

CEO Bride 339

Chapter 339

Just as he was short on cash, money came knocking.

Nash said, "Wire over five million!"

"Okay!"

Without any hesitation, Theo immediately transferred five million to Nash's bank account using his phone.

"By the way, Nash... I heard Fabian Hughes went to Jonford to find you?"

"Yes, that's right."

"I didn't tell you this before... The situation at Universal Group is very complex, and its risk level is not less than that of the Kleins. I'm worried you might run into trouble," Theo said apologetically.

When he learned that Nash was a descendant of the Youngs, he had considered having Nash inherit that 10% share of Universal Group.

However, thinking of the numerous major forces eyeing that 10%, he dropped the idea.

In order to inherit the foundation, one would need to be the direct bloodline of the Youngs. But if Nash were to inherit the foundation with that identity, he would be doomed.

"It's okay, I would've found out sooner or later. Finding out too early wouldn't entirely be a good thing!"

He was already struggling against the Kleins. Trying to inherit Universal Foundation would be an even bigger challenge.

Theo laughed. "Since Fabian has already found you, he'll probably help you find a solution. He's very strategic. Discuss a foolproof plan with him!"

Changing it suddenly felt quite unnatural, and there was also the possibility that it might bring greater danger to those around him.

After signing, he drew some blood from his thumb with his true energy and left a thumbprint on the paper.

Fabian picked up the inheritance document and examined it once, his deep eyes trembling slightly.

With Universal Foundation returning to the Youngs, the Hughes' fortunes should also be on the rise, right?

The ink of the thumbprint was not dry yet. Fabian laid the inheritance document on the coffee table and then said, "You now hold Universal Foundation, owning 10% of Universal Group's shares. I hope you entrust me with this 10% fully... Once I've eradicated the parasites from Universal Group, I'll return the control to you!"

Nash nodded. "So what should I do now?"

Fabian had come from afar, risking his life to find him in Drakonia. Nash naturally trusted him without a doubt.

"You don't have to do anything!

"Although you're the actual controller of the foundation, this identity won't be known to outsiders.

“Currently, Universal Foundation has 30 billion in funds. According to the will left by the founder, 80 % of the funds are used for charitable causes and 20% for martial arts force cultivation. Only the successor of the foundation can re-establish the rules for fund allocation!”

“So, has my dream of becoming the richest man gone down the drain?” Nash casually asked.

A mischievous curve appeared at the corner of Fabian’s mouth. “I can help you liquidate that 10% of shares... Based on the current market price, those 800 million shares can be sold for 96 billion Moliga Dollars, which can be exchanged for 600 billion Drakonia Dollars.

“The interest you’d earn from a bank deposit would be more than you could ever spend... However, Universal Group would have no ties with the Youngs anymore...”
