

CEO Bride 521

Chapter 521

Hera raised a brow. "Speak up, or I might just hang up!"

"H-Hera, my sister," Helena's weak voice sounded from the other end of the phone.

Hera was taken aback by Helena calling her sister, but she could also tell that her voice was very weak. Brows furrowed, she asked, "What's wrong?"

"Kai... Kai is dying... Can you please ask Nash to save him?" Helena's voice was choked with sobs as tears streamed down her face.

"Nash isn't here, and even if he were, he wouldn't save him. Have your no conscience about the things you guys have done?" Hera remarked coldly.

"Hera... Please, I'm begging you..." Helena's voice became even weaker, as if she was struggling to breathe.

Hera was puzzled and asked, "What's happening to you?"

There was a clatter. It sounded like the phone had dropped to the floor.

"Oh, why did you take off the oxygen mask?" A nurse who had been checking the ward rushed in and quickly placed the oxygen mask.

back on Helena's face. She then saw the phone on the floor. Upon picking it up, she asked, "Are you the patient's family?"

Hera nodded and said. "I am..."

"What's going on with you people? Why isn't anyone here to take care of the patient?" the nurse asked.

Hera was not aware that Helena had just been admitted to the hospital and asked, "What happened to her?"

Despite the conflicts between her and Helena, she was, after all, her blood family. Hearing that Helena was lying in the hospital without anyone to care for her stirred some sympathy in Hera.

The nurse went to the counter to look for the patient records but could not find them. "I don't know what's wrong with her. She's in ward 7 on the third floor of the People's Hospital. You can come and see for yourselves."

With that, the nurse ended the call and placed the mobile phone on the bedside table.

Hera turned to her father and mother, saying, "Kai and Helena are in trouble. They're both in the hospital, and it seems like Kai is in critical condition. She asked me to get Nash to save him."

She was not particularly concerned about whether Kai survived or not, but Helena was her blood relative.

Harrison put down his teacup and said, "Let's go to the hospital and see what's going on."

Lauren agreed. "Hera, call Nash. Ask him to come to the hospital as well if he's free."

The three of them left together.

Melody said to Ken, "Take care of Finn. I'll go protect them."

Ken nodded in agreement.

Hera tried calling Nash, but his phone was engaged.

Nash was at Tanner's clinic and was currently on the phone with Walter, who was pleading desperately with him. However, Nash was feeling impatient, and his tone reflected it.

"Mr. Watson, I've made it clear that I'm currently treating someone else! Is your child more important than everyone else's children? Do you think your grandson's life is more precious than theirs?"

Nash's words left Walter speechless. He had no choice but to say in a polite and friendly manner, "Dr. Calcraft, please let me know when you're available. I'll come to pick you up."

Nash did not want to waste any more time and simply hung up the call.

Mireille and Larry were already in turmoil, and the people waiting in line kept their heads down. They were afraid to meet Nash's gaze.

This was because the person who called Nash just now Watson, the wealthiest man in Jonford! Who would not treat the utmost respect?

This young man not only disrespected him with his tone but also dared to hang up on him. What was more, Walter had not shown any signs of anger.

After hanging up the call, Nash noticed two missed calls from Hera.

He was about to return the call when she called him again for the third time.

The seven long needles in the young man's head had stopped trembling. Nash put his phone on speaker and asked gently while manipulating the golden needles, "Hera, what's going on?"

Hera hurriedly said, "Honey, where are you? When will you be available?"
