

CEO Bride 460

Chapter 460

He had always cared about his reputation.

He did not want to continue relying on others either.

If they did not figure something out soon, he and Helena would really end up on the streets.

Helena scoffed. "Which of your underlings hasn't fled the moment trouble arose? Do you still care about your reputation? Your reputation's been destroyed after everything that happened at Duncan's house!"

"Shut up!"

Kai yelled, fuming with rage.

The humiliation at Duncan's place where he was made to kneel and bark like a dog was something that haunted him forever.

He only revealed it because he was drunk.

Helena realized she hit Kai's sore spot and softly said, "Kai... I'm sorry..."

After all, Kai approached Duncan to help her repay a 20 million debt.

Kai grabbed a beer from the fridge and went to the balcony.

He stared at the night outside, quietly drowning his sorrows in alcohol.

the server room had trying to save the important items brigade had already arrived.

to put out the

the more they poured water on it, the bigger the flames

"This is weird..."

firefighter adjusted his helmet as he continued to battle distraught Hans approached and said, "Sirs, please, don't let the fire reach components and USB drives.

to procure these vital components for upgrading their project with Drake, they needed to enhance the performance of these date for the Drake project would be delayed by at least three months this fire is unusual. Does your server room contain any chemicals?"

firefighter asked with store chemicals there? And we have inspections every three months. Our must have started this fire intentionally. They must have added a certain chemical powder in the warehouse which reacts with water... There's even a risk massive explosion rang out, originating from the server room. The shockwave knocked firefighters off their instantly engulfed the warehouse.

despair, Hans

Hera parked her car outside the company, she heard the explosion from inside the factory.

was deafening.

She gripped the steering wheel tightly, remaining motionless.

"I hope it didn't reach the warehouse!"

Hera's voice trembled as she opened the car door and ran toward the factory.

At that moment, Jupiter and Angelica arrived with a large inspection team.

"Mr. Calcraft... we came to help put out the fire..."

Jupiter approached with purposeful strides.

Nash replied, "Thank you, Chief Holt... but please help me find out who started the fire!"

After saying these words, he briskly walked toward the main gate.

There were too many people around, so he could not use his incredible speed.

"Angelica... you lead them to extinguish the fire. Squad Three, come with me to investigate the cause of this accident!"

Jupiter issued commands decisively.

Everyone immediately acted upon his instructions.

When Hera saw that half of the warehouse had already burned, her vision went black, and she fainted.

Using the cover of night, Nash swiftly moved like a shadow to Hera's side and supported her.