Chapter 131

Bianca's two bodyguards stepped forward, their powerful auras making everyone dare not overstep their boundaries.

At this time, a group of middle-aged men in suits quickly approached.

They were Bianca's coach and agent.

The rest were boxers from the club who stood on both sides, blocking all enthusiastic fans and reporters.

Bianca looked at Skadi and said, "I'll look for you guys after the match!"

Skadi nodded firmly. "Good luck, Bianca! You'll definitely win the championship!"

Bianca showed a slight smile at the corner of her mouth and then quickly left with her manager and coach.

The crowd at the elevator was so large that Hera anxiously clung to Nash's sleeve.

Just then, a middle-aged man suddenly fell toward Hera.

Nash kindly supported him from behind.

The man turned around, and his face instantly darkened.

In front of them were Simon Lanes and Duncan Duerson.

Simon smiled slightly, “Mr. Kai, Black Widow has made your family a lot of money!

“Gold rarely depreciates, and with three consecutive Phoenix Crowns, that’s 3.6 million.”

Duncan lifted his wine glass, took a sip of red wine very elegantly, and said with a slight smile, “The products endorsed by Black Widow are all the Watsons’ brands, and the Watsons’ advertising fees for Black Widow are more than 3.6 million!”

Hearing these words, Simon’s face turned somewhat awkward.

He spent all day mixing with people from the Green Bamboo Association and hardly ever got involved in business matters. He had overlooked this point. How could the Watsons have gotten to where they were today by making unprofitable deals?
