

CEO Bride 273

Chapter 273

There had been many wealthy families lining up in their luxury cars to welcome him when he descended the mountain. However, his master had ordered him to refrain from being an accomplice to villains after going down the mountain.

It was not until his father was arrested because of debts that he contacted Royal Biotech, one of the parties that had wanted to hire him before.

He also recently came to a certain understanding of Royal Biotech. It was an exploitative company through and through.

He felt like he was deceiving his master and desecrating his forebearers whenever he helped them.

“Northdale Mountain? Are you Salvia Path’s apprentice?”

Nash looked at the man in the suit in surprise.

There were many hermits on Northdale Mountain, but only Salvia’s abilities were the real deal.

When he was eight years old, Salvia had once run over to Tili Mountain to challenge his master.

Although she failed, she managed to last two rounds against his master.

the Profound Reality Realm of my master?” The man in the suit was ecstatic. If Nash knew his master, then it

“Just a bit.”

the cogs in his head

by recruiting a stage six great-grandmaster junior for at Nash closely, as if he was afraid that he would not agree.

million. You don’t have to follow me; just be my friend,” Nash said as he dazed. “You’re... You’re going to give me 4.7 million, just like that?”

largest banknote he had seen on Northdale Mountain was a 50 dollar note which allowed him to buy a lot of groceries from the market nearby the village.

father ran also only earned four and Hera came worried as Nash was gone for some time, so they decided to come out and have behind Nash, their eyes fixed on the man looked at Hera and asked, “Wifey, has production started with the one his head and said, "It's just been installed. The engineers are testing it out at your bank card. I'll have my wife transfer the money to you."

was wondering what was Nash's condition. How did he just buy something worth a decided then that this man was worth a money.

Nash wanted to give him 4.7 million dollars just like that to pay off his father's gambling debts and even refused to let him pay it back. He felt anxious about owing such a big favor. The man in the suit then suddenly asked, "Dude, are you looking down on my character or my capability?"

"Do you even have character?" Yvonne scoffed while hiding behind Nash.

Her statement left the man speechless.

"You betrayed your initial benefactor after a little setback. I wouldn't want to bring trouble to myself by trusting the wrong person," Nash said calmly.

Gaining control over someone was easy. One could either give them certain benefits or use force. Winning someone's heart, however, was not as simple. They had to be taught that two-faced people were not taken kindly.

First, Nash would give this man something good. Then, he would reveal his strength so that the other party would think that there would be benefits to be gained by following him.

"I-I had no other choice! I needed the money!" the man in the suit explained anxiously.

It was then that the phone in his pocket rang.

He quickly took out his phone and answered the call.

"Boy, your three-day deadline is up and our patience is limited. We're going to chop off one of your father's fingers today as interest!"