think she will like it,” said Rachel She opened the urn and gently scattered Abby’s ashes into the water. Andy couldn’t believe it yet. His voice was hoarse as he asked, “Miss Bennet, what happened? How did Abby...” He couldn’t complete his sentence, and his eyes welled up with tears. Andy caught a glimpse of the cars parked by the side of the highway. He said through gritted teeth, "It's Victor, right? He's the one who killed Abby!"

If not, how could Abby..." Rachel continued to scatter the ashes and looked at the swirling water without saying anything. Her silence made Andy realize that Abby's death had something to do with Victor. He clenched his hands and turned around to leave. "Andy." Rachel stopped him with worry in her eyes. "What are you planning on doing?" "I want to confront him! I want to know! I want an explanation!" Anger made Andy lose his mind.

He had known Abby very well. Every time he saw her, she always had a smile on her face. Abby was always around Rachel, taking care of her. And now Abby was dead! 'Could Victor kill someone without needing a reason or punishment?' "Then? Then what will you do? You're in no position to fight him.

Also, there's a possibility that you might lose your life too." Rachel spoke calmly. "I..." Andy opened his mouth to speak but couldn't. 'Yes. What could I do? I can't do anything. According to Victor, I'm no one. He can easily kill me as if he's crushing an ant. Victor was the most powerful man in this city.'

Chapter 199

Captivation Want Nothing But You Chapter 199 by Adolf Dunne

It was already late at night, the surroundings were already quiet, and some people were already fast asleep in their homes. However, the light on the 32nd floor of the Sullivan Group building was still on. "Hey. Are you planning to sleep here tonight?" Carson yawned as he raised his head and looked at Victor who was still busy working. After glancing at Carson, Victor signed his name on a document and said, "No one said that you should stay here. You can go first if you want."

When Carson looked at the screen of his computer, he saw his own reflection and noticed that there were dark circles around his eyes. He hadn't slept properly the past couple of days.

He really wanted to leave and have some rest, but he just couldn't leave Victor, who seemed to have no intention to stop working. Thump! Carson stood up, walked towards Victor's desk and quickly closed the folder that Victor was working on. Then, he threw it aside to keep it away.

"Dude, listen to me. I get it. You have lots of work to do. But you also need to get some sleep. You're not a robot that can go on without resting." Victor didn't say anything and just looked at Carson before shifting his gaze towards the folder. Carson sighed heavily. He had been friends with Victor for years now, so he could somehow tell what was going on in his head. He knew what had happened to Abby and Rachel. "Vic, are you going to hide from Rachel forever?"

Carson's tone became extremely serious. Victor's hand stopped moving, and the ink from the pen left a distinct dot on the paper. "You are the CEO of Sullivan Group. Since when did you become a coward? All you need to do is go to her and hand over the invitation. Then, ask her to go on the cruise tour with you, What's the big deal?"

"Are you afraid that she will refuse you?" Victor's eyes darkened. As he looked at the invitation that had been lying on his desk, he could already see the sarcastic smile on Rachel's face. Carson was right, he loathed himself, not expecting that he would one day become a coward. It was just an invitation, but he couldn't get himself to give it to Rachel.

Chapter 200 Two Conditions

Noticing the invitation in his hand, Rachel was a bit surprised. She didn't want to assume anything, so she went ahead and asked, "Do you have some time? I want to discuss something with you." Looking into her eyes, Victor just nodded slightly, waiting for her to continue speaking. "I heard that there's this cruise tour." "Do you want to come?" Victor immediately asked. Rachel nodded and explained, "Although I'm not one of the biggest shareholder of Bennet Group right now, it's still my family's business."

I have just taken over Bennet Group, so by convention, I should attend the events organized by the Chamber of Commerce.” Victor still remained silent, looking at her intently as if trying to read her mind. In the past recent years, Rachel rarely showed up in public, and all kinds of unexpected accidents also happened during those few times she attended social events. Now that she took the initiative to ask if she could attend such a formal event, Victor felt a bit strange.

He was trying to determine what her real motivation was. “If you are worried that I will use that opportunity to escape from you, then you can refuse,” Rachel remarked nonchalantly. Victor could sense the calmness and indifference in her tone, as if she didn’t really care if she could come or not. She looked like a rose with its thorns removed, deprived of its unique beauty. Victor’s heart suddenly ached at the sight of her gloomy face.

Finally, he agreed, “You can come. But I have two conditions.” Rachel’s brows raised, curious as to what Victor would say. “What conditions?” Out of the corner of his eye, Victor saw Lukas who was about to bring in the warm milk. Then, he said, “First, drink the milk and have a good sleep.”
