

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 91

Chapter 91 I Help You

“Don’t worry, I’m not as blind as Wenny.”

Aurora took out the card and waved it in front of Faye. “This looks familiar, right?”

“Isn’t this...” Faye was terrified.

She stole it from the Bennet family. It belonged to Aurora.

“Give all the money back,” Aurora said firmly.

Faye didn’t know what Zac had said to her and how she got the card. She panicked and didn’t dare to look at Aurora.

“Don’t play dumb. I went to the bank and learned there were 1 million dollars.”

But within a month after the Bennet family went bankrupt, the money was gone.

Her father transferred the money to her on her birthday, but somehow, Faye took the card.

Faye’s face turned pale. She smiled awkwardly, “Aurora, I didn’t know that. It was your father who insisted on giving it to me.”

Aurora didn’t bother to call her bluff.

She threw the card at her. “Return the money in three days, or I’ll make the Swon family suffer the same end.”

“Aurora, don’t be so cruel. Wenny and her father did nothing wrong.”

Aurora curled her lips coldly and stared at Faye’s fake eyes. She told her word by word,

“If you keep talking nonsense, I will tell Davis what kind of person you were before.”

Faye let go at once.

She no longer dared to look at Aurora as she retreated.

Aurora turned around and left. Faye didn’t deserve her attention.

She borrowed the VIP card from Earl to enter the Ocean Building. After meeting Faye, she returned the card to him.

Earl did not expect Aurora to return it so quickly.

“Ms. Bennet, you don’t have to return it now,” Earl said kindly.

“No need, I don’t have much time.” Aurora frowned, then glanced at Earl, “Can you tell me who asked you to give me this job?”

She wasn’t sure if Earl knew that Zac was behind this.

And she wondered if there was someone else behind this.

She wanted to make a deal with others. Everything in the world could be settled by money.

“The order was from my boss. If you have any questions, I could convey them for you.”

Earl was prepared. In fact, Aurora should have asked this question a long time ago.

“Forget it.”

Aurora waved her hand. She was not that interested in Zac.

Not long after Aurora left, Earl sent an email about Aurora’s whereabouts in the past week and who she had met.

The recipient was titled “Boss”.

There was the sound of a computer notification as the e-mail was received.

Zac sat in front of the desk and moved his mouse.

He looked at the screen and his gaze deepened.

Carter knocked on the door and came in. "Mr. Buchanna, here is the contract with the Oconnell Group. Nothing is wrong. The project will be officially launched next week." Zac did not respond.

After putting down the document, Carter hesitated and asked, "We almost reached an agreement with the Walton Group, but they want a lower price. They sent an invitation to Mrs. Walton's birthday banquet."

"I won't go," said Zac without even looking at the invitation.

He never went to a meaningless banquet.

"Got it, Mr. Buchanna. I'll reply to them." Carter quietly left.

Zac unbuttoned his collar and lay back in his seat. Aurora's fair and beautiful face appeared in his mind.

Aurora schemed against the Swon family because of Faye.

In this case, the Bennet Group would be her next target.

Zac tapped on the table, picked up the telephone receiver, and dialed. "There is no need to investigate the car accident anymore. All the results should be destroyed."

He should be the only one who knew the truth.

"Yes, Mr. Buchanna."

He covered the truth because he didn't want to ruin the relationship with the Vance family. Daniel was impulsive. If he knew that Scott got hurt because of Aurora, there would be a mess. He frowned. He didn't bother to explain.

Just as Aurora returned home, she received a call from Abel.

"Aurora, if you are not busy, can you come over? Terry has locked himself up for a day and a night. He wouldn't open the door no matter who knocked on the door. You're our last hope," Abel sighed.

Aurora scratched her hair and was about to speak when a voice came from the other side, "Is it Aurora? Let me talk to her."

Then, Sara said,

"Aurora, Terry hasn't eaten for more than a day. Please talk to him, okay?"

Aurora hung up directly, opened the door and walked out.

Sara sobbed and said aggrievedly, "Maybe I screwed it up. Aurora hung up the phone."

"No way!" Abel suddenly realized something and slapped his forehead. "I made a mistake..."

His teammates shook their heads.

Half an hour later, Aurora walked in with takeout. "Go out now. I'll talk to him," she said.

When Sara saw Aurora, she didn't smile.

"Aurora, you just hung up my phone. I thought you were not coming."

Aurora ignored her and said nothing.

"Let me help you." Sara stepped forward to help.

Abel winked and someone went over to stop Sara.

"Ms. Jarrett, there is a coffee shop downstairs. Let's buy you a cup of coffee."

They were all young and handsome young men. Sara couldn't refuse them and had to go.

The door closed and Aurora felt that the whole world was quiet.

She walked to the door of the room and shouted, "There are food and beer. I can't finish them all by myself. You shall come out and help."

Then, she sat down beside the coffee table, turned on the TV, and ate by herself. After a while, the door opened. Terry lazily leaned against the door. His eyes were dim. He hadn't eaten for more than a day. He was really hungry. Aurora only watched TV and did not look at him. Terry walked over with his head down and started eating. After a while, Aurora said, "Don't worry about the money. I've helped you get the sponsorship. Just focus on your dream. Don't give up."

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 92

Chapter 92 Invitation

Terry lost his appetite. "Aurora. I still have money. You should pay off your debts with your money." Terry lowered his head unwillingly. He had tried his best. But his mother insisted that he get engaged to Sara or date Sara before she continued investing in the race team. His friends were told not to help him either. He put down the fork. "No matter how difficult it is, I won't..." He wouldn't take Aurora's money. However, he didn't finish his words. Looking at Aurora's clear eyes, he swallowed his words. "I said no," he muttered. Aurora directly took out the IOU from her bag, "Sign it. When you have money, pay me back with interest. At least, you can't miss the races." Before she came, she had called Abel and was clear about the current situation. If they couldn't solve the financial problem, the race team could only disband. Suddenly, someone knocked on the door. "Terry, come out. Your mother is here," Sara shouted. "My mother? How does she know where I am?" Terry was shocked. BA He stood up and quickly cleaned up the mess on the ground. Aurora took another bite of food and calmly carried her bag on her back. She walked out of the balcony door through which she could go to another room. When Terry came back to his senses, Aurora was no longer in the room, leaving the IOU on the table. Kate had the door open. As she entered, she saw Terry sitting there alone while eating. Sara frowned. "No way. Aurora was here." Terry swallowed the food in his mouth and asked, "Mom, how did you find me?" Sara lowered her head.

No one would inform Kate except for her! And Kate came when Aurora and Terry were alone in the room.

Kate smiled, "I have good news. I am willing to continue investing in your team."

Terry and his teammates were shocked.

But Terry quickly calmed down. "Mom, I can't do what you said."

He glanced at Sara coldly.

Sara lowered her head and fell silent.

"I know you have someone special in your mind. I won't force you. I changed my mind because of Sara. So from now on, don't be cold to her, okay?"

Only by doing so could Sara stay close to him.

"Really?" Terry's eyes lit up.

"Of course. Here's the money."

Outside the door, Abel and the others were excited. "Great!"

"Thank you, Mom!"

Seeing the smile on Terry's face, Sara pursed her lips and left with Kate in the car.

"Sara, it is a good idea. We've been on speaking terms because of the sponsorship of the race team for a long time. I was wondering how to break the ice." Kate took Sara's hand and looked at her with satisfaction

She just couldn't figure out why her son liked a divorced woman.

Sara smiled, "Kate, Terry cares about you and his father. You just need to talk things out. Besides, he really likes Aurora. I am willing to quit and send them my best wishes."

"No!"

When Kate thought of the Jarrett family's strength, she grabbed Sara's hand.

"You are the only daughter-in-law in my heart. I asked him to invite Aurora to my birthday party to let her know the gap between her and my son!"

Even if Aurora's family hadn't gone bankrupt, Kate would hesitate to let her son marry her.

Sara hid the smug look in her eyes.

"Thank you, Kate. I will try my best," she said.

Kate liked Sara a lot. When she thought of Aurora, she was angry.

On the way home, Aurora was caught up by Terry.

He pulled her out of the taxi and put the IOU in her hand. "We have a sponsor now.

Take your money back."

"So fast?" Aurora said as she took away the IOU at once.

"I have good news to tell you." Terry couldn't help but hold her back.

"You're going to buy me dinner?"

"Do you only care about food?" Terry coughed.

"Food is necessary." Aurora looked up at him, "Is there any better news than a free meal?"

A free meal was the best news for her!

Terry had to nod. "That makes sense. I'd like to invite you to have dinner in my home," he said.

His mother allowed him to pursue Aurora!

He wanted to take her to the birthday party and let everyone know that Aurora was no longer Zac's ex-wife bullied by Zac and Wenny. In the future, she would be his girlfriend or even his wife!

"No." Aurora thought of Kate's proud face. She shook her head and refused, "I need to prepare for the design competition. I'm busy."

"It's said that there will be a chef from Atlantic."

"When will the party be held? I don't need to prepare a gift, right?"

Terry smiled and looked at her gently. "No need. You just need to be present," he said. He would prepare her a gift.

He only hoped that she would stay by his side at the party.

The next evening, Aurora went upstairs tiredly and saw a large package in front of her door. The note said, "For Aurora."

Ora

She looked at the box for a while and remembered the message Terry sent in the morning.

Aurora walked over, picked up the package, opened the door, closed the door, threw it away, and then cooked.

Aurora walked over, picked up the package, opened the door, closed the door, threw it away, and then cooked.

The next day, when Terry came to pick her up, the package was still on the ground.

"Aren't you going to try the dress I bought for you?" Terry looked at the shirt and jeans on her and suggested tentatively, "My mom is celebrating her birthday today. There will be many guests.

"Is there a problem?" Aurora blinked her eyes.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 93

Chapter 93 Jealousy

"I'd better stay here. I don't want to ruin it." Aurora was sensitive.

His mother wouldn't be happy if she came.

Knowing what she meant, Terry hurriedly said, "My mother agreed. When I came to pick you up, she asked me to be quick."

Aurora paused and looked at him in confusion. "Really?"

Terry nodded seriously. "Of course, I wouldn't joke about that. Let's go. If you don't like that dress, let's go buy another one."

Aurora thought for a moment. "Wait."

She took out an ordinary dress from her suitcase. Although it was a classic old dress, it looked more attractive on her.

"Let's go." Aurora closed the door. For her, it was just a free meal. After the meal, she would leave.

Terry was joyful as he thought about how to introduce Aurora to everyone.

Only did Aurora find the party was bigger than she had thought when she arrived.

Kate had invited a lot of people from the upper class of Clouston to her birthday party.

Countless luxury cars stopped outside the Walton's house.

Kate was wearing a dress, standing on the balcony of the second floor with a smile, chatting with several women.

"I heard that your son is dating the daughter of the Jarrett family. You're going to have a grandson soon!" Someone said with a smile.

"The news spread quickly. They haven't gone steady yet. I don't interfere with Terry."

"Mrs. Walton, I envy you..."

Then, Kate saw Terry walk in with Aurora. Kate's smile faded away.

Someone realized that something was wrong and muttered in surprise, "Isn't she Zac's ex-wife?"

"Mrs. Walton, is she trying to seduce your son?"

The news that Terry proposed to Aurora in public on the podium had spread.

Kate snorted awkwardly, "She is a jinx."

"It must be her who sticks to Mr. Walton. She has no idea what she is!"

Terry brought Aurora into the living room on the first floor and did not hear the discussion on the second floor.

Just then, Zac, who was discussing business with Bob Walton not afar, heard them by accident.

Bob coughed heavily, "I'm sorry. Women like gossiping."

He made a gesture to lead Zac to the restaurant inside.

"It doesn't matter," said Zac indifferently

"We'll do our best in our cooperation. Thank you for forgiving us and giving us this chance."

Before Zac, even Bob, an experienced businessman, had to be humble.

In the past few years, the Buchanna Group had boomed amazingly. In particular, after the Bennet family declined, Zac swallowed up several medium-sized companies in one go, making the Buchanna Group preeminent in Clouston. Zac became legendary too.

As long as they worked together, the problems of the Walton family would be solved.

Therefore, Bob worked very hard to facilitate this cooperation.

"Zac!" Wenny walked over with a cup of coffee and handed it over.

Zac took the coffee cup and took a sip.

They looked compatible.

Bob smiled and said, "Then let's talk later. Mr. Buchanna, enjoy the coffee please."

Then, he walked away, found the butler, and said, "Tell Terry now to stay away from Aurora in any cases. I don't want to hear any gossip about them!"

For a moment, he felt that Zac cared a lot about it.

NON

He went inside to find Kate.

Wenny was trying to convince Zac. Zac agreed to take her with him after she pleaded.

She wanted to be with him in public.

Only in this way could she uphold her identity as Mrs. Buchanna. Moreover, she learned from Sara on the way that Aurora would also be here today as Terry's date.

Od V

When she thought of her two weddings ruined by Aurora, Wenny gritted her teeth in hatred.

In her opinion, Aurora wanted to use Terry to turn over. She even wanted to two-time and seduce

(n OVE

In her opinion, Aurora wanted to use Terry to turn over. She even wanted to two-time and seduce Zac.

“Zac, there seems to be a lot of your partners downstairs. Can you introduce them to me?” She wanted to be part of Zac’s social life. She could not miss such a good chance today.

Zac was a bit moved. “You don’t like being social.”

He brought Wenny to a dinner party once, but Wenny left early because she was not interested “We’ve got married. I hope I can help you in your career,” she coughed.

Zac raised his eyebrows quietly.

“Let’s go.” Wenny smiled and held his hand.

Aurora was downstairs, and Wenny made up her mind to beat Aurora today. She was determined to let Terry and Zac abandon Aurora. Only in this way could she vent her anger.

She held onto Zac’s arm, as proud as a peacock. She raised her chin and revealed a proud expression.

However, some guests had heard of the news.

“The Swon family was saved by the Buchanna Group?”

“A while ago, Davis borrowed money everywhere and held two weddings for his daughter. They were all ruined by Zac’s ex-wife. It was really embarrassing.”

“In other words, they are still not a formal couple? Shame on Wenny.”

These words were unpleasant to Wenny, but Aurora felt happy.

She walked around with the plate to taste the delicious food. Meanwhile, she heard the gabble of the so-called upper-class people.

Of course, some were gossiping about her. But she didn’t care.

In the crowd, she could feel someone was staring at her.

She furrowed her brows and glared back at him in annoyance.

She didn’t gossip about Zac and Wenny. She wondered why Zac looked at her.

She used to hope that Zac could look at her. Now, she believed that she was too stupid to long for his attention.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 94

Chapter 94 Conflict

Zac wanted to take the chance to talk to several businessmen, but if they were over-concerned with his private life, it would be difficult to get to the point.

He stared at Aurora, thinking about what to do.

However, she suddenly glared at him.

He frowned with coldness in his eyes.

“Zac, what are you looking at?” Wenny noticed that he had been distracted and found that he was staring at Aurora, which made her uncomfortable.

“Nothing,” said he coldly.

“I’m hungry. Let’s go over there.” Wenny deliberately pointed at the table on the other side.

Zac nodded. Just as they turned around, Mike Lee, a business partner walked over.

“Mr. Buchanna, how about discussing the cooperation further?”

He was sincere.

Zac agreed and let go of Wenny’s hand. “Excuse me.”

Use II

He walked away.

However, they were walking towards Aurora. Wenny felt anxious and she took his arm.”

Zac, can I go with you?”

Although they were close, it involved business secrets.

More importantly, Wenny knew nothing about business.

Zac’s eyes were cold. He whispered in her ear, “It’s not a good idea. I’ll go find you in a while.”

Wenny could only let go with a smile.

“You’re so close,” the businessman joked.

Zac didn’t respond but made a gesture.

Wenny stayed put, biting her lips. She was Zac’s date! No one called her Mrs.

Buchanna. Being ignored made her feel terrible.

The phone in her handbag vibrated. It was a call from Saul.

With a frown, she walked into the bathroom.

00M

Wenny told him that she failed to be part of the circle of Zac, and Saul how to make it and imperceptibly drive a wedge between Aurora and Zac.

About ten minutes later.

Terry left. Aurora ate alone happily. She heard someone talking about business on the sofa behind.

That was normal.

But the voice was harsh, as if she spoke on purpose. It made Aurora uncomfortable, and she lost her appetite.

“Zac, I knew it. ‘The Bennet Group once worked on this, but they did a bad job and were sued by their partners. It’s said that they lost a lot of money.”

Aurora’s eyes darkened as she clenched her fists.

That was not the case at all!

It was that partner who embezzled the funds and deceived her father. Later, the court held another trial and returned the money to them.

Few people knew that.

Zac was one of them.

Aurora wondered if he told Wenny about it.

Aurora’s eyes were cold. He ruined her family. How could he tell Wenny about what happened to her family?

Aurora lost her composure and walked over.

“I think a company like the Bennet Group should have closed down a long time ago.

The market share should belong to better companies,” Wenny said.

She completely repeated what Saul had told her.
She was happy that she remembered so many lines for the first time.
But she didn't notice the expressions of Zac and Mike. They almost finished discussing their cooperation, but Wenny's words made Mike's face change.
His company was not as large as the Bennet Group before. Mike wondered if Wenny meant Zac didn't take him seriously.
Mike had a good relationship with Shawn in the past, so he stopped smiling.
"Looks like Mrs. Buchanna knows something about the business field."
His words flattered Wenny.
She smiled proudly as she held onto Zac's arm. "Zac taught me a lot..."
Before she could finish, she was interrupted.
"Business is always changing. A large company might close too."
Aurora's words attracted all the attention.
No one had the guts to go against Zac.
But she wasn't afraid to be the first one.
Terry walked towards her but was stopped by Sara.
"Terry, you can't help Aurora and you will even damage her reputation. I think you should go there later."
"Go away," Terry said.
Sara pursed her lips and said in a low voice, "Today is your mother's birthday. If you fight with Zac for a woman, your family will be humiliated."
Terry had to stop.
He knew that his family was working with the Buchanna Group. If he walked over, it would make things difficult for his father. It would be worse if people misunderstood Aurora.
Sara smiled as he stopped. "Let's go over there and wait."
Aurora's words made the atmosphere even more awkward.
Wenny gritted her teeth. "Zac, she cursed you."
Before Zac could speak, Aurora chuckled. "You didn't marry a star but a stupid repeater. She was afraid you didn't understand me, so she translated for you."
Zac's face got gloomy.
"Zac, don't fall for her nonsense. I didn't mean that." Wenny finally reacted and explained hurriedly.
Zac glanced at her and wished he could seal Wenny's mouth.
Wenny quickly lowered her head and didn't say anything.
Unlike Wenny, Aurora wasn't afraid of Zac. She just stood there, staring at him with cold eyes. "The Bennet family was framed and falsely accused. Nothing was wrong with the quality of the product. If Bennet family was framed and falsely accused. Nothing was wrong with the quality of the product. If Mr. Buchanna is unable to distinguish right from wrong, the Buchanna Group will go down this road too."
Her words were implicit.
She cursed that the Buchanna Group would go bankrupt.
The surrounding people gasped. It seemed that Aurora was determined to go against Zac.

But they enjoyed different positions. People believed it was easy for Zac to deal with Aurora.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 95

Chapter 95 Comparison

But no one could explain why Zac didn't do so.

They broke up, but they always showed up together, not as a couple though.

As a result, there was a gabble among the guests.

"I think Aurora and Zac would make a better couple. Wenny is eye candy. She has nothing on Aurora in shape or appearance. Aurora has better manners too."

"If it wasn't for the fall of the Bennet family, they would be a happy couple."

"Wenny mentioned the Bennet family because she knew she couldn't compare to Aurora, so she played tricks. I don't know why Mr. Buchanna likes her."

"She is good at playing cute..."

Everyone watched as Wenny leaned against Zac's arms softly.

"Zac, I didn't mean that. Don't listen to her."

Zac glanced at her with his cold eyes.

Wenny bit her lips and did not dare to make a sound.

Aurora chuckled and turned to Mike, who had been discussing business with Zac. She was polite but confident. "If you're talking about other things, I may not have the right to speak. But when it comes to the cargo ships parked at the ferry, I have something to say."

She had called the Buchanna Group anonymously before and claimed that she was a reporter who wanted to interview Zac. Of course, she was rejected.

However, she had finally managed to find something through some clues.

The goods on the ships were ordered from abroad by Saul, the vice president of the Buchanna Group. There was no problem with the source of the goods and the channel, but there was a problem with the goods.

Zac didn't know that yet.

Otherwise, he would never have mentioned that here.

Aurora smiled, "Mr. Buchanna, you are not in charge of the order of the goods, right?"

So, you don't know the parts have been out of date, and they are K type, which is forbidden in the industry."

"What? Mr. Buchanna, is what she said true?" Mike was shocked.

A ban had been issued in Clouston. If Zac had known the problem with the goods but still tried to cooperate with him openly, it must be a deliberate attempt!

Zac frowned with coldness in his eyes.

In public, he could only clarify, "Of course not. The Buchanna Group never forces others."

The Buchanna Group was famous, but Mike hesitated. He coughed lightly as he looked at Zac. "Mr. Buchanna, I'm going to the bathroom."

In other words, Mike refused to work with him.

Zac could only watch as he left. Then, he looked at Aurora.

"Ms. Bennet, you surprised me."

"Thank you, Mr. Buchanna. I'm not perfect. But I'm honest. I don't want anyone to be deceived."

She smiled. She was not arrogant but happy.

Seeing Zac's darkened face, she was happy.

Terry heaved a sigh of relief, but seeing that Zac and Aurora were still talking, he couldn't help but shake off Sara and quickly walk over.

"Aurora, I've been looking for you for a long time." He grabbed her wrist and said, "I'll take you around."

Aurora was not full yet and hesitated.

At that moment, Zac narrowed his eyes.

Wenny held his arm too. "Zac, I feel a little uncomfortable. Can you have a break with me?" Wenny asked.

After all, she was pregnant.

Her affected voice disgusted Aurora, who accepted Terry's invitation, "Is there a pond behind?"

"Yes..."

Terry introduced the place to Aurora as he led her to the pond.

Zac retracted his gaze.

Wenny became less aggressive, but she mocked Aurora still. "Zac, don't you think Aurora is a poor woman? You just divorced her and she is about to be abandoned again."

Zac said nothing

"How could a family like the Walton family allow their only son to marry someone like her? Just now, I heard that Terry is getting engaged to the Jarrett family's daughter."

Then he would abandon Aurora sooner or later.

At that time, Aurora would have nothing. Wenny believed that her reputation would be ruined in Clouston.

When Wenny thought of this, she felt better. But after she finished speaking, she discovered that Zac seemed gloomy.

"Zac, are you unhappy?"

Zac turned to her, his eyes darkening. "You came here just for the gossip?"

"I ... I heard them by chance. I talked about it because it was about you." Wenny did not understand what she did wrong.

She was a woman. It was normal for her to care about her "love rival",

But Zac was different. For him, such an occasion was for business. If not for her identity, he would not have brought Wenny here today.

Within half an hour, he was deeply aware that Wenny was not suited to his circle.

To be exact, he didn't like whatever she had done.

Zac frowned, not saying a word.

There were complicated emotions in his eyes.

"Dear guests, please come over here."

Soon, Kate's birthday banquet officially began. She and Bob stood side by side, raising their glasses to thank all the guests present and saying some moving words.

The guests were happy as if they had all forgotten about what had happened. Suddenly, Kate said, "Not long ago, my son won a small competition. The situation was complicated and he did something inappropriate. Please let it go." The words were vague. However, people understood her implications and began to whisper. "It seems that the Walton family doesn't want Terry to pursue Aurora." "Of course. Zac dumped her. The Walton family can't afford the shame." Terry and Aurora, who had just come back from the pond, heard what they said. Sara appeared before Terry and pulled him. "Terry, you should come with me and toast to Kate. There are so many people here. Don't make her lose face." Aurora had a foreboding. "No," Terry said with a frown.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 96

Chapter 96 Kick Her Out of Clouston

Terry frowned and ignored Sara. "Then I'll do it myself," Sara said in a low voice calmly. Then she walked over and gave Kate birthday wishes in public as well as a carefully selected jade necklace as a gift. "Thank you, Sara. I really like it. Come and help me put it on now." Kate smiled brightly as she held Sara tightly. People could tell that the Walton family had chosen Sara as Terry's future wife. For a moment, some looked with sympathy at Aurora who was standing next to Terry. Although Aurora used to be the daughter of a wealthy family, things had changed. Terry suppressed his anger and said firmly to Aurora, "Come with me. I'm here with you. My mom won't..." "Terry, I'm not feeling well. I want to go now." Aurora forced a smile. "Thank you for inviting me over. I'm full. I shouldn't stay any longer." It had been a long time since she had attended such a big party, and she did not want to be the center of people's gossip. Terry was anxious. "Sorry, I didn't expect this. Can you give me some time?" Aurora didn't say anything else and walked out. It wasn't that she didn't have the courage to stay and face those rumors, but that she didn't want to do that at all. Just as she passed through the guests, she saw Wenny holding Zac's arm. They gave Kate a birthday present. "Mr. Buchanna, Mrs. Buchanna, thank you." Kate smiled and deliberately replied loudly to make Aurora lose face. She wondered, How dare you attend my birthday party with my son? Kate still remembered the way Aurora refused her money. She was just pretending to be noble and virtuous. Now, she was pestering her son. Kate would never allow Aurora to enter the Walton family.

Wenny was so happy because of the title "Mrs. Buchanna".

Wenny began to chat with Kate, as if she had been accepted by the upper-class society in Clouston.

Zac had no intention of befriending the Walton family. He came only for business. He stood there, looked at the crowd, and finally fixed his eyes on Aurora.

Somehow, he couldn't help following her out.

When he went out, the sky darkened and a drizzle began to fall.

Aurora stood there with her back against him, ready to take a taxi to leave. But in the villa area, it would take her a long time to reach the gate before she could hail a taxi.

Aurora looked down at her high heels and felt a little embarrassed.

"The Bennet family is gone. No matter how you dressed up, it didn't help. The Walton family will not accept you as Terry's wife."

"None of your business." Aurora retorted without turning her head.

She was too familiar with his voice.

Kate's attitude towards Sara was obvious.

She didn't really care, but she was indeed unhappy. She regretted coming here.

Zac looked at her coolly. "You don't have to do this to yourself even if we have got divorced."

His tone was cold.

Aurora felt a bit painful and sad.

"Don't flatter yourself. Divorcing you is the most correct decision I have made in my life."

Aurora turned around and looked at the familiar face in front of her with cold eyes.

In that instant, an idea came to her mind.

Ca

She was going to find a man who was much better than Zac!

The man should be better than this cold-blooded man in terms of family background and abilities.

It reminded her of Terry.

But Aurora hesitated.

"And then? Your identity as my ex-wife has become the talk of the town. If I were you, I wouldn't have done such a stupid thing," Zac said as he suddenly took a step forward and approached Aurora.

He stared at her red lips, his eyes filled with complicated emotions.

"Onlookers would think that you were concerned about me." Aurora smiled coldly and turned her head away, "Don't worry, I will make you more pathetic than me."

In Aurora's opinion, the reason why Zac had warned her was to keep her away from the upper class of Clouston.

Then she wouldn't do it.

She wanted "Aurora's ex-husband" to become a label that he could not remove.

A guest found them, and then the news quickly spread in the hall. Wenny got out hurriedly and saw them standing outside. She gritted her teeth in anger.

“Mrs. Walton, how can you let that woman come and go? It’s low.”

Kate took a glance outside and did not mind.

As long as Aurora was not entangled with her son, she would not care. But then, she saw Terry run out with the umbrella...

“That bitch!” Kate suddenly stood up, her fingernails on the windowsill.

ОПШе

Aurora did not expect Terry to come out. She subconsciously looked in the direction of the Walton family.

“I’ll drive you home.”

Terry stuffed the umbrella into her hand, his face full of guilt. “If I hadn’t insisted on you coming, you wouldn’t have been gossiped about. It’s all my fault.”

He cared more about her than anyone else.

However, he brought her into an embarrassing situation. Terry regretted it.

Aurora wanted to say that she was fine, but Zac was still there, so she had to take the umbrella first. “Alright. Let’s go.”

Zac was ignored. His eyes darkened as he watched Aurora get into Terry’s car. There was a disdainful smile on his cold face.

“The banquet isn’t over yet. What are you doing here? Let’s go in!” Wenny walked over and said coquettishly hen Zac saw that she was about to pull his wrist, he retracted his arm.

Wenny frowned.

“Zac?” Wenny frowned.

“I still have work to do in the company. I’ll leave first.” He had already talked to Mike. What was more important was not to go back to deal with those guests, but to go back to the company to investigate the goods.

Wenny widened her eyes.

“But ... are you going to leave me here alone?”

“I’ll ask the driver to pick you up.” He had been observing for quite a while and found that Wenny liked to be flattered and was quite happy inside.

He pushed away Wenny’s hand.

A few minutes later, Wenny could only suppress her anger and force a smile as she returned to the Walton family’s banquet.

They came together, but now she was left.

Wenny felt that something was wrong.

What if Zac went to look for Aurora?

She went to Kate and pulled her aside. “Mrs. Walton, you saw everything. Mr. Walton has been captivated by Aurora. If you don’t do something, I’m afraid your son won’t listen to you anymore.”

“What do you mean?” Kate was not very happy. After all, they were not close.

“I want to work with you to kick Aurora out of Clouston!”

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 97

Chapter 97 Can I Have Them All?

Wenny and Kate had the same intention.

But as a woman of high status, Kate pulled a long face. "Although I don't like her, I won't play dirty tricks. You got the wrong person."

Wenny paused and said implicitly, "We should teach her a lesson, right? We can't just let her two-time. She's pestering Mr. Walton. When will you be able to have a grandson?"

"Moreover, if they keep entangled with each other, the Jarrett family won't keep waiting, right?"

"This is not the place to talk about it. Come with me." Kate raised her eyebrows.

Wenny was delighted. She thought, Aurora, you seduced my man. You're done.

As Aurora and Terry arrived, she saw the neighbors fighting.

The security nearby was bad, and there were thieves.

Terry held the steering wheel. "Let me help you..."

"No need. I'll go." Aurora smiled and walked into the neighborhood without looking back. She didn't want to stay longer. She was afraid that she would vent her frustration before Terry. It had nothing to do with him that she became the talk of the town.

A bang sounded.

Aurora closed the door and looked at the quiet room, pursing her lips.

She was not sad, but a little helpless.

But soon she realized that she would not say yes to Terry even without all those difficulties.

Aurora looked at the time, took out her phone, and began to browse the news. She was waiting for a good show.

Nothing happened in 15 minutes.

Thirty minutes later, the Buchanna Group released an emergency statement that they had destroyed the two batches of stock in the warehouse at the dock.

Aurora looked at the pictures and laughed.

She knew Zac well. Facing such a big problem, he would destroy the goods to protect his company's reputation.

And there would be a crackdown on the Buchanna Group.

It would affect the interests of some people.

Aurora got up and opened the door of the bedroom. There were photos on the wall of people and things all related to Zac. She walked over, took a pen, and made a red cross on the photo of a dock.

Then, she drew a line from this photo to another.

That was a photo of Saul, the vice president of the Buchanna Group, who worked with Zac.

He was a business elite who had returned home after studying abroad. But he didn't have many connections in Clouston. Both Zac and Saul made great contributions to the company. However, Zac was more potent and dominant, so he was more influential although Saul had power in the company.

“One of the lions has to leave the den. Zac, the game is on.”

There were disagreements about Zac’s actions in the Buchanna Group, because the interests of these people were touched.

Some of them were senior managers.

They ran to Saul’s residence late at night. Looking at Saul wearing a bathrobe and holding a red wine glass, they were a little embarrassed. “I’m sorry, Mr. Gates. I’m sorry to disturb you now.”

As they apologized, they took a glance at Saul’s villa.

They had never heard that Saul had a girlfriend, but he seemed to have a date.

“You came because Mr. Buchanna destroyed the goods? I can’t help you. Don’t drag me into it.” His eyes shone craftily.

“Mr. Gates, you signed the agreement on the goods. Now Mr. Buchanna is angry. We can’t take the consequences.”

It was started by Saul.

“I said it had nothing to do with me. Get lost,” Saul said, his smile gone.

He slammed the door, and the wine glass was smashed to the ground. The fragments made harsh sounds on the smooth floor.

Wenny had finished bathing and was shocked when she saw the mess.

“What’s wrong?”

Saul turned his head and stared at her fiercely. He rushed over and pulled her into his arms without hesitation. He pulled off Wenny’s bathrobe and kissed her.

“Don’t...”

Wenny was worried about her body, but Saul seemed to be crazy and cruel.

They had sex again.

“Why are you doing this to me? I came for you out of kindness. What if Zac finds out the truth?”

“Will he touch you?” Saul lit a cigarette, his eyes full of coldness and disdain, “You’re carrying my baby. I can do whatever I want, understand?”

Wenny frowned, frightened by his gaze.

After Saul finished smoking the cigarette, he pinched Wenny’s chin and kissed her.

“Remember, come here whenever I call you. Otherwise, I will let Zac know that he isn’t the father of the baby. Get lost.”

Wenny was so angry that her hands trembled. She picked up her clothes from the ground and quickly left.

Saul picked up the camera in the room, pulled out the memory card, and threw it into the drawer.

He thought, Zac, I’ll take all that you have. Women, companies, and assets...

Saul took out his phone. “The news has been leaked. All transactions are temporarily suspended.

Don’t let that jerk find anything.”

“Understood, Mr. Gates.”

Because Aurora got first place in the preliminary round and was appointed not to participate in the finals, she could enroll in Malon directly.

As soon as she went to the company, she became the envy of many people.

“Aurora, I heard that you have your own office. I envy you,” said someone who tried to flatter her.

Malon was different from other small companies. Because of the powerful strength and background of Malon, every designer had his or her own office, which could also protect original designs.

Aurora replied calmly. She had received a call last night, so she wasn't surprised. But the others all felt that she was pretending to be cold.

Only Mary and Owen were different. They rushed over. Mary shouted, “Aurora!” Owen followed closely behind her and waved at Aurora with a smile.

Aurora looked up and pressed the button to keep the elevator door open.

“Morning! I brought you something to eat.” Mary knew that Aurora often grabbed a bite in the company, so she brought her food.

“I made the biscuits myself. They are matcha and strawberry flavors.”

Aurora's eyes lit up. She had been worrying about what to eat since she arrived.

She was tired of the snacks in the company.

She looked at Mary and said frankly, “Can I have them all?”

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 98

Chapter 98 Draw Lots

“Of course, these are for you.” Mary smiled and nodded.

The elevator door opened and they walked out. The interns behind them gathered together. “She has lackeys as soon as she becomes a designer! Mary and Owen are disgusting to flatter her because of her abilities.”

“Keep your voice down. Don't let her hear you. Nell had a conflict with her before and got fired.”

eg

“She has a backup. But her ex-husband has divorced her. Why did he help her?”

“We don't understand the thoughts of rich people.”

Their voices were heard by Aurora, Mary, and Owen.

Owen's face turned cold, but he didn't say anything.

Mary was furious. “I'll talk to them.”

But her wrist was grabbed. She turned her head and saw Aurora holding a small bottle of biscuits in one hand and holding her wrist with the other. “Wanna see my new office?”

Aurora turned her head, and her eyes suddenly lit up like stars.

It was as if she hadn't heard them.

"Aurora..." Mary's eyes turned red. She felt sorry for Aurora, who worked hard but got smeared.

She also admired Aurora.

Few people had such strong endurance as her.

"They can't upset me. They make me feel I should go somewhere better." Aurora smiled casually.

A high position could be challenging. But it enabled her to ignore those people.

As they entered the office, they were shocked.

Aurora couldn't remember how long it had been since she had stood in a place with such a good view. The floor-to-ceiling windows were decorated with a beige gauze curtain with a faint fragrance in the air.

For a moment, she felt like she had returned to her past life.

Mary ran to the window excitedly. "This is great. Are the offices of Malon designers all the same!"

Owen shook his head in envy. "I can only see the CBD building in my office. There is no such a good view."

They looked at Aurora and asked, "Can we come often in the future?"

"Of course." Aurora looked at the spacious sofa and coffee table.

She enjoyed the biscuits happily.

That afternoon, the designers were gathered for a meeting. Mary was still an intern, so she could not participate in it.

After Aurora and Owen arrived, they saw a lot of people.

Owen whispered to her, "The front seats are reserved for the four chief designers of Malon including Iris Eason and Hale Smith. They came back today to shoot the front cover of the fashion magazine next week."

"Magazine?"

"Yes, Evelyn, a top magazine. Twelve stars will be invited to shoot a special edition of jewelry." Owen shared the news with Aurora, "The four chief designers will be responsible for three episodes respectively, but they definitely need assistants."

Aurora's eyes lit up.

She liked the chances.

She looked at the front seats. She had seen Hansen and Macy before. The woman in a fitting black dress must be Iris Eason. Beside her was Hale Smith.

Aurora had met Hale before. When she planned to study abroad, she and Hale chose the same design teacher.

In some way, they were connected.

However, Aurora didn't study abroad as planned. She wouldn't try to forge closer links to him. Hale was now the most powerful and influential chief designer who had won countless awards internationally.

CO

Someone went over and spoke to them.

Aurora narrowed her eyes as she watched the man walk up to the stage and pick up the microphone.

"Everyone, please be quiet. We are going to carry out the jewelry shooting of Evelyn. We'll choose twenty people from you. All the designers are qualified to compete," said Jay in a gentle voice.

"That's great. It would be great if I could learn from Hale Smith."

"I want to be Hansen's assistant."

Everyone was excited.

Only Aurora was calm, because Jay hadn't said the important thing.

He hadn't announced the rules!

This industry wasn't fair. Every designer had their own ideas and styles. What they needed were obedient and capable assistants. They didn't need the assistant's opinions.

Aurora was okay with that. Compared to most people, she knew what she was. She was no longer the proud girl from a rich family.

However, the others couldn't wait and seemed joyful, as if they would get the spots.

"Mr. Jim even greeted me this morning."

"Last year, I was on Mr. Smith's team. This time, I will definitely..."

They gabbled.

Owen silently lowered his head and remained silent.

"What?" Aurora glanced at him.

Owen smiled bitterly, "I have never been selected. They all have their preferences. I will lose the chance again. There is no fairness."

ICE

Aurora agreed.

But she would not give up on herself at the beginning.

Aurora withdrew her gaze and stopped talking to him. Jay began to announce the rules, "The rules are simple. Draw lots."

How ridiculous the rules were!

Aurora frowned.

When it was her turn to draw lots on the stage, she felt that Jay's smile was strange.

She touched something soon.

"Congratulations, you're Mr. Smith's assistant," Jay announced loudly.

It was out of Aurora's expectations.

The others envied her too. But she felt it was unreal, She glanced at Hale and then looked at Macy next to him.

If she could choose, she would rather work with Macy.

“Go!” Macy silently mouthed.

Aurora hurriedly sat behind Hale.

“You don’t seem very happy to work with me. If you want to work with others, I can help you.” Hale seemed cool. Aurora was not sure if he was angry or not.

Aurora shook her head.

“You are my first choice.”

It sounded a bit ambiguous.

Hale was surprised at first, but then he saw the serious expression on Aurora’s face. There was a trace of surprise in his eyes. “Have we met somewhere before?”

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 99

Chapter 99 Aurora Can’t Bear It Anymore

Aurora was surprised this time.

Two years ago, they met but didn’t talk to each other. But they were just visiting a teacher together

“Yes. We met at Mr. Hood’s house two years ago.”

Aurora said honestly. But Hale didn’t seem to react, except to nod.

It seemed that he didn’t remember.

Aurora lowered her head and kept silent.

Aurora had already been considered a connection of the company, so she didn’t want to cause any gossip for no reason.

The groups were divided quickly.

Aurora was in the same group with another four designers, who all came from Malon Company and were very familiar with Hale. They had one thing in common, which was that they were all afraid of Hale.

As a newcomer, Aurora waited silently and observed.

Therefore, the heaviest physical work was assigned to her.

“Go to the shooting site and move the props over tomorrow. Is that okay for you?” Anya Watson, the one who instructed Aurora, was young but had the power of speech.

Aurora shot a glance at Anya’s name tag, knowing she was from the design department.

Anya should be very experienced in assignments, so Aurora nodded. "Got it." Then the four of them gathered together again and began to discuss the selection and pairing. Aurora had to do odd jobs.

This was also the case in other groups, either in sub-group of two or three or individually.

Designers were a little arrogant, and no one was convinced by others.

Aurora had gotten used to this at school. She quietly sat at the side, thinking. By chance, she felt a gaze.

Looking in the direction of her feelings, Aurora saw Jay.

Jay was talking with Hale in the corridor. As the door closed, Aurora could only see them through the glass window.

Aurora suddenly remembered Jay's smile and frowned slowly. After that, they all returned to their

Chapter 99 Aurora Can't Rear It Anymore respective offices.

Aurora pushed the door open. Owen and Mary were both waiting for her.

"Aurora, congratulations. You're doing great!" Mary said excitedly, "Can I deliver food to you tomorrow? I also want to see how they shoot. Maybe I can bump into a star!"

Aurora could tell that Mary was truly happy for her.

"I will send you the shooting site location later. If there is a lunch break, I will tell you in advance," Aurora said as she took out her phone.

A payment collection message came.

as

Aurora narrowed her eyes. Faye did it quickly, but the amount was not correct.

Old Ild

Owen looked at Aurora with his eyes full of envy. "The designers mentored by Mr. Smith will soon be able to take over the design case. Perhaps it won't take long for you to work independently."

Aurora sent the location to Mary, put away her phone, and packed up her things to get off work.

"Are you very envious?" Aurora asked back without even raising her head.

UV

ora

"No doubt." Owen was stunned.

"Then you shouldn't wait for the opportunity to come to you," Aurora looked calm as she said word by word, "Do you think that the draw lots were all about luck?"

Owen was speechless.

Aurora finished and was left alone.

Mary wasn't on the site, so she didn't know the details. She could only comfort Owen,

"Aurora's character is like that. Don't think too much."

Owen frowned. After a while, he suddenly realized. "I go first."

Owen ran to Hansen's office.

Aurora was right, he couldn't just wait passively.

The ones who were selected through draw today were all capable and experienced designers in the company except for Aurora.

Was it a coincidence?

Ten minutes later, Owen left Hansen's office, but he wasn't nervous any longer. All the powerful designers had become assistants, so there were a few small goods cases left. Owen recommended himself to Hansen and successfully got a niche brand design case. The commission was not much, but this was the first time he was qualified to design independently.

When Owen left the company, his hands were shaking.

Mary was still waiting for him at the door. "Are you alright? Are you provoked by Aurora?"

"I'm fine! When Aurora finishes her work, I'll treat you two to a meal. No, meals for a week!"

Mary didn't understand why Owen said so, but she still smiled and agreed, "If Aurora knew that she could save money for a week's meals, she would be very happy."

Aurora bumped into Jay before she left the company.

She slowed down her steps and asked directly, "Why did you assign me to Hale's group?"

Aurora was not a fool. Those four were former assistants to Hale. They cooperated so well that they didn't need to divide the assignments in advance but followed Anya's instructions. Moreover, Anya decided the general direction of the shooting without asking Hale's opinions.

They might happen to lack someone to do odd jobs.

Or, someone was kicked out because Aurora joined the group.

Either of them made Aurora feel that she was being watched and manipulated, which made her very uncomfortable, especially since it was Jay who manipulated her.

unco

"No wonder the professors liked you a lot when you were in university. You are very smart, indeed." Jay's long and narrow eyes revealed a little plot.

"Just say it. What do you want to do?" Aurora lost her patience.

She didn't want to waste time on meaningless things.

"You don't accept my proposal, so I have to do it my way," Jay said.

Aurora frowned, "You are just an intern trainer. Don't push me hard. Or, I will expose your secret operation."

By then, even if the senior management of Malon Company didn't punish him, those designers who were eager to make a name would not let go of him.

Aurora took a few steps forward.

"Don't mess with me. I don't have the time to play this boring game with you."

mess

Aurora finished and walked straight into the elevator.

Aurora thought that Jay would not be overconfident. However, Jay rushed over to block the elevator and squeezed in. Staring at Aurora, he said, "I've said that I want to cooperate with you. The reason why you joined Malon was that you wanted to get back to your original world and take revenge on

Zac. Right?

"I can help you achieve your goal in the shortest time.
"You don't trust me, but you can trust the Keen family behind me. Anyway, it is a hundred times better than your current situation, right?" Jay said proudly as if he was certain that Aurora would agree with him.
It made Aurora very uncomfortable.
"I don't want to repeat my words a third time." Aurora gritted her teeth.
Jay frowned and stared at Aurora for a while. Suddenly, he seemed to understand something. "You think that you can shake the position of Zac by yourself, don't you?"
What did Aurora have?
Aurora had nothing. She even lived in such a remote place.
"A single word from Zac enabled you to join Malon. What do you have to fight him? Even if you sell yourself, you won't attract him."
A loud sound was heard.
Aurora kicked Jay without hesitation.
Then, a piercing scream came from the elevator. When some people rushed over, they saw that Jay curled up in the corner with a pale face and he felt too painful to stand up.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 100

Chapter 100 Apology Is Simple

Half an hour later.
The President's Office of the Buchanna Group:
Zac ordered to destroy all of them, not even leaving a single piece.
"Mr. Buchanna, the board of directors have a big reaction, complaining that we shouldn't waste so much, and asking who should fill in this gap."
Zac lowered his head and tapped his fingers on the desk.
"Are you sure that this batch of goods was purchased by Saul?"
"Yes, Mr. Gates personally purchased it from abroad. The price is much lower than before," Carter reported honestly.
After a long time, Zac said in a deep voice, "Let this matter end here."
Carter was a little surprised, but he continued listening.
Was
Zac had considered for a long time before he slowly said, "She wants to see the internal strife of the Buchanna Group. It's ridiculous."
As long as Zac was here, he would never let that happen.
Hearing Zac's tune, Carter said with hesitation, "Mr. Buchanna, there was a new message from Malon just now, saying that Ms. Bennet hit someone at the company."
"She hit someone? Why?" Zac asked with suspicion in his eyes.
In Zac's impression, Aurora would not do anything to cross the line.
"The other party spoke rudely and mentioned your relationship with Ms. Bennet. That's why she acted," Carter said as per the information he got.
Hearing that, Zac's face became gloomier.
"Settle it. Someone from the Oconnell Group will come over next week. I don't wish them to hear any criticism.”

“Yes, Mr. Buchanna.”

At Malon Company.

Aurora sat on the sofa. No matter what Anna and Hansen asked, she kept silent.

“You are just promoted to be a designer with an exception. How dare you hit your trainer and cause such a scandal? What do you want to do? Are you crazy?”

Anna widened her eyes and walked back and forth with her fat. She pointed to Aurora’s face and looked anxious. “Mr. Smith has also received the message. Wait and see what consequence you will have to take.”

Hansen rubbed the center of his eyebrows and said, “Alright, it’s useless to say anything now. Jay has already gone to the hospital to check his injuries. I think it’s not a big problem.”

“Mr. Jim, you know that Jay... is the only heir of the Keen family. In case he is injured, who will take the responsibility?”

As soon as Anna heard the news, she could tell that it was Aurora’s fault.

Aurora first provoked the daughter of the Jarrett family and was now the son of the Keen family.

Hansen frowned.

The surveillance equipment in the corridor recorded the audio of their conversation.

It showed that it was Jay who provoked Aurora first.

Who else could bear it?

But...

Hansen looked at Aurora and hesitated for a moment. “You go to the hospital and apologize to him later.”

Aurora’s eyes darkened, but she didn’t refuse. “OK.”

Aurora thought, Apology? It is simple.

But if anything happens again, it’s not my fault.

It was something that happened at Malon Company, so she had to be restrained by them. But if she were in a hospital, which was a public place, she could be responsible for her behavior.

were ds

Aurora walked out with her bag.

Anna blinked. “Mr. Jim, don’t you feel that there was something wrong with her expression just now? Why was she so obedient?”

It shouldn’t be like that.

When Aurora was on a business trip abroad, she often caused trouble and was very aggressive. How came she was so obedient today?

Anna got a very bad feeling.

“Even though Jay is the son of the Keen family, his words not only insult Aurora but also ruin Mr.

Buchanna's reputation. You can consider which side is more important."

Anna suddenly was enlightened.

"That's it! We can't afford to offend Mr. Buchanna!"

Moreover, Aurora had already gone to the hospital to apologize to Jay. Let it end here.

Otherwise, it would become bigger if they interfered too much.

Of course, they wanted to turn a big matter into a small one.

However, the Keen Family didn't think so.

Jay was sent to the various examination rooms and had a general check-up carefully.

After receiving the report, Layla Keen, Jay's mother, asked the doctor again and again, "My son has not married yet. Are you sure that he is not injured? It won't stop him from having a baby, will it?"

"He's fine. Rest assured," the doctor said with a smile.

However, Layla still felt uneasy. When she went back to the ward, she saw Aurora walking over.

Layla immediately pulled a long face and said, "Someone is shameless to cling to a man. Why can't others say what she did?"

This was clearly for Aurora to hear.

Aurora gave an indifferent glance at Layla as a warning.

Layla felt that she had the reason and coughed. "My son was hit by you like this, and the check-up report has not come out yet. We will not let it go easily."

Jay just lay there, not saying a word.

Aurora chuckled, "It doesn't hurt anymore?"

ora

She was asking Jay.

Jay's eyes, which had always been gloomy, now had a little hesitation. He almost fainted because he was in great pain by Aurora's kick just now.

"I'm surprised at the family education of the Bennet family," Jay said through his gritted teeth.

Hit people?

How could a daughter of a rich family do such a thing?

No wonder Aurora got so bad comments from outside. She would never change. And no wonder Zac abandoned her.

Aurora responded coldly, "I didn't expect that the Keen family was so despicable either. You pretended to cooperate with me. In fact, you intended to make use of me to have the Keen Group replace the Buchanna Group in the market. What a dirty trick you used! "If you want to make a name, rely on your brain. How can you make use of a woman? Shameless!"

Jay was exposed straightly. He felt embarrassed.

"Why? Do you think I'm blind or a fool? When you first came to me, I already told you that I wouldn't cooperate with you. You kept making trouble for me and even stuffing me into Mr. Smith's group. I know what trick you're going to use."

Aurora sneered, "Jay, this is the last warning to you. Go away! Or, I'll let you know the taste of having no descendants."

The door was slammed.

After Aurora finished, she slammed the door and left.

Carter stood at the door. If he had not dodged in time, he would have been seen by Aurora.

Carter had already asked the doctor about the results of the check-ups. When he returned, he coincidentally heard Aurora's words.

The Keen family had aimed at the Buchanna Group!

Carter immediately called Lawrence Reed, the director of this hospital.

A warm and flattering voice came from the other side of the phone, "Hi Carter, is there anything I can do for you?"

"Jay is a patient in your hospital, right?"

"Yes, he just got admitted to the hospital today." The Keen family was a VIP client here, so Lawrence was clear about it.

However, with the status of the Keen family, it was not worth it for Lawrence to personally present to take care of Jay.

In a private hospital of this level, he could send a chief doctor over to take a look at most.

But Zac was different!