Chapter 77

Although his eyes were closed in meditation, he did not miss any of the conversations happening around him.

Seeing Kai walk over with Helena, he turned and stood in front of the two.

Kai had just witnessed the horror of this masked man. He put away his usual arrogance and politely laughed. "We... just wanted to offer a toast to the warden!"

Helena cooed in agreement, "Yes, the warden cares for the country and the people. He defends the Northern Territory. We should show our respect!"

"Scram!"

Nash's voice was icy cold.

The moment his aura emerged, a wave of chill instantly enveloped the two.

The glasses in Kai's and Helen's hands mysteriously shattered, causing the wine to spill all over them.

Walter saw his grandson stopped by the Smiling Grim Reaper and quickly got up to walk over to them. "What's going on?"

Kai said with a trembling voice, "We... We just wanted to have a drink with the warden..."

Helena pleaded, "Grandpa, you must help us... We admire the warden a lot..."

"Are you the girlfriend Kai has been seeing lately?"

“Yay... We won!”

Hera nearly jumped up in excitement.

This was 1.5 million!

Even the peak annual profit of Baroque could not reach 1.5 million.

Nash heard Hera’s joyous voice, and the corner of his mouth slowly curved up.

The woman was so happy from just 1.5 million.

If he gave her 450 million, would she offer herself right away?

Meanwhile, Helena sat back down.

Rooney quickly pocketed Helena’s bank card, saying, “What are you kids doing, placing bets and all?! What was said before is no longer valid!”

“What’s the matter? You can’t even afford this much?”

Skadi looked at Helena with a face full of mockery.

Lauren and Harrison also showed signs of displeasure on their faces.

Then, Hubert laughed dryly. “We’re all family here. Let’s not take a joke too seriously!”

Lauren snorted coldly. “A joke?”

She raised an eyebrow at Helena. “Helena, you tell me. Was this all a joke?”
