

CEO Bride 535

Chapter 535

Sydney was getting desperate and almost on the verge of tears.

H

Grandpa Murphy, Nash is really powerful. You might not be his match!

She did not want to see her family clash with Nash. If they angered him, the Zell family might end up like the Lane family, in ruins.

Dylan remained unfazed and smiled. "It's alright. Just let him come."

With his current position at the peak of the Profound Reality Realm, there were very few opponents in Drakonia who could challenge him. He had no fear now that he was in a second-tier city like Jonford.

Sydney wanted to say more, but she was silenced by the cold, stern gaze of her grandfather.

Helpless, she hurried back to her room and dialed Nash's number. Nash, my grandfather refused!"

Nash replied calmly, "In that case, I'll come to take it myself."

"Maybe you shouldn't come today. We have a guest from the National Martial Bureau over," Sydney urged.

"Whoever tries to stop me shall die," Nash stated firmly before.

immediately ending the call.

Sydney was scared to tears, so she quickly sent a message to Nash, pleading with him not to harm her family.

Nash took Hera's car keys and headed outside. As mentioned before, he was willing to take extreme measures if necessary. The Zell family's lack of cooperation had been made clear.

A person of integrity? A hero? He was the Smiling Grim Reaper!

Meanwhile, in the morgue of the People's Hospital, two nurses were now exchanging shifts. One of them noticed the new nurse replacing them and asked, "Hey, didn't Milly come today?"

The nurse on duty explained, "Milly took a sick leave today, so this new nurse is covering her shift."

The nurse on duty gave the new nurse a faint smile and asked, "Have you worked in the morgue before?"

Wearing her nurse's uniform and a mask, Melody shook her head. Her fear was real, not an act. The morgue was quite cold, and it was nighttime. She was shivering with goosebumps.

The nurse on duty chuckled and said, "It's normal to feel this way the first time you come to the morgue. You don't need to be afraid."

Melody quickly nodded.

After completing the shift handover, the nurse on duty grabbed her cup and went to clock out for the day.

Dean, who was also present, gave Melody a deep look before leaving.

Following Nash's instructions, they needed to act as if nothing unusual was happening. There was a possibility that the hospital's surveillance could be compromised by someone with ulterior motives.

Melody sat in a chair, gazing at the cold mortuary cabinets. Her teeth chattered uncontrollably.

Not long after Dean left, two young men in suits walked in.

Melody collected herself, stood up, and asked in a trembling voice, "What are you here for?"

One of the men replied, "We're from the Watson family. We've been sent by our family head to take Mr. Kai's body back. The Watson family is holding a funeral for him tomorrow."

Melody looked at the two men with confusion and said, "I haven't received any notification from the director. You can't take the body without proper authorization."

The other man had already reached the mortuary cabinet that was labeled with Kai's name. He was about to pull it out when Melody screamed, "Security! Help! Someone is trying to take a body!"