

CEO Bride 134

Chapter 134

The host's voice broke from shouting.

The applause at the scene reached an unprecedented level of enthusiasm.

A curly-haired woman with dark skin who wore a black windbreaker stepped onto the ring.

She stood at 1.9 meters tall, her glistening dark thighs full of muscles.

Her exposed belly button and her six-pack abs were extremely prominent.

Compared to Bianca, Black Widow had more fans, and their cheers and applause filled the entire arena.

Then came the referee and the ten judges.

The Watsons had spent a fortune to invite these renowned individuals from various countries.

Normally, they could only be seen at the World Boxing Championship.

This was to ensure the fairness and impartiality of the match.

It was because of their presence that the Watsons' and the Duersons' poker companies had attracted a large number of bettors.

The host finished his lines, and together with the blonde woman holding the tray, he descended from the ring.

Her attacks rained down on Bianca's head.

Bianca used her hands to protect her head, and Black Widow proceeded to attack Bianca's abdomen and waist.

At the same time, Black Widow's effective hitting score soared quickly.

Soon, the score reached 0:12.

Just as Black Widow was about to launch a heavy punch, the referee suddenly blew the whistle.

The first round was over.

Black Widow twisted her neck, panting as she sat at the edge of the ring with her hands on the ropes.

A group of staff immediately massaged her arms.

Then, her coach fed her a bottle of Titan Drinking Water, which she endorsed. It was worth nearly 300 dollars per bottle.

If it had been a previous boxing match, her coach would definitely have been over the moon.

However, today, he was not happy at all.

It was because they had received 50 million from the Watsons, and in today's match, Bianca would be crowned the final winner.

The advantage Black Widow held in the first few rounds was just her way of giving back to her fans.
