

CEO Bride 595

Chapter 595

“W-Who killed her? Have you found the murderer?” Horace roared as he clenched his fists, emotions spiking.

Jupiter had not expected Horace to confess immediately. He took a sip of his tea and asked calmly, “Where were you last night?”

Face red with anger, Horace glared at Jupiter and asked, “Are you suspecting me of killing my girlfriend?”

Jupiter slammed the table, his tone rising as he shouted, “Answer my question!”

Clearly frightened, Horace leaned back in his chair obediently and replied, “I was at Starry Sky Bar with a client last night!”

“Who was your client? Roughly what time were you there?”

Horace looked up at Jupiter. “I can’t disclose anything about my client.”

Jupiter sneered. “So, you’re not going to cooperate?”

Having calmed himself by now, Horace merely replied, "You can only detain me for 24 hours without evidence. By then, be prepared to receive a letter from my lawyer."

At the man's denial, Angelica coldly said, "It's because we have evidence that we arrested you. Your cooperation may lead to more lenient sentencing. If you resist, the severity might only increase.

"If you confess now and show remorse, you might even have a chance of suspending your death sentence."

At the mention of a suspended death sentence, Horace's pupils shrank faintly.

Jupiter caught this slight change in his expression. He took another sip of water from his thermos and followed up on what Angelica said,

"You know Geordi and Sorn, right?"

Horace nodded and admitted, "Yes, we're from the same village."

"Did you meet each other yesterday?" Jupiter continued and Horace shook his head at that.

"No, we haven't met for a long time."

Jupiter smiled. "All of you share the same hometown and ended up here in Jonford. Yet, you've not met up with them for a long time?"

Jupiter did not trust a suspect's words, especially someone like Horace, who seemed to be putting on an act from the beginning.

"There's a lot going on in my company. I don't have time to catch up with them," Horace replied, his demeanor calming considerably. On the surface, he appeared unperturbed.

Jupiter took out his phone and made a call. "Check the surveillance records at Starry Sky Bar last night for Horace." He then hung up the phone.

In the monitoring room, Melody and the others were watching things unfold in the interrogation room via the surveillance footage.

Finn's brows were furrowed as he pondered, "If Horace is indeed the elusive murderer who has slipped the police for three years, why would he suddenly leave such obvious evidence on Lori this time?"

Melody crossed her arms and echoed his thoughts, "And he's been in Jonford all this time."

Finn sighed. "There's too many things that aren't adding up. I'm not convinced that Horace is the murderer."

Hera wiped away her tears and choked out the words, "All the evidence is there. If it's not him, then who could it be?"

Finn smiled wryly. "Evidence can be fabricated, you know. Let's not speculate and let the professionals handle it."

Melody gave Finn a sidelong glance.

Soon, Jupiter received the surveillance footage from Starry Sky Bar on his phone. In the video, Horace was welcoming two men and two women at the entrance. They were all around 27 or 28 years old and dressed elegantly, exuding an air of affluence.

The timestamp on the surveillance footage was 8:00 pm. At 10:30 pm, Horace and the other four left the bar.

Jupiter's previous assumption that Horace had been drinking with Geordi and Sorn at Starry Sky Bar before assaulting Lori was completely overturned. He had not mentioned it earlier because there had been too many uncertainties in this case.

In the other two cases, the victims had not been violated, and only their kidneys were removed. However, there was evidence of assault on Lori. A serial killer would not likely make such a basic mistake.

“Where did you go at 10.30 pm last night?” Jupiter continued to ask.

“I went home! After meeting the client, I just went home to sleep. I even called Lori, but her phone was switched off!”