Chapter 1201

When Nash heard that, his brows furrowed together. If that was the case, the five of them might not be able to handle the Southern Martial Alliance after all.

There were four Path denominations.

The One Path was founded by Dalin. It was originally known as the Five Grain Sect and was later renamed the Heavenly Masters Sect.

Clear Dew Court, led by Eric, fell under One Path.

The All-True Path was founded by Raes and focused on the cultivation of internal alchemy. This denomination had relatively stricter rules such as abstaining from meat and alcohol, similar to Mythism.

The Supreme Path with masters as its patriarch mainly involved the practice of using talismans, similar to the Heavenly Masters Sect.

Nash and Johnathan belonged to the Supreme Path, a denomination that had declined over time.

The Purity and Light Path, also known as the Filial Piety Path, originated in the south during the Sun Dynasty and flourished during Yule and Light Dynasties. It was also facing a decline now.

“No, don’t send Sherman. This a clash between Mystique Loyalty

“You’re supposed to deal with the Southern Martial Alliance, right?”

“Yeah.”

“I have some good news and some bad news. Which one do you want to hear first?” Theo teased.

“Let’s hear the bad news first.”

“Sawyer Ford has broken through to the Mystique Loyalty Realm and has left the Klein family. He’s planning to join the Southern Martial Alliance,” Theo responded in a serious tone.

“That’s indeed bad news.” Nash’s eye twitched. It seemed that when it rained, it poured.

Before Nash could ask for the good news, Theo continued, “The good news is that Carlos has also broken through and is now in the mid- Mystique Loyalty Realm. I plan to send him over to help you!”

A hint of a smile appeared at the corner of Nash's mouth. "You're thoughtful. This is quite a significant favor you're doing for me."

The Skye family's strongest forces were Carlos and Sherman. Theo did not hesitate to deploy them when Nash was the one who was going to fight. Such friendship was indeed rare.

Theo pretended to be angry. "I don't like hearing that. Aren't we good buddies?"

After finishing her shower, Melody put on a pink silk nightgown and began blow-drying her hair. Her black silky hair cascaded like ink. In the mirror, her skin appeared smooth and flawless.

Feeling pleased with herself, Melody admired her reflection before returning to the bedroom to get ready for bed. Just as she approached the door, she heard the sound of her neighbor vomiting.

Nash had indeed drunk too much.

Melody enjoyed drinking with her group, but she had never drunk with Bertram before. That guy could hold his liquor.

With a click, Melody entered Nash's room with a cup of tea in hand. Have a cup of tea," she said softly. She placed the tea on the bedside table before gently patting Nash's back.

Nash continued to retch, expelling mostly alcohol with hardly any food. Drinking on an empty stomach was an intense experience. Having consumed about two pounds of alcohol, he had already vomited nearly one pound. He felt a bit relieved after throwing up,

The next day, Melody was stirred awake by soreness and woke up earlier than Nash. She finally understood what Hera meant by being unable to endure him. Nash had exceptional stamina. If she had not begged for mercy with tears in her eyes, he might have continued.

Melody leaned against Nash, completely drained. It was her first time, and he probably did not know how delicate she was. Melody wrinkled her nose and bit Nash's shoulder lightly.

"Ouch..." Nash opened his eyes and stared at Melody. "Why did you bite me?"

"You're the one who bullied me last night!" Melody huffed. What was wrong with giving him a bite? It was not even that hard. Men could be so petty. She turned away from Nash's embrace, pretending to be angry. Hera had told her not to spoil men.

Nash hugged Melody from behind, inhaling the scent of her h

Looking at Nash's fiery gaze, Melody frowned. "You're not getting all excited again, are you?"

Nash lifted the covers. Melody quickly pressed the towel around her and returned to her room. Nash went to the bathroom to freshen up. Suddenly realizing he did not have fresh clothes, he sent a message to Felicity asking for help to buy two sets of clothes.

Felicity replied with a crying emoji: [I feel terrible, I don't want to go out!]

Nash, puzzled, replied: [What's wrong?]

Felicity: [I got rejected by him!]

Nash sighed. [I think you should give up. Jaxon is determined

Some time passed, but Felicity did not reply again.

After putting on her clothes, Melody entered Nash's room. "I just recalled you don't have any clothes. I'll go out and buy two sets no

Melody wrinkled her nose and pouted. "Don't thank me!"

Nash’s heart stirred. “How much do you know about the Netherworld

Holy Sect?”

Stellar shook his head as he replied, “I don’t know much either, but it’s a very sinister organization. The hitman who hurt your father is an up-and-coming general your father personally promoted.

“He holds considerable power and influence in the Northern Territory.

He hardly ever leaves the place, but it turns out he’s a member of the Netherworld Holy Sect.”

Nash narrowed his eyes at that. “Could he have been groomed by the Netherworld Holy Sect since childhood?”

“That possibility can’t be ruled out. Your father even suspects that some of the military leaders in the other three territories might be members of the Netherworld Holy Sect,” Stellar revealed.

Nash took a deep breath. “Recently, the Divine Strategy Squadro approached me. They said I’ll be able to obtain more information about the Netherworld Holy Sect if I join them.”

Nash was not very familiar with official forces like the Divine Strategy Squadro. He didn’t fully trust Hendrix, so he had planned to ask for his father’s Melody rolled her eyes at the two of them and then saw them off.

After all three of them had left, she brought the clothes upstairs. After using her true energy to heal herself, she was not in so much pain anymore and was walking normally.

Pushing open the door and entering the room, she saw Nash lying sprawled on the bed. Her face instantly turned red. Had he not been satiated this morning? Why was he horny again?

Melody stood at the doorway, too hesitant to enter. Nash turned to look at her. He swallowed before saying, "Come in. I'm not going to eat you!"

Only then did Melody enter the room. Nash immediately got out of bed and trotted up to Melody, hugging her tightly and kissing her.

Two hours later, Nash lay back on the bed. Melody was complete the strength to move her fingers. She curled into Nash's arms and asked weakly, "Didn't you notice something on my back?"

Nash paused slightly. "Turn around. Let me see."

Melody turned around with difficulty, revealing her back to Nash.

The lobby manager, Shanice Hume, introduced, "Mr. Calcraft, this is our hotel's general manager, Mr. Nathan Solme." She put on an apologetic look.

Shanice was Melody's college classmate. When Nash booked the hotel last night, Shanice managed to get a discount through her connections. Nash naturally would not blame Shanice for this.

Instead, he looked at Nathan and said, "Integrity is essential when it comes to business. I reserved the Empire Hotel for seven days. It hasn't even been a day and you're already backing out of the agreement?"

Nathan frowned slightly. "Didn't you hear what I just said? The Warden of the Southern Territory will be staying at our hotel tonight."

The man's words caused everyone at the table to furrow their brows, all except for Jaxon. Bertram slammed his hand on the table and roared, "Is the Warden of the Southern Territory above us? Are we not all human?"

Seeing Bertram's imposing appearance, Nathan could not help but sneer. "You think you're comparable to the Warden? You think you can act arrogantly just because you have a wealthy relative?"

In his eyes, this burly man was nothing more than a country bumpkin.

Even the calm and composed Jaxon glanced at Nash. They all knew in their hearts that Nash was determined to confront the Warden of the Southern Territory to entertain them.

“The Empire Hotel is not a local property of Xanthalos. Its headquarters is in Capiton. Aren’t you quite close with Mr. Skye? He should be able to handle it,” Melody said with some confusion.

Nash briefly explained the situation before ending the call and contacting Theo. Meanwhile, on Nathan’s end, he was making a call to security to have them removed.

“Nash, you’ve met up with Mr. Lexington, yes?” Theo asked.

“We’re having tea together now, but the owner of the Empire Hotel intends to kick us out. So, I’ve decided to buy the Empire Hotel” Nash said calmly.

“Nash, I don’t want to take advantage of you, so just give me symbolic amount. 25 billion should do,” Theo said somewhat embarrassedly.

“A symbolic amount?” Nash asked in confusion.

At the Xanthalo's Empire Hotel, Nathan was waiting for the security guards to arrive. The other party had the advantage in numbers, after all. If he acted rashly, he would be the one at a disadvantage.

Taking advantage of this time, he looked at Shanice coldly and said, Go to the Finance Department this afternoon to collect your salary. Then, get lost!”

Shanice’s face turned pale instantly. She lowered her head, tears streaming down her cheeks as she started, “Mr. Solme, I-”

“Shut up! I don’t want to hear any explanations from you!” Nathan cut her off and then turned to the other senior hotel staff. He reprimanded them angrily, “Employees should behave like employees. Whatever the boss says goes. Do you expect a good outcome from defying the boss’ orders?”

The others shook their heads and looked at Shanice with p eyes. Nash spoke up at that moment, “Ms. Hume, we’re ou
