

CEO Bride 581

Chapter 581

It looked like it had just been bought not long ago.

Angelica opened the car door and politely said, "Mr. Calcraft, after you."

"Thank you." Nash smiled and got into the car.

Angelica got into the driver's seat and instructed, "Remember to fasten your seat belt."

Nash obediently did as told.

Angelica drove the car out of the Inspection Office.

Nash thought about the case regarding Luna and the three other girls that Angelica was in charge of. Curious to know about it, he asked, "What did you find out at Garden of Heavenly Delights?"

Awkwardness took over Angelica. "I couldn't find anything. The owners and managers there all denied seeing those three girls. They also deleted the surveillance footage. It's most absurd that we can't figure out when those three girls went to the Garden of Heavenly Delights!"

Nash leaned back and closed his eyes to rest.

Based on what Luna and the two other girls had revealed, they went to the Garden of Heavenly Delights because their families were being threatened. They were then violated by an old man at the Garden of Heavenly Delights. Luna escaped unharmed due to being on her period.

The two individuals who were initially going to kill them mentioned a Mr. Duerson on the phone. This matter was definitely related to Duncan.

Duncan Duerson. Could the old man be the Mystique Loyalty Realm expert Duncan was keeping by his side? He did not look like someone so wicked, though.

Just when Nash was puzzled over this matter, he received a call from Brian again. He prayed it would not be another request for help and answered the call.

As soon as he did, Brian's anxious voice came from the other end. Grandmaster, my granddaughter has been kidnapped!"

Nash sighed inwardly. "When did this happen?"

"At around three in the morning, a group of people with masks broke into the clinic and took her away!"

Brian was so distressed that he was almost in tears.

His only precious granddaughter, what if something happened to her?

Nash felt a headache coming on as he asked again, "Have you offended anyone recently?"

Brian replied mournfully, "I'm a doctor, benevolent and generous. I only do good deeds. I don't have any enemies!"

"Is there anyone pursuing your granddaughter?"

If someone powerful and influential had failed to pursue Mireille, they might have just resorted to extreme measures.

Brian shook his head and replied, "My granddaughter has been helping out at the clinic ever since she graduated and rarely interacts with people outside!"

Right after he said this, a middle-aged woman who was arranging the plants in the clinic then spoke up, "Mr. Tanner, someone confessed to your granddaughter yesterday. He said his name was Duncan, the head of the Duerson family!"

Brian was stunned. "What happened after that?"

Brian's expression darkened.

The Duerson family was a first-class family in Jonford, but when did Duncan become the head of the family?

“Grandfather, I’m hanging up now. It’s probably their doing. I need to go and check it out!”

Nash sighed. “I’ll go with you.”

His dreams of going home to sleep were shattered again.

“Officer White, please take me to the Duerson family’s home!”

“Sure, here we go!” Angelica responded and then rerouted.

20 minutes later, Angelica and Nash got out of the car and headed toward the Duerson family’s mansion where the security guards outside stopped them from proceeding.

Angelica took out her credentials, her expression cold. “I’m here on behalf of the Inspection Office on an investigation. Do not interfere
