Chapter 196 Not Appreciate It

The man curled his lips, as if he had long been certain of something, and no longer spoke. Aurora stopped at the door, gritting her teeth angrily. "What do you want me to do?"

"Stay, until ... I completely recover." Zac slowly sat up "After all, I was injured because of you. Is this request too much?" Compared to the request of the Walton family when Terry was injured, Zac felt that he was being generous enough. However, Aurora did not appreciate it at all. "Alright." She pinched her palm and cursed Zac silently.

From that minute onwards, Zac asked her to do anything for him, even peeling an orange. Aurora's unwillingness was written all over her face.

Zac looked down at the magazine without looking at her and casually said, "You should be glad that I only hurt my head and elbow. If it were more serious, I'm afraid you would never be able to leave me this life." Aurora threw the orange waste into the trash can. Thank you for your mercy, Mr. Buchanna."

"You're welcome."

Zac knew what he was doing.

He wanted her to stay by his side no matter how.

He didn't care if she wanted to or not.

"Aurora, bring me a coffee."

"Aurora, hand me the book."

"Aurora, type a document."

Zac ordered without making a single step. Aurora was as busy as a bee, sweating profusely.

“Mr. Buchanna, if there is anything I can do, please tell me.” Alma, feeling sorry for Aurora.

No matter what, Aurora was not used to being a servant.

However, Zac glanced at Alma without paying much attention to her words.

Aurora sighed as she brought over the laptop.

“The Buchanna Group has publicly clarified...” Zac made Aurora his temporary secretary without caring about her identity and position. He dictated and Aurora typed.

Aurora frowned and glanced at Zac a few times.

She couldn’t believe that he could remember so many terms that sounded like tongue-twisters.

Zac had slowed down on purpose, yet Aurora still expended a lot of effort.

Half an hour later, the document was finally finished.

“Take a look...”

“No, send it to Carter

” Zac didn’t even look at it as he instructed.

Aurora stared at his eyes for a while before saying, "Aren't you afraid that I changed the contents?"

"You won't," said Zac with a smile on his face.

He was sure of that.

For some reason, at that moment, a nameless fire burst out in Aurora's heart. She felt seen through and controlled by him.

Just as Aurora was about to argue with him, the servant came in, followed by several executives of the Buchanna Group.

They entered the door and saw Aurora standing in front of Zac wearing pajamas.

Her hair looked casual.

INAW

They felt as if they had accidentally entered the home of a couple.

"Mr. Buchanna..."

They looked at each other and said,

"We'll wait outside!"

Aurora was stunned too. She wanted to go upstairs.

But on second thought, it would make things more complicated if she came and went as if she lived here.

She didn't know what to do.

"Aurora, bring some tea," Zac said with a natural expression.

The people of the Buchanna Group were all stunned. They only heard that Zac was injured by the Jarrett family. But they didn't expect to see Aurora taking care of him at his home!

They couldn't stop wondering, are the rumors all true?

Are Mr. Buchanna and his bankrupted ex-wife getting back to each other again?

Aurora gritted her teeth and glared at Zac before rushing into the kitchen. She was now sure that he was deliberately tormenting her.

He knew that the people of the Buchanna Group were coming, but he did not tell her in advance. Wasn't this clearly letting others misunderstand their relationship?

"You want to ruin my reputation, right? Don't forget, you have a wife now!" Aurora thought hard, poured tea with the hottest water, and carried it into the living room. They were already discussing business. Aurora walked over very naturally. She put down the teacup and had no intention of leaving.

The business manager who was reporting paused, waiting for Aurora to leave. But in the next second, Aurora sat down.

"Don't look at me. Mr. Buchanna can't take care of himself." "Right, Mr. Buchanna?" Aurora smiled. If he denied, she could take the opportunity to leave.

Zac looked at her, his handsome face overflowing with a rare gentleness, "Yes, I am severely injured." Aurora didn't say anything She just gritted her teeth. Stupid!

"Let's continue." When Zac retracted his gaze from Aurora, it suddenly turned cold.

“Yes.” The business manager did not dare to hesitate. Since Zac did not mind an outsider like Aurora, they had to continue as usual. The cooperation with the Oconnell Group has come to an end. The next step is to follow the Bennet Group... It started to be related to Aurora. Aurora became more interested.

As an outsider, Aurora heard all the information about the resources within the Buchanna Group, such as the price, and the working process. During the meeting, the executives couldn't figure out Zac's mind. They looked at each other in silence. They were puzzled, thinking, “Can we talk about confidential information in front of Aurora? She is from the Bennet Group! If she makes use of the information, the Buchanna Group would suffer a great loss.” In fact, based on the relationship between Aurora and the Buchanna Group, she was very likely to do that.

However, Zac's attention was not distracted at all.

He stared at the message on the iPad as calm as usual. “Five more points lower for the first stage of investment.”

“No.”

The crowd was stunned. Who dared to interrupt Zac in the meeting? They looked at each other and their eyes were all gathered on Aurora.

Aurora had been taking notes carefully. She was been studying investment recently. According to the capital strength of the Buehanna Group, if the fund was further reduced, it would greatly affect the profits in the later stages, and it would also delay the progress of the project. That didn't sound like what Zac would “Even if he targeted the Bennet Group and me, there was no need to waste his money.” Aurora thought. And it would also affect the Bennet Group.

Aurora blurted it out. Yet then, she found it was not appropriate timing. She pursed her lips and said, “I am speaking the truth. Don't you think the same?”

However, none of the people of the Buchanna Group dared to refute Zac's words. They all lowered their heads, not daring to speak. Aurora was stunned at their reactions.

Was she wrong? She was indeed a newcomer to this field. After hesitating for a while, she looked at Zac. He always said that business is business. “Mr. Buchanna, was I wrong?”

CEO is Chasing Ex Wife Back - Chapter 197

Chapter 197 Seeing It Through

The executives of the Buchanna Group also looked over at Zac after Aurora asked the question. They hope Zac to reconsider it. Otherwise, there would be a huge uproar within the board if they found out about that.

Under their expectant gazes, Zac slowly said, “You are right. Doing this will indeed affect the final benefits.” The executives’ eyes lit up. There was a chance that Zac would change his mind. “Ms. Bennet, you are indeed wise.”

“Yes, yes, yes...”

Aurora paid no attention to their flatter. She looked at Zac and calmly said, “But you still insist on doing this, right?” Zac smiled. Unexpectedly, among these people, the one who understood his thoughts the most was actually Aurora.

Zac said, “Yes.” The executives once again lost hope.

They didn’t have the confidence to change Zac’s mind, nor could they figure out what he was thinking. Aurora turned her head and met his gaze. There was still some uncertainty in her eyes. “Can I know the reason?” she asked. Since Zac allowed her to be in this meeting, it meant that he had tacitly agreed that she could intervene.

She waited for a long time, but he did not respond. When Aurora was about to give up, Zac said, “Look at the cooperation case between the Buchanna Group and Cosmos Group two years ago. You will understand.”

Aurora wrote it down in the notebook immediately.

“Go on,” said Zac. He didn’t want to waste time.

The executives hurriedly adjusted their states, “The next report is related...”

The meeting continued for nearly half an hour. Aurora had been taking note until Zac said, “Let’s end it here today.”

Aurora’s wrist was already a little sore.

“Mr. Buchanna, have a good rest. Goodbye.” The executives got up and left.

As soon as they went out, they gathered together and gossiped non-stop.

“What’s going on? Mr. Buchanna and his ex-wife seem to have a tacit understanding!”

“And she lives in Mr. Buchanna’s house!”

“Be quiet. Don’t let the company know about this. Do you remember it?”

“Yes, yes, yes we won’t tell anyone.”

As soon as they walked out of the villa,

Dalwin’s car drove in.

He turned his head to look at executives of the Buchanna Group and frowned,

“Why are they smiling so strangely?”

Then, he entered the villa with the medicine and fruit and saw a very special scene.

Aurora was arguing with Zac with something in her hand.

Zac had a smile in his eyes as he let her shout at him.

Dalwin raised his hand and rubbed his eyes. He must have seen it wrongly!

Was this person Zac?

Zac, you lied to me. You are a hypocrite who goes back on his word.”

Zac was silent.

Dalwin gasped He could now confirm that it wasn't his hallucination. Zac was crazy.

Zac wouldn't allow himself to be scolded like that.

Whoever did this to him shall disappear from the world silently.

Dalwin coughed and walked over. “Zac, are you feeling better?”

Aurora snorted and angrily went upstairs to the room.

She had already been a servant for him for a day, but he was still unwilling to let her go!

This was oppression, a threat.

Aurora sat on the sofa, pondering how to get away,

After she left, Zac's resumed his cold face. "What did the Jarrett family say?"

Dalwin shook his head. He put the things down and sat down on the other side.

"Wesley's attitude is not bad, said that they would take responsibility for your injuries, but Henry..."

Dalwin paused, then continued, "This morning, he just went home from a hangover at the bar. It seems that he did not take this matter seriously at all."

Who did he drink with last night?" Zac narrowed his eyes and looked up at the tightly closed door.

"Some of his rich friends, I suppose. Not sure." After Dalwin finished speaking, he realized that Zac's expression was not right. "You mean, someone did inside job?"

Zac did not speak.

Dalwin suddenly thought of something. "When I sent you out of the hospital, I saw a car from your company parked nearby. Whose car was it?"

The more he thought about it, the more confused he became.

"If it's someone from within the Buchanna Group, then it makes sense, said Zac in a deep voice.

"You suspect that there is a mole in your company?"

"I'm not sure yet. I need to check," said Zac as he placed the laptop on the table. "Keep this from Aurora for now."

Dalwin understood.

"You are using the Bennet Group as bait?"

If it remained peaceful, it would be very difficult for the people with ulterior motives in the Buchanna Group to reveal themselves, and it would be very difficult to investigate.

So, Zac used the qualifications to develop the project together in New York as bait.

This project was very important to the Buchanna Group, and the person behind the scenes would definitely take action because of greed.

Zac was waiting for the evidence.

"That's why you're acting so weird!"

Dalwin slapped his thigh. "Jesus, Zac!" he said.

But the next second, he hesitated.

"If Aurora finds out that you used her like this... She will..."

Aurora already hated him a lot.

L

Things would go worth without a doubt.

"She won't." Zac smiled confidently. "Because my wish to cooperate with the Bennet Group is sincere."

He admitted that he would use Aurora in the process, but the final result would satisfy her.

Dalwin leaned against the sofa and took a deep breath. "You are really..."

Before he could finish his sentence, Zac's phone rang. It was a call from the lawyer.

Zac did not want to pick up, but when he saw Aurora coming out of the upstairs room,

he took the phone and went to the home office with a cold face.

Before closing the door, he once again looked at Dalwin, indicting him to keep the secret.

Dalwin nodded repeatedly, indicating that he understood.

As soon as Aurora went downstairs, Dalwin went over, "Zac's injuries are not a problem, right?"

"I don't know. I'm not a doctor." Aurora was hungry. Not only did she have to take care of Zac, but she also had to attend meetings with him.

Since he was tormenting her like this, she had to eat more food from his refrigerator to compensate for her grievances.

Dalwin watched her go to the kitchen and slowly followed.

"Aurora, can I ask you something?"

"I don't think I know the answer to your question, Mr. Villson." Aurora opened the refrigerator door, scanned it up and down, and took out the most expensive food, which was a box of strawberries.

In front of Dalwin, she washed a lot of strawberries.

Dalwin scratched his head. He felt that when Aurora got angry, she was even harder to read than Zac.

“In fact, Mr. Villson, I suppose you can answer one of my questions first.”

Aurora handed over the strawberries she had just washed, looked at Dalwin, and asked word by word, “Has something happened to the Buchanna Group recently?” Dalwin didn’t expect the question. He nearly swallowed the entire strawberry.

Seeing his reaction, Aurora smiled even more, “I guessed right, no?” Dalwin couldn’t say anything. Cold sweat dripped down Dalwin’s forehead. He thought, why did you and Zac divorce? You guys are a perfect match!

Aurora stared at Dalwin and said slowly,

“The moment Zac announced that he was going to cooperate with the Bennet Group, many voices of opposition rose within the Buchanna Group. However, he insisted on working with the Bennet Group.” What is he trying to do?”

CEO is Chasing Ex Wife Back - Chapter 198

Chapter 198 Jealousy

Dalwin laughed, “I ... I don’t know. You have to ask him.” As he spoke, Dalwin hurriedly took a strawberry and stuffed it into his mouth. Aurora just looked at Dalwin. She smiled and said, “I thought, with a good relationship like you two, everything could be shared.”

“Ahem.” Dalwin punched his chest and coughed.

“Mr. Villson, be careful.” Aurora smiled.

Although Dalwin did not say anything, Aurora was very sure that Zac had another purpose, and Dalwin knew it. Otherwise, Dalwin wouldn’t have reacted like this. Beside the door, Zac suddenly appeared He stared at the coughing Dalwin and frowned, "What's wrong?" "I should go now. I still have things to do!" Dalwin shook his head and ran out of the door.

"What did you do to him?" Zac stared at Aurora with anger. Aurora ate the strawberry and said,

"Nothing. We're just chatting. He's a man. What can I do to him? I'm now restricted by someone not to go out and I can't even talk now?"

Zac felt nervous.

Do you think that I have restricted your freedom?"

Aurora looked at Zac and said nothing.

Behind Zac, Alma lowered her head and held back her laughter, "Sir, it's time for me to prepare lunch. You can go to the garden for a walk with Ms. Bennet first. The weather is good today."

"Forget it," said Zac, staring at Aurora for a long time.

Zac knew that Aurora would not be willing to walk with him.

Zac also knew that Aurora was constantly thinking of leaving this house.

However, Zac didn't want her to leave.

Zac turned around and entered the home office. He slammed the door shut.

Aurora was stunned. Auróra was surprised that Zac didn't order her to do something.

Just as Aurora was pondering, Alma had already started to prepare the ingredients.

"Alma, can you teach me how to cook a few dishes?"

“You want to learn?” Alma was a little surprised. She knew that Aurora was also a rich young lady in the past. If there were no accident happened to her family, she would not have had such a difficult time.

“As a person, I have to have the ability to feed myself,” Aurora replied with a smile.

Aurora knew that when one could no longer rely on anyone, he or she had to learn everything. Aurora was already used to it.

Alma felt distressed for Aurora

But soon, Alma restrained her emotions, “Then wash the cucumber and radish.

Cut it into shred. We’ll start cooking from the cold dishes first.”

“OK!”

Aurora happily went to the other side.

Alma looked at her as Aurora hummed a song and washed the vegetables. Alma had a sense of loss. She thought, if that had not happened back then, Aurora would not have...

Aurora had turned all the bad emotions of being trapped here by Zac into the motivation to work hard to learn how to cook.

But Aurora was a newbie after all.

Therefore, at noon and night, there were situations where the thickness of ingredients varied.

“Alma, what’s going on?” Zac looked at the cold dish and sighed deeply.

Without waiting for Alma to explain, Aurora hurriedly said, “I pestered Alma and asked her to teach me how to cook.

Don’t blame her.”

Zac frowned

“What a waste of time,” he said in a low voice as he glanced at Aurora’s bandaged fingertips.

Aurora snorted indignantly.

Aurora insisted on learning. She thought Zac was not qualified to determine if she was wasting time.

Actually, it would be a waste of time for Aurora to stay in this villa indeed.

Deep into the night, Aurora had intended to sleep.

Hearing the sound of crying outside,

Aurora felt it was creepy.

Aurora opened the door and looked downstairs.

Wenny was in front of Zac, crying miserably. “Zac, I was temporarily transferred to another place by the company to participate in an event. Only then did know that you were injured.

Once I got off the plane, I came to see you. Don't be angry with me."

Zac only responded indifferently.

Wenny reached out and gently touched the wound on Zac's forehead.

"It must be very painful, right? Henry is really crazy!"

Aurora frowned. It seemed that Wenny already knew the cause and effect. Then what did she want to do? It was already late at night...

Sure enough, after a few words, Wenny weakly leaned against Zac's chest.

Wenny drew circles on his chest with her tender fingertips. "I'm really worried about you. I've already rejected all my work. I'll stay here to take care of you for the next few days."

"No..."

Before Zac could finish his words, Wenny had already moved closer to his lips.

Because Zac's elbow was injured, it was inconvenient for him to move.

Wenny held that hand tightly. So, she made it.

Under the dim light, Aurora clearly saw this scene.

She closed the door.

Aurora thought, after this night, I would be free.

Since there was someone taking care of Zac, there was no need for me to stay.

Aurora lay on the bed. She closed her eyes and hinted that she should hurry to sleep.

But her mind was filled with various kinds of thoughts. What Aurora could not accept the most was why she was so upset over the intimate actions of Zac and Wenny.

As dawn approached, Wenny's laughter rang out from outside the door, waking up Aurora who had just fallen asleep.

"Zac, I will make breakfast for you and make soup, OR?"

Aurora opened her eyes and looked at the ceiling. Her hatred for Wenny had only increased. It had nothing to do with Zac. It was just because Wenny had ruined her beautiful dream. Aurora glanced at the time on the phone screen and stepped off the bed.

As soon as she opened the door, Aurora smelled the burning smell coming from the kitchen downstairs.

After that, Aurora saw Wenny frowning coquettishly and complaining that Alma did not help her well. "Zac, this servant is stupid. Look at how she made my hand get injured!" Zac was silent. Alma was at a loss and could only apologize, "Miss Swon, I'm really sorry,

I..."

As soon as Wenny heard the way that Alma addressed her, Wenny became annoyed. Wenny acted like a spoiled child and tugged on Zac's arm.

"Zac, I'll get my maid to serve you in the afternoon. I really don't like this person." As Wenny spoke, she heard the noise upstairs again. Wenny stopped blaming Alma. Looking at Aurora who was walking down the steps, Wenny was so jealous. Aurora raised her eyes and met Wenny's gaze.

Aurora's eyes turned cold. Aurora wanted to teach Wenny a lesson. It was also a good chance for Aurora to vent the anger she had suffered from Zac these two days. However, Wenny's reaction was beyond everyone's expectations. When she saw Aurora go downstairs, she actually suppressed her jealousy.

"Zac was injured, and I was not by his side. Thanks to you for taking care of him. I have to thank you on behalf of Zac." Thanks? Oh, by the way, I heard that the Bennet Group has gotten the right to cooperate with the Buchanna Group today. I don't know much about business, but if you need any help, you can contact this person. He is my father's secretary." Wenny smiled, and her beautiful face was full of pride.

Wenny thought, it doesn't matter that Aurora could stay with Zac now. Only a woman who could help Zac in her career would be the mistress of this family!

CEO is Chasing Ex Wife Back - Chapter 199

Chapter 199 Not Everyone Is Qualified

Wenny was certain that Aurora obtained this contract by selling her body. As a woman, Wenny understood how quickly benefits came at a price like that. With just a glance, Aurora saw the provocation in Wenny's eyes.

"Don't be polite with me. You are Zac's partner. In the future, you will be my friend. I hope we can live in peace in the future." Hearing this, Aurora almost laughed out loud on the spot. How could they coexist? What's more, Aurora didn't even bother to stay with Wenny!

"No need, Miss Swon. I don't need your company to help me with anything." Aurora directly went around Wenny, "Mr. Buchanna shouldn't need me to be here anymore, right?"

Zac frowned.

He was about to deny it.

Wenny took a step forward. “Because of you, Zac suffered... You aren’t leaving, are you?”

Wenny winkled and added, “Of course, you have always been a heartless person. Now the Walton family is also in a mess because of you.”

Zac glanced over, not wanting Wenny to continue..

But Aurora took the initiative to block in front of Wenny, holding her hand.

“What happened to the Walton family?”

“Terry had a big fight with his father because of you. Bob was so angry that he had a heart attack. When he was sent to the hospital for rescue, he almost could not be saved.”

Wenny raised her eyebrows and pretended to be pulled over by Aurora. Wenny stuck close to Aurora’s ear and spoke in a voice that only the two of them could hear.

“Zac was beaten like this because of you. The Walton family is not at peace because of you. If I were you, I would not Have the face to stay in this city.

“You still want to work with him as Zac’s ex-wife?

“Aurora, you should have some self-awareness.”

Then, Wenny suddenly fell backward.

“Ah!”

Wenny directly fell to the ground, and it seemed that she was pushed down by Aurora.

“My child...”

Wenny shouted in panic. Her eyes were misty as she stared at Aurora. It was a silent accusation.

Alma was also frightened and hurried over from behind, supporting Wenny.

But Wenny kept screaming in pain.

Her forehead was also covered in a cold sweat. It did not look like she was pretending. Her acting was not that good Aurora stood there, and her hands were slowly tightening.

Even if she had to lose the child in her belly, Wenny had to put on an act.

Aurora wanted to keep the child in her belly so much back then, but...

Aurora watched this as Zac rushed over. At this time, he had forgotten that his elbow was injured, and he couldn't move.

“Call a car and send her to the hospital,”

Zac ordered,

“Zac, I'm so scared. Will something happen to our child?”

Wenny was in so much pain that she was drenched in a cold sweat.

Perhaps it was because Wenny was helpless, or perhaps it was because Wenny was afraid. Her fingers held Zac's shirt tightly, causing countless wrinkles.

"Ah, Miss Swon is bleeding." Alma had just called for the driver to come in when she saw the blood under Wenny's skirt.

"Zac..."

With Wenny's weak shout, Zac did not care about anything else and ordered, "Alma, don't let Aurora go."

Then, Zac picked up Wenny and walked out quickly.

The roar of the car sounded. It drove out of the villa gate at the fastest speed.

Aurora stood in place. Her face was pale. She looked down at her fingertips and then stared at the pool of blood on the ground.

Seeing Aurora behave like this, Alma thought she was frightened. So, Alma comforted Aurora, "Miss Swon has shown signs of bleeding before. The doctor also said that she should stay at home to take care of her baby. It must have been an accident just now. Don't take it to heart."

Alma thought, Aurora was a good girl.

She would never do that.

Even if Aurora did it, she must be careless.

Aurora lowered her eyes and asked softly,

"Why can someone like her be a mother?”

Her voice was very soft and Alma could not hear it.

Before Alma could ask in detail, Aurora had already run out.

“Alas...”

Ahna followed a few steps forward. She sighed and stopped.

“Wrong, all wrong.”

It was in the hospital.

Listening to the diagnosis of the gynecologist, Zac became angrier.

“If it happened again, this child will probably be lost. You must be careful and take care of the pregnant woman’s body and emotions...”

The doctor instructed some details.

Carter came and said, “Mr. Buchanna, I just saw Ms. Bernet outside the hospital.”

In the past, Zac would always react when he heard Aurora’s name.

But today, Zac rubbed his temples and walked towards Wenny’s ward.

Carter followed behind and felt that something was wrong, but he didn’t know.

Not long after Aurora stayed outside the door, she saw Faye rushing over with the nanny and servant.

“All of you go upstairs and see how Wenny is.” Faye ran so quickly that her head was covered in sweat. She panted. Just as Faye finished speaking and wanted to rest for a while, she saw Aurora.

Faye froze, “You...”

Faye looked around and dragged Aurora to the other side of the hospital.

“You are crazy. You just provoked the Jarrett family, yet you treat Wenny like this. Let me tell you, this time, her father will definitely not let you off.

You better find a good way out.”

Faye said a few words, but there was no response from Aurora.

“I only told you this because of my relationship with your father in the past. Don’t think that your luck is always so good!”

If it was in the past, perhaps Zac would not really do anything to Aurora.

But this time, in front of Zac, Aurora pushed Wenny at his home and even hurt the child in her belly.

Any man would not be able to tolerate this.

Hearing this, Aurora reacted.

“You had a child before you met my dad, right?”

Aurora was very sure that she had investigated the matter of Faye for a while, and the information would not be wrong.

“No!” Faye’s eyes widened. Aurora did not bother to argue with Faye. She took a step forward, and her eyes were filled with endless coldness. “The child is a gift from the heavens.

How many people want to be a parent but can’t be? Tell Wenny, don’t use the child as a bargaining chip.” At that instant, Faye was frightened by Aurora. Faye took a few steps back.

“It was you who wanted to harm the child in Wenny’s belly. Why are you saying this sort of thing?” As soon as Faye asked, Faye realized something. “Could it be that Wenny herself...” still

There was a chill in Aurora’s beautiful eyes. If I wanted to harm the child in her belly, she would have had a miscarriage. Aurora disdained using those despicable and shameless methods. However, Aurora wouldn’t allow others to trample her bottom line again and again!

Faye looked at Aurora’s expression, and fear rose in her heart, “I ... I know, I will tell Wenny.” At that moment, Aurora was like an envoy from hell who was asking for a debt of killing lives. Her appearance was truly terrifying.

CEO is Chasing Ex Wife Back - Chapter 200

Chapter 200 Making the Wrong Choice

Faye quickly entered the hospital. When she arrived at the door of the ward, she met Zac.

“Zac, how is Wenny?”

“She is still unconscious.” Zac glanced back at the window of the ward and walked towards the director’s office. Carter followed. Faye shook her head and sighed, pushing the door open and entering.

“Wenny?” She shouted, but the person on the bed still had her eyes closed. There was no reaction. Faye carefully closed the door and locked

“They went to the director’s office. If you wake up, then...” Before Faye finished speaking, Wenny had already opened her eyes. She waved her hand, “Quick, bring me something to eat. I’m starving.” Just now, Zac and Carter were still there. Wenny did not dare to move. She was afraid that she would be exposed. It was too hard for her to pretend. Faye quickly poured Wenny some water and took the banana over. While eating, Wenny asked, “Zac is very worried about me, right?” Faye nodded slightly.

“I knew it. As long as I dared to do this, I wouldn’t be afraid that Zac wouldn’t be worried about me. Now, he must have already begun to suspect Aurora. It won’t be long before I can get Aurora out of Zac’s life.”

As Wenny spoke, she became more and more proud.

Seeing Wenny like this and recalling what Aurora said just now, Faye understood everything.

Aurora indeed did not do anything. It was Wenny who wronged Aurora.

“Wenny, you are acting in front of Zac. Are you not afraid of being discovered by him?”

Wenny frowned and threw the banana peel in front of Faye. “What are you talking about? Who acted?”

Wenny had already thought it through.

As long as Wenny did not admit it, no one would be able to find out.

Even if Zac saw something, so what?

Because of this fall, it was a fact that Wenny had to lay on the bed to keep the fetus. As long as Zac still cared about this child, Wenny would have a chance, Faye sighed silently and wanted to persuade Wenny, but she was interrupted by a knock on the door.

Wenny immediately lay back in the quilt, pretending that she had just woken up and still felt uncomfortable.

Faye went over to open the door.

Carter stood at the door and handed over some daily necessities. "This is what Mr. Buchanna asked me to prepare for Miss Swon."

"Where is Zac?"

Wenny leaned over and asked.

"Zac has something to deal with. He should be back soon." Carter said, and his eyes were looking straight.

Wenny lay on the bed with her eyes rolling around.

"Alright then, I won't disturb him."

Wenny was out of character. She did not cry or make a fuss

She covered herself with the quilt. She fell asleep with her back to them.

Faye took the opportunity to step forward, "Wenny still feels very uncomfortable. In a while, let the doctor come over to take a look. This time, it was very dangerous for her. You must pay attention."

“Yes.”

Carter nodded and looked in Wenny’s direction. He closed the door and left.

“Your dad will come over after the meeting. You should sleep first.” Faye closed the door and walked to the bed.

Wenny pulled the corners of her lips and smiled proudly.

Faye looked out of the window.

Aurora might not have left yet, and Zac had most likely gone to look for Aurora.

Could it be that Wenny and the child in her belly added together were not as important as Aurora?

Faye muttered in her mind. She looked at Wenny on the bed and wondered if she made the wrong choice.

But if Aurora was that important to Zae, then nothing would have happened to the Bennet family back then.

What was Zac thinking?

At this time, outside of the hospital hall.

Zac saw Aurora, who was playing with a wild cat at the entrance of the hospital.

The smile on her face was so bright and natural that he rarely saw it.

Aurora’s slender wrist reached out and gently touched the hair on the little cat’s head. That gentle movement was enough to show her patience and kindness.

How could someone like her make a move against the pregnant Wenny?

No matter how much she hated Wenny,
Aurora should target Zac.

Zac stopped in his tracks because he understood this.

Perhaps, Zac really shouldn't trap Aurora
by his side.

It wasn't that he couldn't, but that he no longer had the qualifications.

Zac looked over again. Aurora picked up the phone and then left in a hurry.

The last trace of warmth in Zac's eyes disappeared.

When he lifted his eyes again, there was an unfathomable coldness.

They were indeed strangers.

The call Aurora received was from Abel.

He said a lot on the phone. The more Aurora listened, the more confused she became. She was anxious to take a taxi to the race team. Then, Aurora was told that today was the official day of the race team disbanding.

There were also a few reporters waiting to interview Terry.

"The news was released a long time ago. It was originally a gathering of people from the race team. I didn't expect that things would be so complicated. I don't know why these reporters came.

“It probably has something to do with the Walton family’s recent business.”

Abel sighed and said apologetically to Aurora, “I’m sorry to have called you here again because of the race team. However, Terry is stubborn. He won’t listen to anyone else...”

Abel scratched his head. “If he gets angry because of those reporters, please help me stop him. It’s not easy for the race team to get to where it is today. Although Black Rider is going to quit, others may still have to stay in this circle.”

Aurora lowered her eyes and thought about it./

Aurora understood what Abel meant.

Thinking about what Wenny said today,

Aurora wanted to meet Terry and make things clear.

“Alright, I understand. I will do my best.”

“Then I am relieved.” Abel breathed a sigh of relief and let the others clean up the room.

When Terry comes, he’ll let those reporters come in and take a few photos.

It can be considered to be worthy of the fate of everyone working together for so long.

Not long after, Terry arrived.

But he did not come alone. Connor was behind him.

“Aurora.”

“I heard that Wenny went to the hospital again. Are you alright?” Terry asked.

Even now, Terry was the first to care about Aurora’s situation.

“What do you think Wenny can do to me?” Aurora smiled.

“That’s true.”

“Alright, everyone, get ready. I’ll let the reporters in.” Abel wanted to hurry up and let the reporters leave.

As soon as Abel opened the door, all the reporters rushed in. At first, all the cameras were aimed at Terry, but they soon found Aurora beside him. Suddenly, a reporter rushed forward.

“Ms. Bennet, your performance in the Black Rider Team was amazing. You also created a new record of the sand race. Do you have any thoughts of signing with another team in the future?” “Sign a contract?” Aurora did not react. All of a sudden, the other cameras caught Ms. Bennet, please talk about what you think of female racers!” “Ms. Bennet, when did you start coming into contact with racing cars?”

Before Connor and the others could block the reporters besieging Terry, their direction had changed and they all surrounded Aurora. Aurora couldn’t handle it by herself, so she looked at Terry repeatedly. Terry replied. Terry was about to go over when he was stopped by Connor.

“Mr. Walton, if you go over first, those reporters will ask about your relationship with Aurora. Your father has just been discharged from the hospital. You should be in low profile.”
