

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 71

Chapter 71 It Starts Again

Aurora's evaluation was reasonable, and her eyes were not blinded by hatred. She also confirmed the mature operating method of the Buchanna Group.

"So, I think the Buchanna Group is still the best choice among the many options. What do you think?" Aurora asked.

Alfred couldn't help but praise, "What Ms. Bennet said is exactly what I was thinking. I was just deliberately keeping you in suspense. I didn't expect you to give me such a big surprise."

Aurora raised her champagne glass, "Then I wish you a pleasant cooperation in advance."

Alfred also raised his glass at the same time, but after touching it, he did not drink it directly, "Ms. Bennet, can I ask you another question?"

"Sure, be my guest."

"Why do you want to help him?"

This "he" was referring to Zac.

Aurora's eyes darkened as she pushed the champagne glass to the side. "We are husband and wife. If he were to fall for this, I would look down on him."

Moreover, the Buchanna family would fall sooner or later, but it would fall into Aurora's hands

Aurora wanted to see the high and mighty Zac lose. It was just a cooperative relationship. What Aurora wanted to tell Zac was that she could play the future of the Buchanna family at her will.

Alfred did not understand the meaning behind this.

The man behind the curtain heard it. Aurora's hatred for him had increased, but the current Aurora would not be so reckless as to throw herself into flame as a moth did.

She was just waiting for a chance to defeat Zac in one blow.

Zac rubbed the silver watch on his wrist. His cold face showed a chill.

After a few minutes, Aurora excused herself and left.

Zac took the opportunity and took the initiative to show himself. The two of them had a very tacit understanding of each other. After chatting for a while, Zac cut to the chase and gave Alfreda minimum price that one could not refuse.

Alfred smiled deeply, "You heard the conversation between me and Ms. Bennet. Why are you still giving me such a low price?"

"Of course, I don't want to lose such a good partner like you. Happy cooperation."

Zac raised his glass, the clinking of the glass reminded him of a certain business forum night.

Aurora called a few times, but Zac did not answer.

At that time, they were not married yet, and the surrounding friends were envious that Zac had such a fiancée who cared about him, but only he knew in his heart that Aurora wanted him to attend

Shawn's birthday banquet.

How could Zac go?

From the beginning to the end, Zac was using Aurora.

There would be no extra feelings between them, definitely not. The banquet was still going on, and in another fifteen minutes, there would be a walk show on the stage.

Aurora looked at the time and thought that it was time to find an opportunity to slip away.

Unexpectedly, someone bumped into her.

“Aurora, stop.” Wenny lifted the hem of her dress, with her eyes filled with hatred. Aurora turned to look at her and asked in amusement, “What’s the matter?”

“Why did you seduce Zac again? He is already married. You are shameless.” Her voice was neither too loud nor too soft, and it just so happened that the surrounding people were looking over.

A gorgeously dressed woman cursed.

On the other hand, the other outstanding one’s expression was indifferent. The difference between the two sides was great.

But hearing this, everyone looked at Aurora with disdain.

“Anna, Aurora is fighting with someone again,” a staff member of Malon saw this from afar and even took a picture of it and emailed it to her colleagues.

When Anna, who was helping Miley choose the ring, saw this message, she was so angry that she sent a voice message.

“Can’t you watch over Aurora? Tell her that if she causes trouble again, get out of the company immediately!”

Miley looked up in the mirror and pretended to ask the assistant, “Who matched this set of jewelry?” “It’s Aurora. She seems to be a newcomer. Miley, if you are not satisfied, you still have time to change,” said the assistant.

Miley put on a standard pose in front of the mirror and said with a smile, “No need, I like it very much. Next time I go to the show, I still want her.”

After saying this, she casually picked up a golden ring and walked backstage.

When Anna realized what Miley had said, Anna wiped the cold sweat off her forehead and gritted her teeth, “This Aurora...”

Anna put down the things and immediately rushed over.

If Aurora and Wenny had a head-on conflict, Wenny had the Buchanna Group behind her!

But Anna rushed over and saw many people gathered together.

Anna squeezed in with great difficulty and saw Wenny standing there crying. Aurora had already disappeared.

“What’s going on? Did Aurora hit her?” Anna grabbed Mary and asked.

Mary shook her head.

“Then why is Wenny crying?” Anna frowned. People like Anna knew how it worked. With Wenny’s beauty, even if she had resources behind her back, without acting skills and ability, she was destined to be unable to shine.

Everyone respected Wenny because of the Buchanna Group behind her.

If Zac was gone, no one would give Wenny another respectful look even if she cried to death here.

Mary opened her mouth and slowly said, “She was angered to tears by Aurora. Aurora is too mean.”

“What?”

“Where’s Aurora?” Anna was speechless.

“She was taken away by Terry to the back.” Mary’s mind was still surrounded by the famous scene of Aurora cursing just now. Mary hated herself for not having enough wits to remember those words.

Otherwise, the next time Mary quarreled with someone, she would be able to win a round no matter what happened.

Wenny cried more and more without tears, leaving only a pair of eyes with thick makeup, blinking non-stop

Wenny wanted to cry until Zac came to find her, but after crying for half a day, there were already more and more people around, but Zac still did not come over.

“Wenny, let’s go first.” Ella couldn’t take it anymore and whispered into Wenny’s ear, “Your makeup is all messed up now. It wouldn’t be good if you were photographed by the reporters.”

The company still had to spend money to get Wenny off the headline if that was the case.

That’s not right. With Wenny’s position, this kind of ugly photo is not qualified to get on the trending topic.

Wenny gritted her teeth. “Where’s Zac?”

“I don’t know. I didn’t see Mr. Buchanna just now. Let’s go first.” Ella forcefully pulled Wenny up.

Wenny wiped her tears and had to leave with Ella first.

In the distance, Zac appeared next to the fence on the second floor. He had just finished his conversation with Alfred when he saw the scene of Aurora belittling Wenny.

“Mr. Buchanna, the contract has been finalized. When do you want to book the flight tickets.” Carter asked in a low voice behind Zac.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 72

Chapter 72 You Are a Hard-Ass!

Carter’s words pulled Zac from some other thoughts.

He pressed down on his aching temples and said coldly, “Tomorrow.”

Zac looked around the banquet hall and his sight was fixed on someone. He stepped down the steps and walked straight through the crowd.

At the other end of his line of sight, Aurora was being dragged out by Terry.

Aurora held the hem of her dress and asked, “How was my performance just now? I think I can do it better.”

Terry glanced at her and said, “You will become a hit in Fashion Week tomorrow.”

He knew that Aurora had dialed it down.

It was just that Wenny couldn’t take it.

Aurora said with a little pride, “Totally! ...”

Before she could finish, Zac jumped in, “Let’s talk.”

Aurora was taken aback by Zac’s sudden showing up behind her. Then, she agreed and was about to go over.

Terry frowned and pulled Aurora to his side. "Talk about what? There's nothing to talk about!"

Aurora turned around and patted Terry on the shoulder. "It's fine."

Terry didn't move an inch.

Zac sneered. "Mr. Walton, you are out of your depth. What she and I do is none of your business."

With that, Zac walked out.

"He still owes me one thing. I'll go talk to him," Aurora said in a low voice.

With that, she ran after Zac out.

Terry stood where he was, his fists clenching under his sleeves. He knew that Zac was right.

was

He, as a suitor, couldn't force Aurora to erase someone from her life.

And that was Zac.

The wind was blowing across the sea, and Aurora, in a strapless outfit, shivered.

Zac glanced at her and continued to walk toward the car. He opened the car door and sat inside.

Aurora followed closely behind without hesitation.

Although she didn't want to be in the same car as him, she didn't want to catch a cold.

After a while, Zac made a sign to the chauffeur to turn off the air conditioner and got out of the car.

Aurora felt much better and breathed a sigh of relief.

She asked simply, "When is the wedding?"

Zac's joint he was clenching made a light sound. He glanced at Aurora. "Soon."

Aurora demanded, "How soon?"

Zac said impatiently, "In one week."

After all, no one should be pushed to get married by their ex-wife.

"Well, then I'll be waiting for it."

She spoke casually as if she was waiting for a show.

Suddenly, Zac grabbed her wrist and warned her deeply, "No more tricks to ruin it."

Aurora's wrist hurt.

She acted calmly. "Mr. Buchanna, if you are afraid, you can be a villain who goes back on his word. I can't do anything to you."

Suddenly...

Aurora slapped his hand away. "I'm busy. If there's nothing else, stay away from me, lest your fiancée comes to make a scene again."

She said as she opened the car door. "Next time I won't be so nice!"

Zac looked gloomy while gazing at Aurora fading away.

When Wenny went to pick a fight, he was watching from a distance.

Wds

Wenny only said one sentence before she was yelled at by Aurora.

"When you threw yourself at Zac, he hadn't divorced me yet. You're just falsely accusing us of what you did!

"I have a grudge against Zac, and I won't get back together with him. I won't ever do something as stupid as you did.”

Zac pondered, his fingers being between his eyebrows. This was a side of Aurora he had never seen before.

Zac pursed his lips, thinking that Aurora also put on an act to marry him.

He turned his head and saw Aurora and Terry walking down the stairs together. And she was wearing Terry’s suit.

“Drive.”

Zac’s eyes darkened.

Aurora and Terry did that on purpose.

After returning to the hotel, Aurora changed her clothes and removed her makeup. Just then Mary knocked.

“Perfect timing. Thank you for the accessories today.” Aurora yawned as she spoke.

Mary looked at her worriedly. “You’re welcome. You yelled at Wenny in public. Aren’t you scared?”

Aurora asked confusedly, leaning against the sofa, “Scare of what?”

Mary muttered, “Her fiancé is Zac. And she is the daughter of the Swon family, which was relatively powerful in Clouston.” Mary learned this from some gossip magazines.

Aurora shook her head in contempt. “Powerful? That’s ridiculous! Remember, there are only three powerful families in Clouston.

“Including the Bennet family and the Buchanna family.”

Thinking of the Swon family, Aurora laughed.

“The Swon family is way less in the competition.”

Hearing this, Mary was relieved. “As long as you know what you’re doing, you are a hard-ass!”

Aurora thought for a moment, “You’re being sarcastic.”

“No, no, no.”

Mary shook her head. She did not dare to provoke Aurora. “Anna should have already known this. She might come to you.”

Aurora propped up her chin with one hand. Before she spoke, someone knocked.

She raised her chin, and Mary immediately got up to open the door.

Anna walked in front, followed by Wenny, her agent Ella, and a few employees of Malon.

As they walked in, the room was instantly crowded. Aurora’s sleepiness went away and she got a little unhappy.

“Apologize to Miss Swon,” Anna said with a frown.

“No way,” said Aurora as she raised her eyes.

Anna immediately put on a straight face. “I’m telling you as the head of the interns. If you don’t apologize, you’ll be fired.”

“Why?”

Aurora pointed at Wenny. “Just because of my grudge against her? Wow, I didn’t expect that Wenny could fire anyone in Malon.

“Or you two are teaming up?”

“Nonsense!” Anna shouted immediately.

She just wanted to give Aurora a way out. If Aurora stayed in Malon, Anna would have to deal with her. Anna didn't want to make any enemies. Plus, as the person in charge, she also didn't want her subordinates to be at loggerheads with Wenny. Someone behind said, "Aurora, Anna only asked you to apologize to Wenny." Someone agreed, "That's right. You are an intern of Malon. Your behavior represents the image of the company. If you are capable, you can get back your ex-husband."

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 73

Chapter 73 Who is the Boss

"Ex-husband" sounded harsh.

Aurora ignored them. But it didn't mean that she would keep tolerating them.

As the gossip spread, Wenny's temper surged up, "For Anna's sake, I can forgive you this time, as long as..."

"Do you want me to kneel and apologize, or do you want to bully me as your assistant for a week?"

Wenny raised her eyebrows. The daughter of the Bennet family sucked.

Aurora had to admit defeat in front of Wenny without any support.

"They both sound good. I am a nice person." Wenny smiled gloatingly. "Why would you treat me badly in the banquet hall? You asked for the trouble."

Those who denounced Aurora for Wenny revealed a deep disdain.

In this circle, one would have everything if he or she beat others.

But if one was defeated...

Aurora curled her lips and walked towards Wenny. She raised her hand to press her fingertips on Wenny's shoulder. "I didn't do anything just now because it was inconvenient with a dress. You might misunderstand that I can only quarrel. But it hurts when I hit someone."

Wenny retreated shockingly.

She was pregnant

Everything Aurora had done to her the other day in the bathroom appeared in Wenny's mind.

"It's too late to be afraid now," Aurora said with a chuckle.

Aurora didn't need to make a move because Wenny was already so scared that her legs went soft.

Someone stepped forward to protect Wenny.

"Aurora, stop it. She is pregnant."

"That's right. Your relationship with Zac has passed. Is it appropriate for you to keep bothering them?"

Wenny hid in the crowd and revealed a gloating smile. She wanted to see how Aurora would be scolded.

Aurora rubbed her ears impatiently while hearing the words, "Enough? This is my room. Get out, please."

"You've got the chance. Don't be so ungrateful." Anna grabbed Aurora, "Although Wenny is not famous enough, she is a star. Do you want to cause trouble? You are just an intern. What are you gloating about?"

Aurora blinked with a hint of helplessness in her eyes.

She took out her phone to make a call. "Do it."

Aurora said two words.

Anna urged, "You apologize to Wenny now and you'll be forgiven. Otherwise, no one will protect you back in the company."

"Just wait," Aurora smiled.

"What are you waiting for?" Anna was confused.

Meanwhile, Ella's phone rang.

While answering the phone, Ella looked at Aurora in shock. She said, "Alright. I understand. I... I will deal with it immediately."

"Well, this is their private matter. Let them talk. Sorry to trouble everyone. Please have a rest, everyone."

Ella kept winking at Wenny.

Ella pressed her wrist and said, "Aurora got your photos that were shot before your debut. They have a great impact on your image. She also sends an email to the company for 100,000 dollars."

"What?"

Wenny widened her beautiful eyes. "Nice try."

"Take a look."

Ella stuffed her mobile phone into Wenny's hand, then left with the other staff. She closed the door from the outside, leaving only Wenny and Aurora in the room.

Aurora leaned back and sat on the sofa. "I didn't intend to act, but you keep provoking me. So don't blame me."

"I still have a lot of interesting materials. Although you are not famous, you are going to marry Zac. If his partners see that your private life is so chaotic..."

Wenny's hands trembled.

She had already spent money to have these photos deleted.

Wenny suddenly looked at Aurora and forced out an awkward smile. "Aurora, I'll give you the money. You want 100,000 dollars, right? I'll wire it to you. Give me the rest of the photos."

"Is this how you make a request?"

Aurora tilted her head and took out her phone. She opened the video and waved at Wenny.

Wenny swallowed her saliva and walked over.

"Smile."

Wenny grinned.

"So ugly. Try again?"

Aurora was not satisfied, so Wenny could only continue to smile. She ordered Wenny to smile with a crying expression. And Wenny had to sing while dancing.

Aurora reminded Wenny to control her expression now and then.

"Your acting skills suck. How can you become a star?"

"Look at the camera. I'm still recording."

Aurora's impatient voice sounded from time to time in the room.

Ella leaned against the door and listened nervously. Seeing the elevator door open, Zac and his assistant walked out. Ella ran over. "Mr. Buchanna, hurry up. Wenny is bullied by Aurora again. Aurora locked Wenny inside. I don't know what's going on."

"Where is Aurora?" Zac asked with furrowed eyebrows.

"She's inside too." Ella described what had happened in detail. But she omitted the fact of Wenny bringing people to Aurora's room to cause trouble.

All Ella did was blame everything on Aurora.

"I'm too worried to tell the hotel staff. This is a private matter between you guys. If it gets out of hand, it will affect Wenny's career."

Even Zac's assistant Cater couldn't hear the remark anymore. "Mr. Buchanna. I'll knock on the door."

Zac didn't refuse.

There was a knocking sound.

Aurora raised her eyebrows. She complained in her mind that they came so late. Her phone was running out of power.

"Who is it?"

"Ms. Bennet, it's me. Carter."

Wenny laughed with tears immediately. While looking at her expression, Aurora clicked her tongue. Aurora said in a low voice, "You must think that your Prince Charming has come to save you."

Wenny was choked on her words.

She didn't dare to answer.

If she didn't answer well, Aurora would change the ways to torment her again. Wenny was tired and her ankle was starting to ache.

"Zac may have something to talk to me about. I should go out, lest he misunderstands that you are bullying me. It's not good for you."

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 74

Chapter 74 Coincidence

Wenny walked towards the door after the words.

"Am I afraid of misunderstanding?" Aurora said softly from behind.

Wenny held the doorknob.

Aurora deliberately raised her voice, "The phone number of the Swon Group is..."

If Aurora sent the photos to her father, Wenny wouldn't dare to imagine the consequences.

"Carter, I'm fine. You can go." Wenny shouted outside, then took a few steps back, and obediently stood to the side.

Aurora smiled in satisfaction at her sudden intelligence.

Aurora gestured for her to retreat.

Wenny did as Aurora said.

Aurora frowned because it would be boring if Wenny was obedient.

Aurora opened the door and looked at Carter. And her eyes fell on Zac who was behind.

"What?"

Ella rushed in and pulled Wenny. "It's fine. Wenny, Zac is here to save you."
It sounded like Aurora's room was a dangerous place.
Zac stepped forward. He gazed at Wenny to check her condition. And he looked at Aurora.
"What's going on?"
Zac looked like he was questioning a subordinate who had done something wrong in the company.
Listening to the official tone, Aurora calmly took out her phone. "Your fiancée is afraid that I haven't seen enough performances in Fashion Week, so she came to dance in my room for me. There is a video as proof."
The words were believed by no one.
Zac looked at the phone screen with furrowed brows.
"Send Wenny back to her room," he said to Carter.
"Yes."
Aurora looked at Zac while blinking as if she was planning something again.
The door closed again.
Wenny looked back unwillingly. "Ella, you wait here. Tell me if there is anything."
Ella nodded.
But Carter stopped Ella.
"Zac asked you two to be in your room."
"I am worried about him." Wenny forced out a smile. She was nervous that Aurora would show the photos to Zac.
She couldn't just wait.
"Ella, go."
Carter remained still and reminded, "You should go back to your room. Maybe Zac will tell you good news later."
Wenny knew that Carter was one of the most trusted people around Zac, so she didn't want to have a conflict with him.
But she was in no mood for the good news.
She went back as Ella followed.
"What should we do? 100,000 dollars?"
"Here." Wenny gritted her teeth in hatred. Meanwhile, Faye called.
Due to the time difference, Fashion Week had just been broadcast in Clouston.
Faye took the time to improve the relationship with Wenny, who should be in a good mood.
But Faye didn't know that Wenny was in a bad mood because she had just been fooled.
"Save my time," Wenny yelled.
Faye wanted to show her goodness as a stepmom to ease their relationship.
Davis was reading the newspaper. He pulled a long face when he heard the words.
Faye switched the phone to listening mode and asked in a low voice, "What's wrong, Wenny? Are you angry? Is it Aurora?"
The thought popped up in her mind as she walked into the restaurant.
"Who else could there be?" Wenny had no place to vent her anger, so she told the story.

Faye didn't reply.

"Speak! Are you mute?"

"I have money. I'll transfer it to you. Get the money you need to buy the photos. And you..."

After listening to Faye's words, Wenny's expression slowly eased.

Aurora had the time to play with Zac.

Zac stared at her and felt that she was too cunning to counter her or escape her calculations.

"I have the wedding prepared as you said." His tone relaxed and he changed the topic.

"You are efficient," Aurora nodded.

Zac would have a wedding without Aurora's order because he wouldn't treat his wife-to-be unfairly.

Aurora just wanted her plan to progress faster.

It was time for her to meet that person as well.

Zac was just a pawn for her.

Aurora looked up. Her faint glance showed that she didn't care about Zac.

Zac could feel the alienation Aurora had towards him.

Suddenly, someone knocked on the door.

Aurora frowned in annoyance. The door opened. Terry stood outside with a midnight snack. "Are you hungry? I bought you some food."

As he spoke, he glimpsed the man on the sofa.

Aurora thanked Terry and was not surprised to see Sara following behind him.

Sara leaned out and asked carefully, "Aurora, are you alright? I called Terry because I saw what happened."

It seemed that Sara and Terry were close.

If it wasn't for the fact that Aurora didn't like Terry, she might have been angered.

"Wenny went too far. Although I don't know what happened between you, it was her who slandered you."

Sara didn't notice the other person in the room while standing behind Terry

When she saw Zac, she shut up with shock and regret.

Zac bypassed Aurora and walked straight outside.

There was a door closing sound.

Aurora looked at the other two.

"Aren't you guys coming in?" She smiled and was about to close the door.

Sara pulled Terry before he could talk, "Let's leave. Aurora is tired. It's time to rest."

Terry furrowed his brows with many questions to ask.

His expression showed his intention.

Aurora pretended to yawn. "Let's talk tomorrow."

Then, Terry was pulled into the elevator by Sara.

Aurora watched them leave and closed the door.

She felt unhappy, but she had no time for this because all she wanted was to make Zac feel the pain.

Aurora was going to return to Clouston in the afternoon the day after tomorrow. She had limited time.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 75

Chapter 75 Traps

A major event happened in Clouston that night.

Macy, the design director of the Malon Company, had a car accident. It was a normal accident, but she was in Scott's car. Scott was the boss of an estate company in Clouston. He had passed fifty and his wife passed away two months ago.

Reporters swarmed the hospital where they were at.

Aurora was not welcomed by her colleagues, so she didn't know the matter.

When she found out, she was already on a plane back to Clouston.

Aurora sent a message to Macy before she turned off her phone.

Aurora had things to do. She needed to rest.

She closed her eyes, and her thoughts became clearer. Scott was Daniel's uncle. The newly established building of the Buchanna Group next year was built by Scott's company. Now that Scott had an accident, the Buchanna Group would have trouble.

Because Zac supported Scott to become a partner.

Aurora smiled. It was smoother than she had expected.

After the plane landed, Aurora followed the staff of Malon Company at the back and happened to meet Zac and Wenny who came from another passage.

Wenny was acting cute with Zac as she always did.

"Can you send me home? My dad is too busy to pick me up."

With a back bag, Aurora was amused by Wenny's words.

But Zac seemed to be worried.

He put down his phone and said lightly, "The driver will send you back."

"I want you to be the driver." Wenny began to act shamelessly. She didn't know that this was the most annoying thing for Zac.

Zac regarded his company as being above everything.

Aurora quickened her pace to walk over to avoid watching them more.

But Zac grabbed her luggage. Aurora looked at Zac, "What's the matter?"

"The files host of the Buchanna Group has been hacked. Did you do it?"

Zac's eyes were so shrewd that Aurora almost gave herself away.

She smiled, "Who did such a heroic thing? I really should treat him to a meal. It was not me. I didn't have the money to hire a hacker."

That was the truth.

The host of the Buchanna Group was not easily conquered by any random person with poor skills. Besides, no one would be bold enough to do it.

And it would cost a lot. Aurora didn't have the money.

"Can I go? Otherwise, your fiancée's eyes will pop out." Aurora smiled indifferently.

“Anyway, we still have a chance to meet. See you at the wedding.” She slapped away Zac’s hand in disgust and turned around to leave without looking back.

Terry came out of the exit after wasting time with Sara. He went forward at the sight of Aurora.

Zac watched the two walk out of the airport together. His brows furrowed more tightly. “Zac, what did she mean? What wedding?” Wenny had a bad feeling that Zac and Aurora were getting closer.

She thought they were enemies.

Wenny bit her lips with anxiety.

Zac looked at her and said, “I was too busy to tell you that I’ve already prepared for the wedding. It’s Friday.”

“Really?” Wenny was overjoyed.

But before she could be happy, the sleeves that she held in her hands had drawn back. Why did she hear about her wedding from Aurora?

Meanwhile, a thin figure was standing at the exit.

She was wearing a hat and a mask, covering her face tightly.

But Aurora knew it was Faye.

It seemed that Faye was determined to spend the rest of her life with Davis, so she tried every means to curry favor with Wenny. But no matter how hard she tried, it was useless.

Aurora sneered.

By thinking about the gifts she had prepared for the Swon family, she was in a good mood.

Even Sara, who was chasing behind, was not so annoying anymore.

“Aurora, where are you going? I can drive you.” Terry cared about Aurora only.

“I’m going to see a friend in the hospital. I’m fine. Thanks.” Aurora looked at her phone. Macy had already replied to her.

It would be awkward to go with Terry.

“Alright, see you later. I’ll go home.” Terry thought about how his family had repeatedly urged him to return home and felt troubled.

Why did his mother dislike Aurora?

“Hospital please,” Aurora called a car.

Watching the taxi leave, Terry couldn’t move his eyes away. Sara gritted her teeth jealously, “Can’t you find an excuse when you get home? I will go back with you to see your mom. You can say that you are going to see me. She shouldn’t be angry with you about being with Aurora.”

Terry’s eyebrows twitched.

“You don’t have to do this.”

“It doesn’t matter. I am willing to do it. Besides, I won’t say much. Don’t worry.” A gentle smile bloomed on Sara’s face.

Terry looked away and said in a distant tone, “No need. We don’t need to meet again.”

You can tell your family that you don't like me and I am a terrible person."
He left after the words.
Sara was on the verge of tears, "Terrible? The woman you like is terrible. She is divorced and she was in prison before. You still like her. How am I inferior to her?"
Her bright eyes flashed with hatred.
She wiped her tears soon and made a call, "Come and pick me up."
A commanding tone.
Sara was the daughter of the Jarrett family. Even if Terry did not choose her, Sara couldn't allow him to choose a woman like Aurora who might go to prison again.
At the airport...
Faye walked over when she saw Wenny.
This frightened Wenny. She thought that it was a hater sent by her competitor.
But Wenny had never expected that no one would recognize her.
"Wenny, it's me." Faye took off her hat and mask after seeing that Aurora had already left.
"Why are you wearing this?" Wenny looked disgusted. Seeing that Zac was disappearing, Wenny wanted to shake off Faye. "I am busy now. Leave me alone."
"Come home with me. Something happened at home." Faye leaned close to her ear and muttered a few words.
"What? How could my dad be related to Scott's car accident?" Wenny glared.
She was not stupid to know that she had to keep her identity as the daughter of the Swon family. Otherwise, wouldn't she have to give up her wedding with Zac?
"Go home. Right now."

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 76

Chapter 76 I Deserve More

Aurora didn't leave directly. She asked the driver to go around to the exit. The taxi stopped on the nearby path.
Seeing that Wenny and Faye left together in a car, she chuckled.
"Follow that car."
The driver glanced at the license plate of the car and then looked at Aurora. "Why? I am a proper taxi and I don't do that kind of business."
"My father's ex-girlfriend is in the car."
Aurora replied and continued to look at her phone. The stock price of Swon Group had dropped again.
Faye dreamed of marrying into a wealthy family, and now she should be anxious. Davis was not like Aurora's father.
Because Davis was just an upstart. Without the support of capital, the Swon family would suffer because of the economic bubble.
Aurora hummed along the way and watched joyfully the two enter the Swon's villa.

The driver kindly advised her, "It's a high-end residential area. You can't enter without the key."

Aurora ignored him and took out her phone to dial the number she had bought a few days ago.

In the Swon's villa...

"Dad, what happened?" Wenny asked anxiously.

"Shut up!" Davis was calling an old friend for help. He turned around and roared at Wenny.

Wenny was frightened. She looked at Faye without a sound.

Faye's phone rang. It was a strange number.

But she answered it.

"Who is it?"

"It's me. I'm outside your house. Is it convenient to enter?" Aurora lowered her head to look at the soil on the tip of her shoe and was not surprised to hear the urgent voice over there.

"I'll come out immediately."

Faye walked out anxiously with her handbag.

As soon as she saw Aurora, her eyes became hazy with tears, "You've suffered. Look, you are skinny. Why didn't you come to me earlier?"

Aurora's eyebrows twitched.

She didn't know that Faye's acting was so good.

Aurora looked over expressionlessly, "How am I going to find you? All your contact details have changed, and you even moved home."

"That's... That's because I have debt. I have no choice. I was incompetent and couldn't protect you on behalf of your father." Faye said with more tears.

The last bit of hesitation in Aurora's eyes disappeared.

Faye had no true feelings for Aurora's father, let alone regret.

None.

Faye said as she carefully sized up Aurora's expression.

She sobbed as she pulled Aurora to the sidewalk.

She took out an old-fashioned envelope from her bag and stuffed it into Aurora's hand.

"This is my savings all these years. It is not much. I hope it can help you."

"Savings?"

"Yes, you know, I don't have much money. And I was not your father's wife at that time, so I couldn't handle his funeral. Even if I stayed in the Bennet family, it wouldn't help. Do you understand?"

Got it.

It was to let Aurora take revenge on others without disturbing her being married to a rich guy.

Aurora suppressed the anger in her eyes and made an awkward look. "My dad left something for you when he was alive and told me to give it to you."

Na

"What is it?" Faye was surprised.

It was an unexpected harvest. But Faye looked back at the Swon's villa and squeezed out a smile, "You go back first. I have to deal with something here. I will go to you tomorrow, alright?"

"Alright then. Go ahead. I'll be leaving."

Aurora left. When she turned around, Faye was gone.

Just like what happened to the Bennet family, she disappeared in an instant.

She held the envelope with a hint of hatred in her eyes.

Now that the bait was set, she waited for the best time.

Aurora looked at the time and took a taxi to the hospital.

When Faye went back, Davis was scolding Wenny.

"I asked you to get along well with Zac. What did you do? His company withdrew the investment." Davis was furious. "Call him immediately. Does he still want to marry my daughter?"

He thought that Zac was eager to marry Wenny. He didn't expect Zac to withdraw his funds just because of a small accident. It wasn't good for the Swon family.

Wenny was crying. "Dad, I can't make the call. Zac has been distant from me recently. This will annoy him and make him hate me more."

While hearing the words, Faye thought of Aurora's attitude towards her just now. She hurriedly said, "Davis, listen to me."

"What?"

Davis was angry.

But Faye was good at reading emotions. And she maintained herself well these years.

Faye got closer to his arm.

Davis' anger had vanished.

He allowed Faye to pull him into the room.

A few minutes later, Davis seemed calm. "Well, since you have this relationship with her, you can try it. If you can make Zac change his mind, I'll reward you and buy everything you want."

"I'll do everything for you and Wenny. I don't want anything." Faye pushed him playfully.

She gathered her hair and walked out while twisting her waist.

Davis lit a cigarette in satisfaction with his collar open.

He thought he had married the cheap right wife.

Wenny listened outside and looked at Faye in confusion. "Does he calm down?"

Faye smiled. "I'll teach you how to cope with a man later. Now, you call Zac and ask him to meet tomorrow. I will go with you."

"But..."

"I know how to make him change his mind. And I can let you live in the Buchanna's place."

Chapter 77 An Acquaintance

In the ward, Aurora gave a peeled apple to Macy.

"You don't have to be so serious. Those paparazzi will do the job." Aurora looked at her with regret.

Macy held a cigarette while lying on the sickbed with gauze on her forehead.

"If I didn't do this, the Vance family wouldn't believe me and wouldn't link this matter to Davis." Macy's lips twitched while feeling pain.

She looked up at Aurora, "My help wasn't for free. Don't forget your promise to win the Malon Company's design competition next quarter."

"How about..."

"How about I put myself at your disposal?" Aurora forced out a joke, feeling guilty.

Before going to Fashion Week, Aurora came to Macy and confessed to her.

Aurora told Macy that she entered Malon Company because of Zac but she didn't know Zac's purpose.

She asked Macy for a favor, and she would promise one request gratefully.

N

One

The first time Aurora went to Creek Club to meet Macy, one of those people was Scott, and he wanted to flirt with Macy.

Scott pressured Macy by spreading rumors about Macy's unrestrained private life.

He tried to force Macy to submit and become his secret lover.

Aurora requested that Macy could cause Scott trouble and frame Davis.

But Aurora didn't expect that Macy would hurt herself.

When Aurora got the news on the plane, she thought she would blame herself for a lifetime if something happened to Macy.

Macy chuckled, "I know that you can keep your promise. Don't feel burdened. It was my plan. That guy deserves it."

She put out the cigarette butt and blew it gently.

She helped Aurora and it would affect Zac's business because Aurora's suggestion was what Macy

Wanted.

Compared to the money, she had long wanted to uproot the Vance family.

"But I can't work recently. Take care. Those people will continue to bully you." Macy said and lay down, "You don't have to see me all the time. I'm fine."

She closed her eyes gloatingly.

"But I have nowhere to go. I will be harmed by loan sharks if I leave."

Macy opened her eyes slowly. "Hasn't it been resolved yet?" she asked.

Aurora lowered her head and peeled another apple to eat. "A lot of people hate me."

On the way there, someone followed her until she entered the hospital.

Because there were security guards at the gate, nurses on duty, and surveillance in the corridor, it was not easy to harm Aurora.

Macy looked at Aurora with sympathy.

Aurora squeezed out a smile. "Can I sleep here?"

"No, I snore at night."

"It's very dangerous for me to go out!"

Macy frowned and threw the pillow under her arm to Aurora, "Only today."
Her tone sounded like a certain man.
Aurora was stunned. And she agreed. She paid the fee with her phone for the temporarily rented bed. She lay down after tidying up.
The corridor lights shone through the windows in the ward.
"Why did you study design?" Macy asked gloomily.
"Before my family went bankrupt, I didn't have to learn any practical skills. I just need to choose one I like." Aurora closed her eyes as she spoke quietly.
She treated Macy as her first friend after being released from prison.
Aurora chose one among many skills, and she chose one among many men.
Aurora once thought proudly that it was impossible for Zac to not love her.
She was a good-looking girl who had good credentials and a good family background...
But she didn't expect Zac to hate the Bennet family so much.
Aurora frowned as a drop of tear flowed down.
The night was quiet. Macy seemed to say something, but Aurora did not hear it.
The next morning, Aurora washed up in the public bathroom and went to work. On the way, her mobile phone kept vibrating for news reminders.
"The Buchanna Group has announced stop cooperation with the Swon Group."
"The new building project of the Buchanna Group will be suspended."
"The real estate tycoon, Scott, met a beautiful woman at night and got into an accident. Why?"
Aurora yawned and flipped through the news. She pursed her lips.
"Boring."
She gave the 1,000 dollars that Faye had given her to the paparazzi company. How could the things they wrote be so old and lacking in highlights?
Aurora could imagine Zac's expression.
Zac was probably having a meeting at the Buchanna Group.
Aurora pursed her lips. "I'll see how much you like Wenny. The Swon family is declining. Will you complete the wedding ceremony with her?"
Her heart was still filled with hatred.
She wanted Zac to live a lonely life. The Swon family was just the beginning.
After Aurora arrived at the company, she found that everyone had gathered together to gossip. The interns weren't hostile to her because Mary told the other interns about Aurora's merits.
And everyone gradually discovered that it was Sara who kept looking for trouble with Aurora.
ra
"Aurora, over here." Mary waved enthusiastically.
"Why is the atmosphere so lively?" Aurora walked over and sat down.
"Here is the news. Sara has quit intern training." Mary said mysteriously, "And our intern trainer has also changed from Anna to a handsome guy."
Aurora hummed
She was not interested in any handsome man.

“He is coming.”

Someone ran in quickly from the outside, “How handsome. My word. I’m drooling.” Aurora propped up her chin and looked in the direction of everyone’s gaze. How handsome was the man?

An emotionless face appeared in her mind. How about the man when he was compared to Zac?

The door was pushed open. A tall and thin man walked in.

He wore a plaid shirt and slender jeans. The sleeves were rolled up to show the wheat-colored muscles that were attractive because of fitness.

The man was a sunny, handsome guy.

Aurora raised her eyebrows, not because she was surprised by the handsomeness. She knew the man.

The man walked up to the podium and looked around with a smile. His gaze was calm as he looked at Aurora. And he said gently with a pleasant foreign accent, “Hello everyone. From today onwards, I am your trainer. I’m Jay Keen.”

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 78

Chapter 78 Invite Her to a Show

The young master of the Keen family was Aurora’s classmate in college.

No dispute existed between them, but Jay had hated Aurora before.

Because their families were business competitors, but after the Bennet family fell, the business of the Keen family didn’t expand as planned. At that time, Aurora couldn’t even protect herself. She didn’t know what had happened.

But what was certain was that with Zac’s business ambition, he would not be taken advantage of by others.

The portion of the market share that the Bennet family lost was all taken by the Buchanna Group.

Aurora remembered it. When she was about to marry Zac, Jay went abroad to study and applied for the top design school she liked the most.

Maybe after she gave up the chance, he took it.

The world was unpredictable.

“OK, no more waste of time. Let’s talk about the design origins at seven tonight.”

“OK!”

The female interns under the stage looked at Jay with admiration. Aurora was the calmest.

She calmly packed up her things and was about to take something for Macy from Macy’s office.

Then she went to the hospital.

“Aurora.”

Just when she stepped down the steps...

A clear voice called her.

She looked back, and Jay said with a smile, "I owe you a coffee. Maybe today?"

She blinked her eyes, unable to remember when it happened.

However, since Jay insisted, Aurora couldn't refuse. Those female interns were all looking at her with envy

"Sure."

Aurora walked over and left with Jay.

Behind them, the interns gathered. "What's going on? The new trainer knows Aurora?"

No way, I heard he just came back from abroad."

"She's amazing. Men around her are all handsome!"

"The design match for the next quarter is coming. If Aurora's in a good relationship with him, she'll be an employee in Malon."

Mary stood behind them, looking at Aurora's and Jay's backs in confusion.

She felt that was not the case.

Just now, she saw it when Jay looked at Aurora in resentment.

The atmosphere in the café was good. Aurora looked at Jay in confusion. "Why will you help me win the design match?"

Jay's beautiful fingers circled the coffee cup.

"No reason! You have strength. Those interns are no match for you. And, I know what happened to your family. You only need a chance."

Aurora said nothing.

He paused and then continued, "Besides, you should go abroad back then. Everything I have now should be yours."

Jay smiled with deep eyes.

Aurora shook her head. "You obtained what you have through hard work. It has nothing to do with me. I admit it. I need to win, but I don't need any help."

After she said this, she got up and was about to leave.

A chuckle appeared in the café filled with coffee aroma.

"Stop pretending. I know your true colors."

Aurora stopped and turned around to look at him.

Jay took out a business card and placed it on the table. It was the paparazzi company that Aurora had entrusted.

Aurora frowned. Everything she did would be known. Those people worked for money. They would listen to whoever offered more money.

She knew that she would be exposed, but didn't expect it to be so soon.

"What do you mean?"

She walked back and looked at Jay in confusion.

"Work with me. I hate Zac, like you."

30 minutes later, Aurora was on her way home.

Thoughts swirled in her mind. Jay's words were tempting. With a trainer as a spy and her strength, she would win.

Should she agree?

Could there be a trap?

The more she pondered, the slower she walked. Suddenly, a black car appeared in front of her and the electric door slowly opened.

Carter walked out of the car. "Ms. Bennet, Mr. Buchanna invites you over."
Aurora looked at the three bodyguards in the car and sneered. "Mr. Bacon, 'invite? Really?'"
Carter raised his hand and said nothing.
Aurora had no choice.
She watched the car door close and her hand reached into her bag.
But before she could move, her both hands were taken at the same time. Her bag and phone were taken away.
Aurora was angry. "He's playing dirty with me now?"
He might just kill her then.
According to him, this was called pulling out the roots.
Carter pulled his glasses. "Ms. Bennet, don't misunderstand. Mr. Buchanna doesn't mean any harm. But the place you're going to later isn't suitable for any electronic device."
Aurora frowned more.
Shortly after, she found the direction familiar.
The car turned several times and entered the back gate of Creek Club.
"Why are we here?"
"Mr. Buchanna wants to invite you to dinner," Carter said and winked at the bodyguards behind.
Aurora was then dragged in.
Aurora was then dragged in.
When she sat in the private room and saw the large table of served dishes, she was confused.
"Anything wrong with Zac?"
How could he be so kind as to treat her to a big meal?
Carter raised his wrist and asked the bodyguards to go out. He told Aurora, "Mr. Buchanna's guests are coming. Hope you will eat quietly and not disturb them."
Aurora wanted to ask again, but Carter had closed the door.
The room fell silent
Aurora took the fork. She had just picked up some meat when she heard the sound of an electric curtain rolling up. The curtain of the landscape painting on her right rolled up, and behind it was a two way glass.
She could clearly see and hear the sounds of the private room next door.
Aurora chewed the meat and watched quietly.
Zac sat there and Carter said something in his ear. After that, Zac looked at Aurora's side with cold eyes.
Then he turned back and closed his eyes to rest.
Aurora was baffled by the stare.
But it was a waste not to eat free food.
Just as she was about to eat, two people walked into the private room. It was Faye and Wenny.
When they saw Zac, they both smiled brilliantly. Especially Faye, all her teeth were seen.

“Zac, sorry. Traffic on the road. I made you wait for long!”
She was flattering Zack lowly. Disgusting!
Aurora frowned and lost appetite.
Zac invited her to a show?
He deliberately tried to disgust her.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 79

Chapter 79 A Trap in a Trap

When Aurora returned home last night, she received a message from Faye, hoping that she would not tell the Swon family about their previous relationship.

Aurora took the juice on the table and had a sip.

Then she was sober. She smiled and watched the show.

Aurora was thinking about when to tell Faye that there was another one who knew about the relationship between her and the Bennet family.

Zac remained indifferent, cold like ice.

“Zac, I talked to Wenny’s father. We failed you this time for what happened in our family. Don’t blame Wenny. She’s an innocent girl and knows nothing.”

Faye smiled and raise the glass in her hand. “I apologize to you on behalf of her father.” Her words seemed powerful.

People who didn’t know would think that she was Wenny’s biological mother.

Aurora propped up her chin and her gaze fell on Zac.

Zac raised his chin slightly. “Did you meet me just to say this?”

His impatience was written on his face.

“No.” Wenny pulled Faye anxiously, “Hurry up and say it!”

Before leaving this morning, Faye had told Wenny that she was confident to close the relationship between the Swon family and Zac.

Faye patted the back of Wenny’s hand. “Wenny, don’t be anxious. You and Zac have had a sexual relationship. No matter what happens to us, Zac won’t draw a clear line with us. If that happens, what will you do for the rest of your life?”

Wow!

Aurora was about to praise Faye’s courage.

She openly used Wenny’s pregnancy to ‘threaten’ Zac,

If it was someone else, they would pretend to say something nice for their dignity.

However, Zac warned coldly, “I will take responsibility, but don’t mix up my private affairs and the Buchanna Group.”

“Why? Isn’t it the same? The development of our family is also good for you. Also, the truth of Scott’s accident is still being investigated. It’s not sure that we’re involved. Any evidence?” Faye smiled.

“I think everything’s related to one person.”

“Who?”

“Aurora.”

Across by the glass, Aurora was stunned and she slowly frowned.

Where did she reveal a flaw?

Or was Macy in trouble?

As she thought this, she didn't want to watch the show anymore. Just as she was about to leave, Zac said, "Reason."

He didn't believe it?

Aurora turned around. She knew that Zac could not see her, but she felt that he had gazed at her.

That gaze was bone-chilling.

"The moment Aurora was released from prison, your wedding with Wenny was ruined.

Also, the woman who has an unknown relationship with Scott knows Aurora, right?"

Aurora heard this and snorted.

She sat down and continued to eat.

Carter had been watching Aurora outside the door. Seeing this, he sent a message to Zac.

"Ms. Bennet is fine. She is eating happily."

Zac glanced at the screen of his phone, and his eyes grew colder.

He had long thought of this, and he prepared this today to test Aurora.

If she really tricked him...

"That's right, Zac. I also feel Aurora suspicious!" Wenny couldn't hold it and showed her agreement, "If it wasn't for her, we would have long been a true couple."

Faye looked at Wenny with satisfaction and continued to say, "I think you should hold the wedding as soon as possible. The two companies should continue to cooperate.

You are Davis' son-in-law. You should believe him."

First, Faye tried to push anything onto Aurora. Then she wanted Zac to be a good son-in-law?

Aurora enjoyed the crab meat in her mouth.

"Good."

However, she didn't expect Faye to be right. Zac asked her to come because he was also suspicious.

She was not afraid of going up against Zac, but if she admitted it, she was afraid that she would not be able to leave here. Moreover, the second step of her plan had not been implemented yet!

On the other side, Zac's slender fingers tapped on the table, over and over again.

"Zac, do you think that other than her, there would be anyone else? No one would hate you as much as she does, right?" Wenny looked over with a bit of a guilty conscience.

"Of course. I've made a lot of enemies over the years." Zac smiled with disdain.

In order to succeed, he had given up many things and offended many people. From his standpoint, he didn't feel that he was wrong, but since he had become a man above others, there were naturally people who went downhill.

Shawn was a good example.

Although Zac was smiling, his eyes seemed to be covered in ice.

"With just Aurora, can she cause such a big storm?"

Impossible, how could she do it?

Aurora chewed the crab meat in her mouth, and her heart skipped a beat.

She curled her lips in disgust and spat out a hard shell. She muttered in her heart, Who are you looking down on?

"It's not completely impossible," Faye said, her smile stiffened.

She didn't have the confidence in her heart, so she thought about it and took out the things she had prepared long ago.

"This card was given to me by Aurora yesterday. She asked me to help her keep an eye on Wenny, but I refused." Faye turned the card around.

"This card is hers. The password is her birthday. There are 17 thousand dollars in it." Aurora put down her fork.

She stared at Faye angrily.

She still had money, but Faye had taken it.

Zac glanced at the card and looked at Faye again, "With your relationship, will you betray Aurora?"

Faye's smile became more awkward.

Her hand under the table pressed down on Wenny's wrist. She smiled at Zac and said, "That was the past. I have turned a new leaf. Right now, I wholeheartedly think about Wenny and the Swon family."

"Really?"

Zac's smile grew wider.

"If you don't believe me, you can go and check it out." Faye coughed.

Zac gently glanced at Aurora again, quietly accepted the card, and stood up, "The wedding is the day after tomorrow. Prepare in advance."

Wenny's smile widened to the corners of her eyes.

"That's great, Zac. I will do well. I'm really happy."

Faye breathed a sigh of relief and no longer looked at Zac. If she didn't have Aurora's card, she might not have been able to fool him.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 80

Chapter 80 Condition to Give You the Card

Seeing their undisguised thoughts, Zac said with indifference.

"Do you know who suggested this?"

Wenny stopped smiling and shook her head.

"Aurora."

Zac stepped away, leaving Wenny and Faye stunned.

"What did he mean? Did Aurora ask him to change his mind and continue the wedding with me!" Wenny clenched her palms. She was unable to accept this fact.

"The wedding will be held on time. Don't think about anything else. Just wait to be the bride. This time, you must marry Zac," Faye comforted her.

"But..."

Wenny felt uncomfortable.

She felt that things wouldn't go so smoothly. Last time, their wedding was ruined by Aurora. Would Aurora be so kind this time?

The more Wenny thought about it, the more she felt that something was wrong. "No, I have to make them hurry up. We can't delay any longer."

"Yes. Let's go first. Don't let anyone hear us."

Faye pulled Wenny and turned around to carry their bags and scarves. Then she protected Wenny all the way out.

On this side, Aurora was still eating. She had finished the crabs and she put the complete shells aside. Then she took her fork and began to eat other food.

This meal in Creek Club was definitely not cheap.

She might not be able to have such good food in half a month. Aurora's living criterion No.1 was "never waste any food".

When Zac returned, he saw that she was sitting there and eating happily.

He sat on the opposite seat, his legs crossed and folded.

After a long while, Aurora did not seem to have noticed him enter.

Zac frowned. "Talk."

Aurora held the chicken leg in one hand and muttered, "You invited me here. It should be you who paid for it, right?"

Zac looked at her silently, his temples throbbing. "Yes, I'll pay, with your money."

He put that card on the table.

The next second, Aurora's eyes lit up and she immediately put down her fork. "Mr. Buchanna, you are wrong to do this. You know that it's my money."

"Yours?"

The corners of Zac's mouth curled into a playful smile. When mentioning money, she became active.

The next second, his words ruthlessly shattered Aurora's pride, "You owe me several million, the money here is not even enough for interest."

Aurora was speechless.

She took a deep breath.

Then she found that she had nothing to say, so she lowered her head, and continued to eat.

"I can give you this card." Zac suddenly said, throwing out the bait.

"Conditions?" Aurora chewed the food in her mouth.

Zac was really a bad one and it was absolutely impossible for him to give her the money easily.

"During the wedding, you must dress up and congratulate me in person." Zac's eyes grew colder. He held the card between his fingers and waved it in front of Aurora. "After that, it is yours."

Aurora gritted her teeth.

"OK"

She would do anything for money.

Zac looked at her in a judging way and said in a cold voice, "If you dare lie to me, don't even think about staying in Clouston any longer."

"OK, got it."

Aurora nodded perfunctorily, then wiped her mouth, "Finished? Then I'm leaving."

Before Zac could say anything, Aurora had left quickly.

"Follow her," he said.

"Yes, Mr. Buchanna." Carter immediately responded and sent someone to follow Aurora.

Zac glanced at the card and snorted with disdain, "Aurora, now you give up your dignity for only 17 thousand dollars?"

He had originally thought that there would be a hint of pleasure in successfully taking revenge in his heart.

He would let Aurora see with her own eyes how Faye betrayed her.

He wanted Aurora to enjoy delicious food while feeling betrayed by the whole world.

But looking at the empty plates in front of him, Zac realized that Aurora had completely changed.

After leaving Creek Club, Aurora called Macy and said a few words of concern.

"Maybe the Swon family and Zac's men will go to you. If you ... you can directly tell them it's me, I am not afraid of them."

Macy was lying on the bed, enjoying TV shows.

"Do I look like such a sneaky one? Alright, I'm not a fool. After this, I will definitely stay far away from you so as not to cause trouble."

This time, Aurora's suggestion just happened to hit the mark.

Scott was lustful and overbearing. She had long wanted to get rid of him.

"Alright then, I'll find time to visit you again."

On the other side of the line, Macy urged. "The design competition will be at the beginning of next month. You have to practice more during this time and find more inspiration, understand?"

"Can I ask why you insist that I win?" Aurora didn't quite understand, so she might as well ask clearly.

"I don't want you to walk the same path as me," Macy said after a long time.

With that, she cut the call.

These words seemed confusing.

Aurora put the phone back in her pocket and took a taxi back home.

In the next few days, nothing happened.

That morning, before Aurora got up, she was woken up by a call from Carter.

"Ms. Bennet, the car is already downstairs."

Aurora tried hard to think about it and sat up in a sudden realization. She almost forgot that she had to attend her ex-husband's wedding. And she had to dress up carefully.

"OK, got it."

She got up to wash her face, changed into the red dress she bought abroad, and put on a pair of high heels.

The clothes weren't expensive. But she looked elegant in them.

She looked in the mirror and smiled with satisfaction.

She was about to watch a show, so she had to be happy.

Before she left, she received a call from Terry. "You still want to go? Then I'll pick you up and go with you."

"No need, aren't you going to the race team today? There's your solo match on the weekend, right? I'll go see when the time comes. Alright, I got to go now."

Aurora got into the car.

Aurora found that Carter dressed like usual today. He did not dress up or change his black suit.

Aurora suddenly felt a bit of sympathy for Wenny since she would marry a man who did not care about marriage and love. The more pathetic thing was that she was happy.

Aurora took a deep breath and shook his head.

“Ms. Bennet, do you feel anything unusual recently?” Carter asked as he drove.

What? Aurora did not quite understand.

“When you go in and out of here, do you feel that someone is following you? After you left Creek Club that day, we found a group of people following you in secret.”

Aurora frowned.

“Right now, their car is right behind us.”
