

CEO Bride 453

Chapter 453

“Hey now... It’s not about the discount. Warm Flower Garden just opened, and the quality of their flowers is much higher than other flower shops. Shouldn’t you aim for quality when buying goods?”

“When buying flowers for your wife, it shows your passion for love. The better the quality of the flowers, the more thoughtful it is, no?”

The taxi driver said as he glanced at Nash through the rearview mirror with a cheeky grin.

Nash nodded in agreement. “That makes sense... Let’s head to Warm Flower Garden, then.”

Warm Flower Garden was located in the heart of Jonford.

The store was spacious with various fresh flower samples displayed in glass cabinets.

Outside, pots of plants were arranged, and the ground was littered with remnants of flower petals.

As Nash stepped out of the car, a young woman dressed as a maid with twin ponytails greeted him with a warm smile.

“Good day, sir. Our store has a grand opening offer today-all flowers are at a 50% discount.”

Her voice was sweet, making Nash feel as if he was bathed in a spring breeze.

me

“Right this way,

a welcoming hand

flowers for a family member or a lover?”

“For my lover.”

ask about maintained a sweet smile, but Nash noticed a hint of sadness

been hurt in love

eyes.

and a bit cute, I suppose,” said Nash, thinking of Hera and smiling slightly.

pink roses, sir. They symbolize profound

Love God Castle in Floraland. The original price

she looked anxiously was merely the store’s temporary salesgirl.

earn a 10% commission if she were able to make flowers today even though it was failed to sell flowers, her younger take this advertised as being from the famous Love God Castle in Getting 99 roses from there for less than 2,000 dollars seemed like a good deal, but he wondered about the quality.

“Oh...”

The young girl was taken aback, surprised by his quick decision.

Most imported flowers were usually pre-ordered at other shops she had worked in.

Still, this store’s owner clearly seemed inexperienced. The imported flowers they brought in were placed there all afternoon without any customer asking about them.

That was the reason why the price was reduced to 1,880 dollars yet most customers still walked away after inquiring.

She thought that this flower bouquet would have to go to waste. She never expected this customer to buy it without even asking further questions.

“Is there a problem?” Nash asked, noticing her surprise.

“No, not at all! I’ll wrap it up for you right away,” she replied, her face lighting up with joy.

She was relieved her siblings would not go hungry tonight.

However, just as she was about to move to the packaging room, a young man with dyed blonde hair and a group of young ruffians burst into the shop.

The blonde man sneered “Luna... you’ve made me search endlessly for you...”