

My Substitute CEO Bride

Chapter 507

Chapter 507

Nash placed all the herbs he had taken with him from the tomb of the King of Medicine on the floor.

There were nearly 300 herbs here.

Any one of them could be sold for millions if not tens of millions of dollars.

The Five Poisonous Pines required at least a level three antidote to work against its toxins.

His master had just barely mastered the art of preparing level five antidotes.

Nash had tried using his master's cauldron to prepare a level one antidote before he descended the mountains.

Now, since he had the help of the Divine Cauldron, he wondered if he could successfully prepare a level three antidote.

Before this, though, he had to practice preparing normal antidotes that replenished true energy.

If he used up all his true energy, not only would he fail to prepare the antidote, but his life might be endangered as well.

Nash selected a handful of herbs.

These were all herbs used in preparing the elixir of immortality and were also used to supplement the preparation of the elixir of infantility.

The elixir of infantility was a level four antidote and was the perfect choice for trying to break through the Profound Oriental Realm.

He still had a long way to go before he could break through the Profound Oriental Realm, but Finn was a close friend of his.

Saving his life was much more important than breaking through the Profound Oriental Realm.

After selecting the appropriate herbs, Nash called Brian, hoping to purchase some herbs from his clinic.

"Grandmaster, why don't you just send me the prescription and I'll get someone to send the herbs over?" Brian said as he chuckled.

"I'll need quite a lot of herbs since I'm planning to spend the next two days preparing a batch of pills. I also think it'd be better for me to visit the clinic myself because I've forgotten the names of some of the herbs!" Nash explained.

"Well... Alright then... When do you plan to drop by?" Brian stammered.

"Are you occupied now?" Nash asked.

"I'm at my family's home now. My cousin is nearing the end of his life!" Brian said, a sad smile appearing on his face. "My daughter-in-law and granddaughter are at the clinic now. I'll call my son and let them know you're dropping by!"

"Alright!"

Nash hung up after that.

Gosh...

Where was Brian's clinic again?

Nash could not be bothered to make another call and ask.

He walked out of the mansion and hailed himself a cab. "Take me to Dr. Tanner's clinic!"

Brian was known in Jonford for being a miracle doctor. The whereabouts of his clinic were probably common knowledge.

"Alright..."

Sure enough, the driver immediately made a sharp turn and began speeding down the road.

Inside the car, Nash received a call from his mother-in-law.

"Nash... we've managed to recover the contents of the audio recording pen. It's a recording of Mr. Jacobs' last words to his descendants!"

"My guess is he was already planning to kill himself before the fire even occurred!"

Lauren had initially thought the recording would be of a conversation between Mr. Jacobs and the culprit who had masterminded everything.

However, it ended up being Mr. Jacobs' last words.

If that were the case, it would be even more difficult to catch the culprit.

Nash felt a headache coming on as he pinched the bridge of his nose. Then, he asked abruptly, "Oh, right... Is Innovate Collective connected to the Hills in any way?"

Lauren sounded surprised. "You think either Innovate Collective or the Hill family is behind all this?"

Nash laughed. "It was just a random question!"

He did indeed have his suspicions.

Based on what Hera had told him, Baroque Group and Innovate

Collective were sworn enemies.

There was plenty of bad blood between them.

Innovate Collective had abruptly commissioned Baroque Group after the incident.

However, it did not seem that Innovate Collective's vice president was interested in any genuine collaboration with Baroque Group.

He suspected the employees from Innovate Collective were only here as spies.

Lauren gave it some thought before saying, "Innovate Collective is a private business. Their biggest clients include Scenic Dawn Electronics, which the Duersons own, as well as Hills Technology, which is owned by the Hill family!"

The Duersons and the Hills.

Nash's eyes narrowed.

In that case, it was highly likely the Hill family was behind this.

Lauren whispered, "Nash, do you really think the Hill family is behind this?"

* met "dattel you do whe? it up Hunter at half