

CEO Bride 549

Chapter 549

Today, he wanted to see just how temperamental Nash could be.

“Well, there was no need to bring gifts!”

Nash smiled faintly. Stretching out his hand, he took the wine and handed it to Maria. “A gift from the head of the Duersons’. Maria, please take care of it.”

Sometimes, it would be wise to remain calm when one could and back off when necessary.

With a Mystique Loyalty Realm powerhouse present, Nash dared not provoke him. However, Duncan should know that if he pushed too far, even a Mystique Loyalty Realm expert could not save him.

“I heard that you came to discuss business with me, Mr. Duerson?”

Nash asked with his hands behind his back, wearing a casual smile.

Duncan glanced at the living room of the villa and asked, “Mr. Nash, don’t you want to invite us in?”

Nash smiled and stepped aside. “Please, come inside.”

Duncan’s lips curved up slightly as he led the way with Boris following behind. Nash walked behind the two of them, his expression instantly turning gloomy.

A Mystique Loyalty Realm powerhouse.

This guy could be considered the ceiling of the martial world.

How had Duncan managed to hire such a powerhouse?

Inside the living room, Nash politely said, "Please make yourselves at home. I'll have Maria prepare some tea for you."

Duncan, without even uttering polite words, sat down on the sofa.

Boris sat beside Duncan and closed his eyes.

Nash immediately felt a strong spiritual fluctuation.

This old man was using his spiritual power to search the place.

Nash's heart pounded rapidly.

He was worried that this person might discover the Divine Farmer's Cauldron in the basement and Kai.

Boris' spiritual influence spread in all directions and quickly reached the basement.

Suddenly, a more majestic spiritual power collided with Boris' spiritual influence.

Boris abruptly opened his eyes.

There was a fleeting trace of astonishment in his deep pupils.

Nash noticed the change in the old man's gaze and grew even more nervous.

Had he discovered something?

"Mr. Nash... I came to see you because I've recently established a chain of restaurants. I wonder if you might be interested?"

Duncan snapped his fingers, and his bodyguard took out a project proposal from his briefcase.

Nash casually replied, "Not interested."

Upon hearing Nash's response, Duncan waved his hand, indicating for his bodyguard to step back. This was just an excuse for him to visit Nash. His true purpose was to determine whether Nash had secretly brought Kai back home.

The project proposal was genuine.

If Nash was willing to invest and join, he would merely become a shareholder.

Boris whispered a few words into Duncan's ear, but Nash's mind was too occupied to hear what they were saying.

Duncan's eyes flickered for a moment, then he smiled and said, "That's a shame... If you were to invest, I can guarantee you an annual profit of at least two million!"

"The Duersons think I'm short of two million?" Nash said with a half-smile.

"Of course, you're not short of money. In any case, I'm merely offering out of sincerity. If you're not interested, then I won't bother you much longer, Mr. Nash."

Duncan stood up and spoke. He had already achieved his goal. Boris had not found Kai.

Plus, the spies he had planted over at the Watsons' residence had reported that the entire Watsons were in a state of grief, with everyone immersed in sorrow. Even a charity auction event that was to be hosted by Walter was postponed to three days later.

“Maria, please see our guests out,” Nash said unceremoniously.

Duncan gave Nash a meaningful look, then left the living room with Boris. Nash followed them outside.

When they reached the courtyard, Boris suddenly asked, “Kid, what’s the name of the Mystique Loyalty Realm expert in your family?”
