Chapter 216 He Regrets It

As soon as Alma came out, she saw that Zac was outside.

“Mr. Buchanna... you heard it all?” Alma felt sorry. She should not have said those words. Otherwise, Aurora wouldn’t have been annoyed. Alma was just being kind and wanted to bring Aurora and Zac back together.

At the very least, they could stop hating the other party so much. Zac turned back and said, “Take good care of yourself. Don’t worry about anything else.” Alma nodded.

The person who knew the most about her physical condition, besides herself, was Zac. Alma sighed. At this age, she had long stopped caring about life and death. At night, Aurora was about to go to sleep. Aurora was called to the study by Zac, and he asked her to type some documents. “Mr. Buchanna, these are all the Buchanna Group’s project proposals. I’m an outsider, isn’t it inappropriate?” Aurora frowned.

Aurora didn’t want to be criticized in the future. Moreover, it would be late after finishing that. Zac looked up at Aurora without saying a word, but his cold eyes conveyed his meaning. Aurora pursed her lips and sat down helplessly. Two hours later, Aurora was dozing off. “Continue.”

Zac threw another document in front of her. Aurora was dizzy. When she took it, she almost knocked over the teacup on the table. At this time, a burst of cracking sound suddenly came from outside the door. “Not me.” Zac immediately got up and headed toward the living room.

Aurora chased after him only to see Alma lying next to the sofa, already unconscious. “Call a car and go to the hospital!” “Alright.” Aurora saw the anxious look on Zac’s face with her own eyes. He carried Alma and walked out through the door in a few steps.

Aurora got nervous and hurriedly followed him out. The hospital corridor in the early morning was quiet.

The lights in the operating room had been on. Aurora curled up on the bench and Zac sat opposite her. The two of them looked at each other in silence.

The words that Alma said in the afternoon lingered in Aurora’s mind. Zac was not a cold person, and he was forced to be like that by the plight of life. Aurora lowered her head.

It seemed that she had never thought about why Zac always regarded the Bennet family as his enemy. The hatred that he kept talking about, in the end... There came a bang. Alma was pushed out by the doctor. Because Alma was a patient brought by Zac, the main surgeon was the deputy director on duty tonight.

“Mr. Buchanna, let’s go to my office to talk.” The doctor looked worried. Zac seemed to have expected this outcome and followed him without any expression. Aurora carried their coats and followed them.

“After the treatment, the patient will soon regain consciousness. The cancer cells in her body are also under control, but it is inevitable that they will spread.

Th the past few years, you and the patient have been working hard, but unfortunately, it’s inevitable.”

Zac clenched his fists, his eyes filled with sorrow that could not be dispersed.

Aurora was also shocked.

Aurora opened her mouth but did not know what to say.

“How much longer?”

Zac asked after a moment of silence.

The deputy director sighed and said conservatively, “At most one month.”

When they left the office and walked to the ward, it was unclear how Zac was feeling. He looked like he was sad, but also like he did not care.

In the end, Zac stopped not far from the door.

Aurora raised her head and saw that Zac was no longer as arrogant and unruly as he used to be. His eyes were faintly red.

“Let me stay with Alma. If you are here, she will be worried,” said Aurora, trying to help.

Zac looked at her and did not move for a long time.

“Mr. Buchanna, do you need to cancel your flight at six in the morning?” Carter rushed over when he received the news.

Recently, there were indeed many things happening to the Buchanna Group. Zac glanced at Aurora and said after a while,

“If there is anything, tell me any time.”

Aurora nodded and watched Zac turn and leave..

The lights in the ward were still on.

Aurora calmed down and walked in.

“Alma, are you awake? How are you feeling?”

Aurora still needed to act brave.

Otherwise, Alma would feel even worse.

Alma sat up with a smile. “I’m fine. I’ve been like this for a long time,” she said.

Alma looked in the direction of the door.

Although she didn’t ask, Aurora knew what she meant.

Zac went to the company. Maybe he didn’t want to see me.” Aurora forced a smile and said, “It just so happens that I don’t want to see him either. Alma, what do you want to eat in the morning?”

Aurora tried her best to act as usual.

Alma smiled and said, “Let’s go back and eat. I’ll make a toast for you, okay?”

But Alma couldn’t leave the hospital yet!

“Alma, the people in the hospital said that you can only be discharged after Zac has signed it. However, he is not here now and can’t go through the discharge procedures.” Aurora managed to find a reason.

Alma was stunned for a while and seemed to believe it.

“I’ll go to the hospital cafeteria to take a look. You get some rest first. I’ll be back soon.” Aurora smiled as she waved her hand and quickly walked out.

Aurora did not know what to say to Alma.

Aurora’s phone vibrated. It was a message from Zac.

There was a very detailed explanation, which was Alma’s preferences and the things to take note of her illness.

Aurora's pupils trembled slightly. Zac was not indifferent. He was just taking care of Alma in his way. If he was too considerate, Alma might refuse and avoid Zac. That was why Zac maintained his usual indifference.

Got it," Aurora replied as she clutched her phone. Before sending it out, Aurora hesitated again and again before adding, "Don't worry."

Zac, who was in the car heading to the airport, looked at the phone screen and unconsciously smiled. Flipping up a few more messages, Zac found that Aurora's tone towards him was not good. Further up were the texts from two years ago.

"Zac, are you coming back for dinner?" "Zac, Dad's company seems to have problems. Can you help him?" Zac..." Without exception, Zac had never replied.

Zac suddenly felt sad. When Shawn was in trouble, Aurora must have been so helpless. He had experienced that pain before. Zac gripped his phone tighter. The pleasure of his initial success was completely gone at this moment.

Zac had used that marriage to achieve his goal, but he had also destroyed Aurora's entire life. How could Aurora not hate Zac? Zac had a lump in his throat. Zac couldn't breathe as if something was pressing against his chest.

Aurora stayed with Alma at the hospital for a day. When Aurora went out to buy food at night, she met Kate. Connor was the only one behind Kate. Seeing Aurora, Kate immediately walked over and said, "Aurora, why are you in the hospital? Are you unwell?" "My... my friend is in the hospital."

"Kate, why did you come to the hospital?" Aurora asked.

"I've been feeling unwell lately, so I came to have a checkup." Kate held Aurora's hand, refusing to let go no matter what, "Terry has been busy with the company recently. Did he give you the cold shoulder?"

Don't mind it. After a while, he will sort things out and things will not be like this." Of course, Kate could feel Aurora was estranged.

Aurora was no longer as friendly and enthusiastic as when Terry was hospitalized. When Aurora heard this, she shook her head and said, "Kate, it's not like that. Maybe Terry didn't tell you. I told him..."

Chapter 217 Wait for Him to Come Back

Before Aurora could finish speaking, Connor came over to interrupt them.

“Mrs. Walton, it’s getting late. It’s time to go to the banquet.” Connor smiled and gave Aurora a meaningful look. Connor’s expression seemed to indicate that he did not want her to continue. “Kate, why don’t you go and get your things done first? I have to go buy some things too,” Aurora frowned.

“Well, I have something to do today. Next time, let Terry pick you up and come to my house and have a chat, okay?” Aurora just smiled and did not say much. Through the French window, Aurora saw Kate get into the Walton family’s luxury car.

The jewelry and bag Kate had on her were not something that Aurora could afford to buy. Aurora still had to think about how to revive the Bennet family in this period of time.

It was not the right time for Aurora to think about, feelings right now. As soon as the plane landed, Zac received photos and messages from Aurora. Her tone was as calm as ever. Zac also felt unfamiliar with it. He could feel her alienation from those words. He was not used to it.

“Alma had some soup. The doctor checked on her and told her to take medicine on time.” “Alma just fell asleep. The nurse is here too.” Every sentence was like an automatic report. However, just these few words and a few pictures made Zac look at them for a long time.

“Mr. Buchanna, it’s time to get out of the car.” Carter reminded Zac. Only then did Zac take back his phone and step into the hotel.

After the meeting, the first thing Zac did was take out his phone. However, there was no new message. Zac frowned, found a quiet place, and dialed Aurora’s number. Aurora had just fallen asleep. She took her phone and went to the corridor.

“Alma is already asleep.”

Zac was stunned. He forgot that there was a time difference.

“I...”

“You don’t have to worry. I’ve asked the doctor, and Alma can be discharged tomorrow. I will get everything sorted.” Aurora thought that Zac was worried about Alma.

4441

Listening to her voice was as calm as water, Zac calmed down.

“With Alma being discharged tomorrow,

I might have to find someone to cook.”

Aurora was thinking about how to take care of Alma better.

“Alright, I’ll arrange it. You should also take care of yourself and get some rest,’ said Zac. He was being gentler than usual.

When Aurora heard these words coming from Zac, she was shocked.

Aurora had never thought that she would still be able to hear Zac say such things to her in her lifetime.

Then the call got disconnected.

Aurora put down her hand, and when she returned to the small bed in the ward, she couldn’t sleep anymore.

During the business trip, Aurora received several calls from the manager of the Buchanna Group to discuss the specific details of the cooperation.

Aurora could only delay it, thinking of waiting for Zac to return before making plans.

Unexpectedly, while Aurora was waiting, another person from the Buchanna Group came, Saul.

When Saul appeared in front of Aurora with his assistant and secretary, he only said one thing, “The cooperation between the Buchanna Group and the Bennet Group must be implemented within a week. Otherwise, the Buchanna Group will hold the Bennet Group responsible for breaking the contract.” “But Mr. Buchanna has already promised to give me some more time.”

The secretary, Hugh, behind Saul immediately said with a cold face, “Ms. Bennet, Mr. Gates didn’t come here to listen to your private affairs. Your relationship with Mr. Buchanna has nothing to do with the company! At present, Mr. Gates is in charge of this project, understood?” Aurora frowned. Of course, she knew that she could not drag this on any longer. But Zac did agree with her request.

Moreover, Ms. Bet should also know how you got this contract. Why don’t you submit the termination application yourself to avoid unnecessary complications? Once you go through legal procedures, you have no chance of winning at all.” Hugh was being aggressive. He almost put the contract termination document in front of Aurora on the spot. “Hugh.”

Saul said coldly, stopping Hugh from continuing, “After all, this is Mr. Buchanna’s ex-wife. You should mind your words.” Only then did the secretary named Hugh Mann shut his mouth. His look and expression already explained everything. Aurora felt very uncomfortable. "You can go out first. I want to talk to Ms.

Bennet alone." Saul raised his hand. It couldn't be told what his expression was. The door closed. A smile appeared on Saul's face. He said, "Ms. Bennet, you don't need to listen to those people. I believe that Mr. Buchanna must have his reasons for handing over this project to you. Moreover, I don't want to interfere with your cooperation." Aurora listened to him quietly and felt that it was not that simple. "However, the Buchanna Group has got its success not because it has relied on connections. Some things have to be done according to the rules. The manager has contacted you several times, but you've been deliberately stalling. I have reason to suspect that the Bennet Group cannot take on this project at all. In other words, this time, Mr. Buchanna has misjudged the situation." Aurora frowned even more and said, "Not..." "Not what?" Saul suddenly leaned over to her side.

All of a sudden, all the reasons that Aurora had thought of were stuck in her throat. She needed this opportunity. The one that came from the impulse of Zac, who wanted to torture and use her. Aurora could not give up Zac was right. He was the only one who could bring the Bennet Group back to life. Aurora made up her mind and looked up again. Her smile was bright. She said, "There are some things that Mr. Gates and I can't decide. As far as I know, Mr.

Buchanna will be back tomorrow. How about we meet again and talk after he comes back?" Saul immediately raised his eyebrows and said, "Even if Zac comes back, can you guarantee that he will stand on your side?"

"I'm only talking to Mr. Buchanna. Sorry, I still have a patient to take care of," Aurora replied. With that, Aurora up and walked towards Alma's ward. "That servant is the old servant of the Buchanna family. She does have a deep relationship with Zac, but if you want to achieve a certain goal by carrying favor with her, I'm afraid it's unlikely. You should know better than me how indifferent and cruel Zac is. You should talk to me about this deal."

Aurora paused and asked, "Let me make a bold guess. Mr. Gates, you asked me to give up this project because you want to give it to Swon Group, right?" Saul narrowed his eyes.

After a long while, Saul had a bigger smile. He said, "Ms. Bennet is indeed a smart woman, but sometimes, it is a bad thing for a woman to be too smart." "I'm sorry. I'm not like Wenny, who is weak and incompetent." Aurora glanced at Saul. Aurora was right.

Saul had come for the Swon family. Davis couldn't wait anymore and had asked for Saul's help. Or perhaps, they had come to some sort of deal.

But all of that had nothing to do with Aurora. What Aurora had to do was wait for Zac to come back, but she could not guarantee that he would definitely be on her side

Chapter 218 You'd Better Watch Out

Aurora had already guessed the purpose of Saul's visit. She had nothing to be afraid of. The only thing she was worried about was that Zac would not be able to return as promised. At this time, Saul's face was already gloomy. He played with the contracts in his hand and smiled with contempt.

"Before I came here, I didn't expect the relationship between you and Mr. Buchanna would be so close. Even if your contracts with the Buchanna Group might be terminated, you still wait for Mr. Buchanna to come back." Aurora was continuously pressured by him. So she kept sking herself if she was doing the right t. g If she gave up now...

"By the way, do you know about the things between Wenny and me?" Saul narrowed his eyes and said coldly without waiting for Aurora's reply, "Then I'm sorry. I cannot allow you to continue working with the Buchanna Group." He looked very cold with his concerns about his interests. The hand under Aurora's sleeve clenched into a fist.

"Since you've mentioned it, I'm not afraid to let you know. I have a lot of evidence that can make everyone disdain you and Wenny ave nothing to lose. But you are Mr. Gates, it will be such a pity if your reputation is ruined." Aurora turned around. There was firmness and decisiveness in her eyes.

Saul's face darkened. "Good. Very good. Then you'd better watch out." He got up swiftly and slammed the door. Aurora collapsed on the chair the next second.

She almost hesitated and changed her mind. She knew that people like Saul would seek revenge sooner or later. Aurora thought about how to protect herself. Her phone suddenly rang. She thought it was from Zac, bu. she looked at the screen and it was a strange number.

Aurora hesitated for a moment before answering the call.

"Is it Miss Aurora Bennet speaking? I'm Jimmy. I have a design draft of accessories for a fashion show. Would you like to join my team?" Jimmy paused before he said, "Of course, the commission will be the same as the market price."

"Of course, yes, but... I still have something on hand that I need to handle." Aurora looked torn.

"That's OK. I'll send the design draft to your email. We can talk over the phone."

Soon, Aurora received the design draft sent by Jimmy. ( cidentally, the moment she saw the design, she felt that it was very familiar, but she could not remember where she had seen it.

After asking Jimmy, she found out that this was a sketch from the buyer. Because of the confidentiality agreement, Jimmy could not tell Aurora too much.

Aurora understood it.

But Aurora still felt that she had seen this design draft before. Maybe she had seen the finished product.

But she couldn't remember.

Seeing that Aurora had been busy all this time, Alma sighed and said, "It's all my fault. I'm a burden and you have to take care of me."

Aurora raised her head and revealed a smile.

"Alma, it was because I accompanied you to the hospital that I got such a good opportunity. It was you who brought me good luck," Aurora said with a sincere smile. She meant what she said.

Alma looked at her and sighed. Then she began to cough.

"I'll get water for you," Aurora said as she patted Alma's back.

Alma took the glass and walked out. Alma sat on the hospital bed, her face becoming more and more skinny. She said to herself, "If only that thing hadn't happened."

The next morning,

ra helped Alma with the discharge procedures.

Zac also sent the driver to pick her up, but Zac did not show up.

"When will Mr. Buchanna come back?"

Aurora helped Alma out of the car and asked.

The driver was surprised for a second before he said, "Mr. Buchanna is back. He went to the Swon's place just now."

When the words sank in, Aurora changed her face.

It turned out that she had too many expectations. Perhaps when Zac returned, he would immediately cancel the contract,

After all, all of this was just a spur of the moment.

Aurora took a deep breath and walked up the stairs./

Zac didn't return until late into the night.

After Alma rested, Aurora sat alone in the living room. She only looked up when there were car lights in the courtyard. Zac looked cold and solemn as he slowly walked into the villa.

As soon as he opened the door, Aurora could faintly smell alcohol.

The moment he returned from his business trip, he could not wait to go to the Swon's home and get drunk. He didn't return an ow.

Aurora's eyes darkened. She gave up on the idea of chatting with him and turned to walk into the room.

But as she stepped onto the stairs, she heard a voice behind her. She looked back and was pulled into Zac's arms. Zac had just returned from outside and his body was very cold. Aurora also felt chilly for a moment, as if there was a cold wind. "Let me go!"

She struggled and looked up, only to find that he was also looking at her. However, he refused to let go. He even tightened his grip. "You're hurting me. Let me go." Aurora tried to break free. Zac seemed to sigh and slowly let go of her. "Saul met you." When did Zac find out?

"Yes, he wanted to force me to cancel the contract, but I didn't agree." As she spoke, her voice became weak. A thought suddenly came to her mind. If Zac had been persuaded by the Swon family and decided to give up on the Bennet Group, what should she do? She was at a loss. At least Saul was rig about one thing. The Bennet Group had been destroyed by Zac. If the Bennet Group made a comeback, Zac would lose face.

Aurora lowered her head, only to feel that she had been tricked by Zac again. "If you want to cancel the contract, I have nothing to say."

She pushed the man in front of her away forcefully and turned to go upstairs. Aurora closed the door and made up her mind to say goodbye to Alma tomorrow and get out of the prison! The lights in the corridor were on for the whole night. In the morning,

Aurora opened the door and saw a mess. Documents, books, and clothes were all thrown on the ground. But she did not hear any strange sounds last night. “Zac?” Aurora called out tentatively, but no one responded. Aurora went back to Alma’s room. Alma was also confused. “Has Mr. Buchanna come back?” “He seems to...”

Before Aurora was finished, she saw Zac come back from outside. He was dressed in casual clothes, as if he had gone out for a walk after a hangover. He also held breakfast for three people in his hands. “It’s time for breakfast. Zac glanced at Aurora’s surprised face and entered the kitchen.

Aurora frowned and helped Alma up. “You don’t have to do that. I’ll clean up later.” “It’s fine, I’ll clean up.” As Aurora spoke, she was even more confused. Was there a thief last night?

After breakfast, Zac watched Aurora clean up the trash in the corridor. Her body was reflected in his eyes. The answer to the question he was thinking about became clearer and clearer. “Aurora, come over. “What?” Aurora was busy. She stopped unwillingly. As soon as she turned around, she saw

Zac looking at her. There were complicated feelings in his eyes that she could not understand. “Do you want to cancel the contract or not?”

Aurora was a little anxious. She wanted a clear answer. “Who told you that I want to cancel the contract?” Zac asked firmly, though his voice was still cold

Chapter 219 I Believe We Will Cooperate Happily

“Then why did Saul’s secretary say that the Buchanna Group and the Bennet Group...” Before Aurora could finish her words, Zac interrupted her.

“You don’t have to listen to them. In the Buchanna Group, I’m the one who makes the final decision.” As Zac spoke, he stood up and walked up to Aurora. “Other than this, I have something else to ask you.” When Aurora met Zac’s deep eyes, she panicked. The next second, Aurora’s wrist was grabbed by Zac.

“If I cancel the engagement with the Swon family, are you willing to give me another chance?” Zac’s words made Aurora’s heart skip a beat. “Zac, are you drunk?” Aurora’s face darkened. “I’ve already said that I will not sell myself out in that kind of condition.”

“No.”

Zac frowned as he realized that he had said something wrong. “I didn’t mean that. I mean...” “What? Do you regret it now? Do you want to make it up to me?” “Yes,” Zac said in a deep voice with a frown. Aurora immediately took a step back. Aurora's eyes were filled with resistance.

If Zac wanted to tease Aurora or scheme against her, Aurora didn't even know how to deal with it. Zac's affectionate look could only arouse those tragic memories in Aurora's mind.

"Back then, when you told my dad that you wanted to marry me, you had the same attitude." Aurora took a deep breath. She said in a trembling voice, "I don't know what you want from me this time. But I'm telling you, I won't fall in your trap again!" The light in Zac's eyes slowly faded. Zac really regretted it. But Aurora fused to give Zac another chance.

"Mr. Buchanna, if you want to cancel the contract, that's fine. But please don't say this kind of thing again. I will move out of here today. I have done my utmost to meet my obligations in that private contract. But if you have any other excessive demands on me, I won't satisfy you." Aurora turned around, packed up her things, and walked out of the villa.

The bodyguards outside originally wanted to stop Aurora, but they suddenly heard Zac's order from their headsets.

"Let her go."

When Aurora returned to her rented house, a burst of musty smell hit her. She frowned and looked at the small room in front of her. This place really could be compared to Zac's villa. Aurora had cleaned up her room the whole day. After that, she can finally lie in her bed and rest.

But when Aurora closed her eyes, she remembered Zac said to her with a cold face, "Give me another chance." Aurora immediately shook her head and muttered, "He's completely nuts!"

Then, Aurora started to think about what she could do if the Buchanna Group sued the Bennet Group for breaking the contract. Suddenly, her phone "Ms. Bennet, it's still me. Saul, Saul chuckled. "I wonder if you have changed your mind. If you do, then can we have another talk again?"

"Mr. Gates, you have found the wrong person. I'm not the person who makes the decision," Aurora said. Aurora couldn't figure out what Zac was thinking.

But since Saul had once again called Aurora, Aurora thought Zac was really the decision-maker in the Buchanna Group. Otherwise, Saul wouldn't have taken the initiative to call Aurora again and again.

“Ms. Bennet, you don’t have to be in such a hurry to refuse. I can hear my conditions before making a decision. In fact, with your abilities, you don’t have to keep working for Zac.”
“Where should we meet?” Half an hour later... According to the address given by Saul, Aurora went to a restaurant. But only those who had memberships could enter the restaurant. Thus, Aurora was stopped by the staff at the entrance. “Mr. Gates asked me to come,” Aurora said. The manager smiled and said to Aurora, “Please wait here for a moment while I check.” Aurora understood it and didn’t say anything more.

But when Aurora was standing there and waiting, she suddenly saw a familiar figure walking over from a distance. It was Zac! Aurora immediately hid behind the pillar. Aurora vaguely heard that Zac said to Carter behind him, “Stop the cooperation with the Bennet Group temporarily...”

Aurora couldn’t hear the rest of Zac’s words. But at that moment, Aurora thought, this is the only chance for the Bennet Group. If I miss this opportunity, I don’t even know if I can get another one in the future.

Thus, after the manager invited Aurora to go in, she directly rushed to Saul and asked, “The Buchanna Group has decided to stop the cooperation with the Bennet Group, right?” Aurora needed to confirm it. “Ms. Bennet, you are very well-informed,” Saul said with a smile. Aurora could not calm down for a long time.

Aurora thought, why does Zac do this to me again and again? Does he think this is fun? Give me hope and then destroy it mercilessly. Saul leaned back in his chair and said lightly, “However, the official announcement has not been issued yet. Ms. Bennet, if you want to continue the cooperation, there is still a chance.”

“Do you want to continue to cooperate with the Bennet Group?” Aurora asked with a frown. Aurora thought Saul was on the side of the Swon family.

“Ms. Bennet, you should know that there are no eternal friends, only eternal interests. I am a businessman. Making money is always my main motive. In my opinion, working with you is far better than working with the Swon family. It is more beneficial to me.” As Saul said so, his smile deepened.

After a pause, he added, “If you still don’t believe me, I can invite you to attend a high-level conference of the Buchanna Group tomorrow morning. At that time, you will know what kind of person Zac is.”

Aurora’s eyes turned cold as she said, “I just want to know about the details of our cooperation. I don’t want to waste any time.” Once the cooperation was suspended, what awaited the Bennet Group was likely to be a court summons or a huge compensation fee. Aurora couldn’t wait, and she also couldn’t afford to wait.

Saul immediately smiled and said, “OK. I will send a car to pick you up tomorrow morning. Ms. Bennet, I believe we will cooperate happily.” Saul reached out his hand. But Aurora said calmly, “Mr. Gates, I hope you are a loyal partner. Otherwise, I will be willing to do anything to make the Buchanna Group pay the price.”

Then, Aurora turned and walked out. Saul slowly withdrew his hand and watched Aurora’s beautiful figure disappear at the door. Then, a trace of ruthlessness flash through Saul’s eyes. Saul murmured, “This is Zac’s woman. She really arouses my interest.”

The next morning... Saul’s driver sent Aurora directly to the underground parking lot of the Buchanna Group. Saul’s secretary, Hugh, was waiting for Aurora at the elevator entrance. “Ms. Bennet, please follow me,” Hugh said.

Aurora didn’t have a good impression of Hugh, so she didn’t speak along the way. But Hugh kept twittering, “I told you a long time ago at Mr. Gates is the one who can really make the final decision on the project...” “Aren’t we going to the conference room?” Aurora asked while walking forward expressionlessly.

“It’s not the time yet.” Hugh pushed open the door of an office room. Then, he handed a phone to Aurora and said, “You can use this phone to see the situation in the conference room. After Mr. Gates gives the order, I will immediately take you in.” Aurora nodded and said, “OK.” Then, Hugh said with a meaningful smile, “Ms. Bennet, you are a smart woman. It will be best if you don’t have any other thoughts. You can’t fool Mr. Gates.

Chapter 220 Zac’s Indescribable Feeling

In the conference room. Listening to the marketing manager’s report, Zac’s eyes gradually turned cold. Everyone in this conference room could sense that Zac was very angry now. No one even dared to breathe heavily.

“According to the data analysis, in addition to the Bennet Group, there are several other companies that are very suitable to take over this project. Such as the Swon Group and the Walton Group... While the manager was speaking, he suddenly sensed a cold gaze. Zac raised his eyes and cast an indifferent gaze at the marketing manager.

The manager was scared by Zac’s gaze. His hands began to tremble, and he almost couldn’t hold the laser pen in his hand. Others in this conference room all looked at the marketing manager sympathetically.

They all thought the marketing manager was crazy. How dare he mention “the Bennet Group” in front of Zac at this moment? Only Saul smiled. He leaned back and said to that manager, “Go on.”

The manager wiped the cold sweat off his forehead, turned around, and carefully continued, "The advantage of the Swon Group is..." However, he couldn't finish his words.

The door of the conference room was suddenly pushed open by Aurora. "Wait!" Hearing this, everyone looked over at Aurora. Zac glanced at Aurora. Zac's eyes were deep and thoughtful, and no one could find out what he was thinking right now. Aurora was a little afraid of Zac's gaze.

She indeed broke into the conference room without asking for permission first. It was reasonable that Zac was angry. However, Aurora still had to go in. Otherwise, she would have no way out. Fortunately, Zac only looked at Aurora. He did not ask others to drive her out.

Aurora quickly walked in and said in a clear voice, "The contract between the Buchanna Group and the Bennet Group has not expired. The Buchanna Group has no right to terminate the cooperation unilaterally." Aurora's words made everyone chuckle. "Ms. Bennet, this is the Buchanna Group's internal meeting. How can you get in?"

"That's right. Besides, we haven't heard anything from your company. What have you been thinking? Do you want to get something from us without paying anything?" Aurora pinched the sides of her fingers and said nothing.

Saul looked around in the conference room, and the sneer on his face deepened. He dropped the pen in his hand on the table with a bang, and then he said, "If my memory serves me right, Mr. Buchanna was the one who let the Bennet Group get this project. Now, it turns out it was a mistake. Shouldn't Mr. Buchanna say something?" Hearing this, Zac turned his eyes and glanced at Saul. Zac asked in a cold voice, "Do you want me to take responsibility?"

Saul sat up straight and spread out his hands. "Of course. This is part of the rules of the Buchanna Group. Once an accident happens, whoever is in charge of the project has to resign, right?" When Saul said the last sentence, he turned his head and looked at the managers present.

Everyone knew how ruthless Zac was in managing the company. When someone did something that negatively affected the company's reputation or even made a small mistake at work, that person might be instantly fired.

Everyone gulped and felt that Saul was suggesting that Zac should resign. However, Saul's words made sense. Anyway, Zac was the one who let the Bennet Group get this project. But it turned out that the Bennet Group was completely useless.

There was no doubt that Zac had to be responsible for this matter. "Mr. Buchanna doesn't have to take the responsibility. I'm here today to settle this matter!" Before Zac opened his mouth, Aurora stepped forward and placed the contract on the table. Aurora's action surprised everyone.

Saul frowned, and a hint of ruthlessness appeared in his smile. "Ms. Bennet, is this your true purpose? We have so many people here listening. You'd better think twice before acting. Otherwise, the Buchanna Group will not let you get away with it easily." Saul glared at Aurora threateningly. Saul didn't expect that Aurora would say this in front of everyone. Aurora said she was here to settle this matter!

Zac still didn't speak. He only turned his head and gave Carter a look. Carter immediately stepped forward and said, "Ms. Bennet, please sit down and talk." "Thank you." Aurora's heart was beating wildly. After sitting on the chair, she calmed down a little.

Fortunately, no one saw that Aurora's fingertips were trembling. Aurora took a deep breath and remembered that when she was in the interview at the College of Design, she said to herself silently, "Don't be afraid!" Then, Aurora said to everyone in this room, "I understand your concerns. When I first got this project, I also wanted to quit. But I remembered that Mr. Buchanna once said a sentence in an interview." Zac glanced at Aurora, thinking something expressionlessly. Aurora continued, "Mr. Buchanna said that any projects not depend on a certain person or a team."

Zac looked at Aurora, and a strange feeling flashed through his heart. Since Zac did not speak, the others did not dare to stop Aurora. But Saul could not help but sneer, "Our time is very precious. Ms. Bennet, please get to the point."

After Saul finished speaking, he even slapped the table with the palm of his hand. The atmosphere in the conference room became even tenser. Everyone sighed in their hearts. They all felt that Saul was targeting Zac.

They thought that Aurora wouldn't be able to get away with it today. The two big bosses were at loggerheads, and someone must be implicated. This person was Aurora. "Mr. Gates, don't you know the second half of the sentence?" Saul frowned even more. He thought Aurora was deliberately looking for trouble.

"The latter half of the sentence is that most success in business depends on luck." Aurora raised a bright and confident smile. But others only thought that Aurora had gone crazy. Aurora had nothing in her hand but the useless Bennet Group, yet she dared to say such words in the conference room of the Buchanna Group with a few pieces of paper.

However, only the man sitting on the CEO's leather chair could notice Aurora's fear and desperation at this time. The interview Aurora mentioned was what Zac had told the reporters when he had just revived the Buchanna Group. It should have been many years ago. Even Zac himself could not remember what he had said at that time. Only Zac himself knew how much blame and hatred he had suffered from the outside world during that period of time. The current Aurora was very similar to Zac back then. Both of them were forced to stand and fight.

Somehow, Zac felt like someone was gripping his heart tightly. Seeing Aurora suffer was like tortu or Zac. Zac frowned, and a trace of anger appeared on his face. Aurora was used by Saul. Aurora didn't believe that Zac could handle this matter well. Aurora went to the Buchanna Group to make things more embarrassing.

However, these things couldn't make Zac angry. Instead... Zac was angry because he was the one who had caused all of this. Zac was the one who had ruined Aurora's life. How shameless would Zac be to ask for Aurora's forgiveness?

Zac was the last person who wanted to see Aurora strugg However, Zac couldn't tell anyone how painful he felt in his heart right now. Zac clenched his fists, and he looked more unapproachable and colder.

In the back row of the conference room, there were a few people who were Saul's trusted aides. They exchanged glances with each other. Soon someone asked, "Ms. Bennet, how can you be comparable to Mr. Buchanna? Why don't you talk about the most practical problem at hand? If you don't agree to terminate the contract, what benefit can the Bennet Group bring to the Buchanna Group?"
