Chapter 1121

Hera looked at Nash with wide eyes. "What's wrong with me?"

She was feeling a little nervous.

She did not have some terrible sickness, did she?

Nash, so excited he could hardly contain himself, wrapped Hera in a big hug. His voice shook as he said, "We're about to start a whole new adventure!"

A new adventure?

Hera was puzzled for a moment, but then it hit her. "You mean... we're going to have a baby?"

She had been wondering, actually.

She had been feeling sick and throwing up a lot lately.

Plus, her period was super late.

Nash nodded his head like crazy, bursting with excitement. "Yeah, going to be a dad, and you're going to be a mom!"

Hera's heart skipped a beat, and she held Nash's hands even tighter

Sienna was worried she hadn’t given enough and quickly said, “That’s for your son. I’ll write another one for your daughter!”

She reached for her checkbook to write down the amount.

Hera quickly grabbed Sienna’s hand. “It’s not too little; it’s actually too much!”

Most people could not earn a million in a lifetime, let alone 200 million.

Yet Sienna was ready to give that much to children who had yet to be born.

Was this typical of the Capiton elite?

To the Capiton Lowe family, 200 million might be a drop in the bucket.

It was what Sienna could earn for starring in two movies.

Melody pulled out a check stamped with Universal Group’s seal fr her purse, filled it out, and handed it to Hera. “This is my gift for baby!”

To show her thanks, Lauren went all out and set up two big banquet tables for the important people of Jonford.

Nash was in high spirits today, drinking so much with everyone till he became a complete mess.

It was not until 11:00 pm that he finally said goodbye to the well-wishers.

The night was deep and still.

Hera snuggled up to Nash and whispered softly, "Hubby... thank you for all you've given me!"

She was not one to care much about money, but getting billions just for being pregnant sure felt like a fairy tale.

She knew it was all thanks to Nash.

Nash looked at her lovingly and said, "Silly, I'm the one who should thank you for giving the Youngs a new member!"

Hera laughed. "So, what last name will our baby have, Caleraft or Young?"

Nash thought for a bit and said, "I'm not stuck on old traditions. It's fine if the baby has your last name!"

Hera felt so happy inside that she hugged Nash tightly and said, "My mom has already talked to me about this. She says our baby has to carry on the family name and must be a Young!"

He had already been caught by the National Martial Bureau once, and now his dad wanted him to join them?

“Don’t you want to know why I’ve been warning you to watch out for Francis?”

“It’s not just Francis. You’ve got to be careful around your master, Johnathan, too!”

Philix’s voice was so low it was almost a whisper.

Nash felt like he had been hit by a bolt of lightning.

Being careful around Francis was one thing as he had hardly ever seen the guy.

Being warned about Johnathan, his own master? That was crazy.

After all, his master had looked after him since he was in diapers!

“I know what’s on your mind, but I need to tell you that Johnathan has been involved with the Youngs many times. He was even honored by them 500 years ago. I think he might have something to do with our downfall!” Philix said.

Nash drove to the airport to pick her up himself.

Hera's phone kept ringing in the car Some were congratulatory calls while others were about work.

When they met Eva, the introductions were quick. Hera and Eva clicked right away.

Eva was no ordinary person. She had turned a small family investment into a billion-dollar business.

Eva knew a lot about how companies were run and their rules. She had made many friends in her job at the Great Eastern Tower. She was just the kind of person who could help Hera with her busy job, “Innovate Collective... I guess it’s meant to be. My mom and dad used to work there, but they got fired and started their own business!” Eva said with a funny look on her face.

“We’ve just taken over Innovate Collective, and it’s all mixed up. I’m counting on you to fix the situation, Eva!” Hera said, looping her arm through Eva’s.

"The richest guy in Jonford? Ha! I'm Trevor Lax, and I don't care about him. Just give me the land and scam like the dog you are!"

Trevor barely gave Queenie a second look.

He was sick of these spoiled kids who always name-dropped their rich family members.

"So, you got kicked out of Capiton and now you're here in Jonford acting all high and mighty?" Sydney said with a cold laugh.

"I'm the same in Capiton and anywhere else-I do what I want," Trevor replied with a cool smile.

"Don't get too cocky, buddy. I've called my boss, and when he shows up, you're going to be in big trouble!" Derek's face was so swollen he looked like a chipmunk that had stuffed its cheeks. His words out all garbled.

"Oh? Your boss?"

Trevor looked at Derek, amused. "And who might he be? Someone looking for trouble?"

In the tiny town of Jonford, there were only three families, that were a little stronger than the rest.

From what he knew, none of these families had anyone as powerful as a Profound Reality Realm expert.

With a Mystique Loyalty Realm master by his side, he could walk around like he owned the place.

Trevor turned as pale as a ghost.

He had been so bold because he had an expert from the Mystique

Loyalty Realm at his side.

Now, his biggest support was on his knees, scared stiff by just the sight of Nash.

Was Nash really that scary?

Trevor did not dare to think anymore and followed suit, kneeling down as he trembled. "I... I've realized my mistake!"

The other experts behind him also dropped to their knees, pleading for mercy.

With Hoiland and Trevor kneeling, they did not dare to resist.

Nash gave a nod. "Since you seem sincere in admitting your mistakes, I'll let you off this time."

"It's not big enough," Sydney said, her eyes shining with excitement. "

Our Southern Heaven Pharmaceuticals Association plans to grow to a hundred thousand people. We'll need at least five places as big as the Long Lake Industrial Zone!"

Nash raised an eyebrow. "Isn't that a little too much?" Right now, Baroque and Innovate Collective had only about 4,000 people. Sydney's team was already planning for a hundred thousand?

Queenie could not stop smiling. "We've made our first beauty tonic! It clears up acne and scars in just five minutes. When it goes on sale, it's going to be huge all over the world!"

Nash looked totally confused, so Queenie continued, "Nash, if all these 30-something formulas of yours are as amazing as they seem, it won't be weird for Southern Heaven Pharmaceuticals to grow into a huge company with millions of people!"

Nash just smiled and nodded. "My formulas are solid. Southern Heaven Pharmaceuticals can do whatever you like with them!"

Everyone gave Nash odd looks when he said that.

This was a company that could be a big deal in the future.

Why was he so casual about it?

They had no idea Nash had made over 400 billion from making just one batch of pills.

Nash just smiled and did not say a word, which pretty much meant yes.

Sienna blinked and said, “Do you still have any of those Elixirs of Youth? I want to get one for my mom!”

“Got a few left. Should I grab one from the basement?”

Nash got up and headed downstairs.

He had about a dozen Elixirs of Youth left from his last batch, which he had planned to give away as presents.

Ten minutes later, Nash came back with an elixir for both Melody and Sienna.

Sienna batted her eyelashes and said, “Since we’re such good friends, can you give me a little discount?”

She could not afford one with all her savings put together.

Her only hope was getting a friend discount from Nash.

Melody’s curiosity was piqued. “How much does one cost?”

“At the Great Eastern Tower auction, they went for 35 billion!” Sienna exclaimed.

“That much?” Melody’s eyes nearly popped out of her head.

“Everything pricey has its worth, and who wouldn’t want to keep looking young?” Sienna was getting ready to call and ask for a loan.

Nash just gave the man a quick look, showing his lack of interest. His expression did not change much.

Melody's eyebrows were furrowed together, and she questioned with a frosty voice, "Finch, have you lost your mind?"

She and Finch were only college classmates, and they did not even like each other back then.

How could he dare say she was his wife and take over her villa without asking?

“What’s going on? Finch always talks about how important he is at home. Why does his wife seem to be the boss?”

“You don’t get it. No man is afraid of a woman. Finch just spoils his wife, that’s all!”

A bunch of people were whispering to each other, and Melody’s face went from pale to flushed.
