

CEO Bride 337

Chapter 337

Nash was not only working for the Youngs but was very likely a direct descendant.

Fabian seemed intent on handing over Universal Foundation to Nash's control.

Thinking of this, Sheldon immediately reached for his phone to make a call.

"It's too late..."

Duncan spoke softly, his expression a tad desolate.

Even at this juncture, his grandfather had not realized his mistakes.

"It's not too late... We can mobilize all our forces and kill them all..."

Sheldon declared confidently.

Duncan took out his phone and showed Sheldon a video he had recorded from upstairs.

Streets in Jonford were teeming with hundreds of patrol cars, their sirens blaring.

Nash was already married. What was this nonsense about a romantic relationship?

Could it be that he was bisexual?

Inside the office, Nash and Fabian sat facing each other.

Frankie stood respectfully behind Fabian.

Nash frowned and said, "The Lees are generally trustworthy. That pilot was most likely a spy planted by another major family!"

Frankie nodded. "Exactly. Deceit between families is quite common!"

He had sensed suspicion from Fabian's tone during their previous phone call.

Had the truth finally come to light now?

Fabian gently stroked Foxy's fluffy head while deep in thought. Foxy rested its chin on Fabian's arm, comfortably squinting its eyes.

"Mr. Hughes, did you also bring the inheritance document from the foundation?" Frankie asked cautiously.
