

CEO Bride 600

Chapter 600

“I... I don’t have her number!”

Geordi lowered his head, too afraid to meet Nash’s gaze.

Nash used the tip of his shining leather shoes to force Geordi to look up at him. “Meet my eyes when you’re talking to me. It’s the least you could do to show me some respect!”

He was speaking in a calm tone, but it was enough to send chills down one’s back.

Geordi felt like his head was about to explode.

He knew without a doubt that he would lose his life if Nash moved his foot even the slightest bit.

Salvatore’s shirt had become soaked with sweat.

All the buff men standing behind him were shaking as well.

They could not understand why they felt so afraid when Nash was not even directing his anger toward them.

It was not a feeling they had ever experienced, not even when they had to fight the Black Tiger Hall.

Nash asked calmly, “I’ll repeat myself. Can you get in touch with her?”

The stench of urine wafted through the room. Geordi was so scared he had wet himself. His lips shuddered as he said, "I... All I know is where she's at..."

He wanted to know if Gecrotica and Son were involved in the crime by Oxy.

Geordi took in several deep breaths before he began speakin

Horace invited us to meet up the day before yesterday. He invited us for supper, and we said yes because we were hungry and exhausted after a long day of work..

He treated us to barbeque and several tapachiatas of white wine he'd been saving. After finishing our meal and drinks, he took us to the red-light district and told us he'd pay for whatever we wanted to have!"

"We were initially against it, but the women there were all so gorgeous. And it had been over six months since we had any physical contact with a woman because we've been so busy with work.

"Sorn and I decided we'd allow ourselves a night of fun. After all,

Horace was paying!

"Just as we were about to head inside, Horace got a phone call and told us he had a work emergency he needed to deal with. He gave us some money and told us to enjoy ourselves, but we lost interest because he was gone. Sorn and I decided to just go to bed instead!"

“Horace called us the next morning and asked us about our night. He felt like he had been a party pooper when I told him we went to bed after he took his leave.

“He wanted to make things up to us, and sent us a woman who looked so gorgeous she’d have no problem claiming she was a movie star our way. He told us he’d already paid!”

“That night... Yesterday, Sorn and I went to the address Horace had sent us to meet that woman... She blindfolded us and took us to a ghetto. And then... she gave us both blowjobs!”

Geordi lowered his head when he finished speaking.

Now, everyone at the freight company knew what had happened.

There was no doubt his wife would learn of this soon too.

Nash gave Sorn a side glance. “Anything you would like to add on?”

Sorn had a fearful look in his eyes, and he hurriedly shook his head, “N

-No... He’s already gone into great detail!”

Nash got to his feet and headed outside.

Geordi and Sorn had been manipulated. They had nothing to do with Lori's death.

Now, he needed to locate Susie Gin.

After Nash left the office, Salvatore and his subordinates heaved massive sighs of relief.

”

Salvatore gazed at the two men and said with disappointment, Getting up to such shenanigans when you're married with children? I'd like to see how you're going to explain yourself when you go home for the holidays!”-

Geordi stammered, “S-S-Salvatore, do we still have to go to the Inspection Office?”

Salvatore thought about it for a moment before saying, “Yes, of course. I promised Angelica I'd bring you two to the Inspection Office.

I can't go back on what I've promised, can I?”

“But...”

“Do I need to escort you there myself?”

Geordi was about to retort, but Salvatore cut him off.